3rd man sought in stabbing death

BY BRANDY BRUBAKER
 The Dominion Post

Kirsten Sands' brother is dead and she doesn't know why.

Early Sunday, she got the call. A friend of her brother called his girlfriend, who then called the family. Sands had to make the hour-and-a-half trek to Morgantown to identify her brother's body.

was her brother, Terrance "Matt" Sands. He was 22.

According to Morgantown Police, an argument broke out either in Club 228, on Walnut Street,

"It was horrible," she said. "It was really hard for me. I felt bad for it, but I was hoping it was somebody else ... that somebody got it mixed up."

Monongalia County Magistrate Darris Summers signed the warrant for Alford's arrest, but, since

A car hydroplaned and ran into the side of a school bus Tuesday morning, sending seven Ridgedale Elementary School students to the hospital for minor injuries.

State Trooper L.L. Rohrbaugh said Julian Brown was driving on Halleck Road at about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday when he slid on the wet road and veered into the opposite lane of traffic. Brown's car hit the side of the bus, which was headed toward Grafton Road. The crash occurred on a hilly, sharp curve in the road, about five miles from Halleck Road's intersection with Grafton Road.

Senior Trooper J.R. Celapino said about 32 children were on the bus. The students taken to the hospital had bumps and bruises or were shaken up. He didn't think anyone sustained serious injuries, he said.

47 House Dems break with party on taxes

Want to keep Bush-era cuts on investments

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A group of forty-seven House Democrats are telling party leaders they want to continue Bush-era tax cuts on investment income, breaking ranks with President Barack Obama and exposing divisions among Democrats about their party's pre-election message on taxes.

The lawmakers, led by Rep. John Adler, D-N.J., have sent a letter to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi saying they strongly support extending the current tax rates on capital gains and dividends.

"Raising taxes on capital gains and dividends could discourage individuals and businesses from saving and investing," said the letter, dated Friday and released Tuesday. "We urge you to maintain the current tax rate for both dividend and long-term capital gains taxes."

Tax cuts enacted in 2003 set the top tax rate on capital gains and dividends at 15 percent. Those tax cuts expire at the end of the year, and Obama wants to let the top tax rate on capital gains and dividends increase to 20 percent for individuals making more than $200,000 and married couples making more than $250,000.

But if all 47 Democrats who signed the letter side with Republicans, they could prevail in extending the investment tax rates for all taxpayers, including the wealthy. The letter was signed by several vulnerable freshman and members of the conservative Blue Dog coalition.

The tax cuts on investments were part of a sweeping package enacted under former President George W. Bush that lowered income taxes for families at every income level. All the tax cuts expire at the end of the year.

Obama and Democratic leaders in Congress want to extend the tax cuts for individuals making less than $200,000 and married couples making less than $250,000. Republicans and a growing number of rank-and-file Democrats want to extend them all — even those for the wealthy — at least temporarily.

Clay-Battelle, UHS to track concussions

MHS has been using program to assess athletes for a year

BY JIM BISSETT

The Dominion Post

BLACKSVILLE — Be prepared, winter athletes at Clay-Battelle and University high schools.

If you're going out for basketball or wrestling this year, your coaches are going to get into your heads like never before.

This winter, both schools are set to begin a computerized tracking program that charts the cognitive progress of athletes who suffer concussion injuries on the field of play.

Morgantown High has used the program for its football, basketball, wrestling and lacrosse programs for the past year. It was created by Dr. Richard Vaglienti, a neurological researcher who co-directs WVU Pain Management Center.

MHS Athletic Director Don Erenrich talked about the program during Tuesday night's meeting of the Monongalia County Schools Board of Education (BOE) at Mason-Dixon Elementary School.

"Basically, it's a program that charts how you 'think,'" Erenrich said. "It charts all those ways your brain reasons and uses logic — and that's what we use to compare if one of our athletes gets a concussion in the game."

The so-called "impact" study consists of a series of questions related to the above that students take at a computer terminal before taking to the field for the sport.

"It takes about 25 minutes," Erenrich said, "and we get a base score that we can compare every-

Census: Marriages in '09 at record low

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The recession took a dramatic toll on the institution of marriage in America in 2009, new figures show, with weddings for people 18 and older at the lowest ebb in more than 100 years.

A broad array of new Census Bureau data released Tuesday shows, among other things, that marriages fell to a record-low level in 2009, with just 52 percent of adults 18 and over saying they were joined in wedlock, compared to 57 percent in 2000. Many young people, at the same time, struggled to find work and achieve economic independence.

On the positive side: Americans spent about 36 fewer minutes in the office per week and were stuck in less traffic, although the reason was largely because millions of them had lost jobs or were scraping by with part-time work.

Take your chances in sequence

By Phillip Alder

Mother Teresa said, "Kind words can be short and easy to speak, but their echoes are truly endless."

Today's deal is an echo of yesterday's. You have two chances to make your seven-spade contract and must attack them in the correct order. West leads a trump. What would you do?

It is easier said than done to reach seven spades. However, that North hand is very strong when partner opens two clubs and the spade fit is uncovered. So, after you control-bid (cue-bid) in both minors, North leapt majestically to seven spades. Real bridge players don't need Blackwood.

Try to find a safe lead against a grand slam; don't risk giving away the contract at trick one.

When you are in a grand slam, you have little reason to count losers, because you cannot afford any. Instead, count winners. Here you have 12: seven spades, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs. There are two chances for a 13th winner: the diamond finesse might work (50 percent) or the hearts could be 4-4 (33 percent).

This suggests that you should rely on the diamond finesse. However, if hearts are not 8-0 or 7-1 (a combined 4 percent), you can try both. Take the first trick with dummy's nine and cash the two top hearts, discarding diamonds from your hand. Then ruff a heart with a high trump, lead a spade to dummy's jack, ruff another heart high, and play a spade to dummy's ace. Were the hearts 4-4? If so, cash the heart six, discarding your diamond queen, and claim. If not, take the diamond finesse.

Granville to establish new administrator position

BY JOEL CUTHBERT
 For The Dominion Post

GRANVILLE — Council has proposed a new position to handle the town's daily operations when officials are not present.

At the Granville Council meeting Tuesday, council members approved the first reading of a law establishing a full-time municipal administrator position. Police Chief Ron Snyder currently serves in this position, according to Mayor Patricia Lewis, though in an unofficial capacity.

"We need to make an official position so that the person can actually sign off on official documents during the day when I'm not here and [Recorder Michelle Boyer's] not here," she said after the meeting, "someone to oversee and coordinate everything."

The new municipal administrator's duties will include oversight of policies and procedures, coordination of projects and efforts between town departments and supervision of all work within the town. The municipal administrator will also respond to residents' complaints.

After the initial reading, Councilman David Bean Sr. said he would prefer if a set salary were not included in the ordinance, leaving it open for council to determine pay based on experience.

"I think it ought to be at the discretion of the mayor and council," he said. Both Councilman Wilbur England and Councilwoman Mary Beth Renner agreed. Council plans to have the ordinance revised by the next meeting to reflect this change.

The position of municipal administrator will be effective following the second reading of the law — scheduled for Oct. 12 — at which time an appointment will be made and a salary set. According to Lewis, council plans to fill the position from in-house.

Also during the meeting, council decided to use a free Purchasing Card program, available through the West Virginia Auditor's Office, for town supervisors and employees who make regular purchases on the job.

The Visa cards are free of fees and interest; can be used to pay utility bills or purchase materials, including gas, anywhere that accepts Visa; and will replace most other payment methods currently used by the town. The cards are protected against fraud and misuse, and allow the town to set spending limits for each cardholder. They also allow the town to earn cash rebates.

"It's going to help with our record-keeping, and that's a big thing right now," England said.

In other business: Council plans to update the Veteran's Memorial at town hall, and is looking for names of people who lived in Granville during all or part of their time of service. Anyone with names should contact Court Clerk Jeff Gilchrist at the town hall (304-599-5080) during office hours.

The Granville Fire Department Gun Bash will be from noon-7 p.m. Nov. 20 at the fire hall. Tickets are available at the fire hall and can be purchased for $30.

21 injured in car versus bus head-on wreck in Mullens

Associated Press

MULLENS — Twenty-one people were injured when a car hit a nursing home bus in southern West Virginia.

A Wyoming County 911 dispatcher said the head-on collision occurred at 8:25 a.m. Tuesday on Wyoming County 5 between Ravencliff and McGraws.

Sheriff Randall Aliff said the car crossed the center line and hit a Mullens Manor bus. The bus went over an embankment and turned onto its side.

Aliff said the bus driver, 18 passengers on the bus, and two people in the car were taken to area hospitals. He said none of the injuries were serious.

He said most of the bus' passengers were disabled.

No charges have been filed. The investigation is continuing.

W.Va. aims to finish explosion probe by mid-2011

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — West Virginia is targeting summer 2011 to finish investigating the nation's deadliest coal mine explosion since 1970, the state's mine safety chief said.

However, he said the date is merely a goal and investigators will take as long as they need to determine what caused the Upper Big Branch explosion. The April 5 explosion killed 29 miners and injured two others at the Raleigh County mine about 51 miles south of Charleston.

Regulators suspect the blast started with methane gas, then grew as it fed on explosive coal dust.

"We know that there was gas and likely coal dust involved. Our whole objective here is to do everything we can to find out what happened," state mine safety director Ron Wooten told The Associated Press in an interview Monday.

thing else to."

Jeff Bailey, Erenrich's counterpart at University High, said it can't take the place of coaches and trainers who always assess injuries on the sidelines.

"They do all the basic things, like getting them to count backward from 100, asking if they have a headache, if they're nauseous, things like that."

Instead, the program becomes the 12th man of the team, neurologically speaking.

If there's any suspicion of a serious brain trauma like a concussion, the athlete is out of the game — and doesn't go back until after the full assessment. That means re-taking the test to compare with that base line.

That's regardless of how fine the athlete says he feels, Erenrich said.

"Just because you're 'cleared,'" he said, "doesn't mean you're back in the game."

BOE member Nancy Walker said she would like to see Mon's middle schools using the base line study, too.

"I always think of girl's soccer," she said.

In a related matter, the BOE stuck to its game plan regarding students who transfer to other schools for the purpose of playing sports.

Students who do so still need to sit out athletics for a year, board member Joe Statler said.

Any exception, he said, could raise the specter of recruiting, which the county district has been accused of doing in years past.

"That's why the policy is there," he said.

he was picked up in Martinsburg, he was arraigned in Berkeley County. A magistrate there set his bond at $500,000, a Berkeley County magistrate clerk said.

A Mountain Line bus driver said he was stopped at the traffic light at the intersection of High and Walnut streets when he saw a commotion on the sidewalk.

"I didn't witness the stabbing. I saw him fall," the driver said. The Dominion Post agreed to withhold his identity to protect his privacy.

"There was a group of kids around. They were yelling and screaming and hollering, which is not unusual," he said. "I saw the kid fall on the ground, and I saw some people take off running and some ran toward him."

He saw one young man walking away who "brought attention to himself."

"He was clapping his hands over his head and saying [something like] 'Look at my boy. Look at my boy. He's done,'" the driver said.

He took it as boasting. He doesn't know who that person was, but passed the information along to police.

The driver never saw a knife and said, once Sands fell, he didn't move.

First Sgt. R. Gilmore said detectives are still trying to piece together what caused the fight and the stabbing.

Supervisory Deputy U.S. Marshal Alex Neville said Morgantown Police passed on information that Alford might be at one of a few addresses in his hometown of Martinsburg. Deputy marshals set up surveillance and arrested Alford without incident as he exited the home of an associate Monday.

Hezekiah Alford is a friend of the family and, although he and Isaiah share the same last name, they are not related.

He said he was shocked when he learned his friend had been arrested in connection with a murder.

"I don't see him getting involved in that nonsense. He's a God-fearing young man," Hezekiah Alford said. "I've never known him to throw a punch, put up a fight."

Hezekiah Alford described Isaiah as a "peacekeeper." He said he was attending Potomac State, where Fagan was also a student, according to a college spokeswoman. Hezekiah Alford said he doesn't know Fagan. A family member of Fagan's could not be located by The Dominion Post for comment on Tuesday.

Kiersten Sands doesn't know if her brother knew either man. He was in Morgantown that weekend visiting friends who attend WVU.

"This is really, really hard for all of us," she said. "It's our baby, our only brother, our only son, our only uncle. He was a nice guy. Everybody who met him really, really loved him. A lot of people are hurting and left with a lot of unanswered questions."

She begged anyone with information to come forward and talk to police.

"We just want closure," she said.

Terrance Sands is survived by his parents, Dolores and Terrance Sands, and sisters, Courtney, Katlyn and Kiersten, among other relatives. A viewing will be from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Friday at the Wesley Center in Pittsburgh. A funeral will immediately follow.

 Celiac disease is an immune condition of the digestive tract that occurs when a person ingests foods containing gluten. Gluten is a kind of protein that can be found in some grains. Gluten is commonly found in breads, cake, pizza dough, and many other popular foods. When a person with celiac disease eats a food containing gluten, the immune system reacts, causing damage to the surface of the digestive tract and making the digestion of important nutrients difficult. Over a period of time, this non-absorption can lead to other problems. People with untreated celiac disease might experience vitamin deficiency and all of its negative side effects. # Toddler taken from woman after traffic stop

Faces drug, officer obstruction charges

BY ALEX LANG
The Dominion Post

Granville Police say they had to use force during the arrest of a couple this week to get the woman to let go of a toddler, who was turned over to Child Protective Services.

Shannon Renee Riley, 20, of Granville, and Norman Dowd, 22, were arrested following a traffic stop Monday. Both were passengers in the stopped vehicle.

Dowd was charged as a fugitive and Riley was charged with possession of a controlled substance and obstructing an officer. Riley was arraigned in Granville Municipal Court.

Dowd was wanted in Greene County, Pa., for failure to appear at a revocation hearing.

The driver, Alan Guseman, 27, was cited for driving on a suspended or revoked license non-DUI and possession of a controlled substance.

According to the criminal complaint: Sgt. B. Wright stopped a Honda car traveling on Main Street in Granville. The vehicle had one headlight burnt out and was going 36 mph in a 25 mph speed-limit zone.

The driver's behavior was suspicious, so Wright used his K-9 to inspect the outside of the car. The police dog indicated narcotics near an open rear window where Riley was seated.

Heroin stamps were found in Riley's purse. She also removed heroin syringes from her bra before being arrested.

A 23-month-old child, Riley's son, was in the vehicle. Wright said that Riley didn't appear to be in a state that would endanger the child.

At the station, Riley refused to turn her son over to Child Protective Services.

Wright told her numerous times to put the toddler down, but Riley refused. Wright then placed Riley in an arm bar with her free arm and moved her close to the ground to prevent the toddler from falling.

Riley released the toddler from her arms so she could stand up.

Preston BOE sends proposal to School Building Authority

Asks for funds to replace modulators

BY MICHELLE WOLFORD
The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD — The Preston County Board of Education has submitted a proposal to the School Building Authority (SBA) that would replace modular classrooms at Fellowsville Elementary. The $812,000 project would require $710,000 in SBA Major Improvement Plan [MIP] funds, with $102,000 to be provided locally, the board learned Monday evening.

Preston County Superintendent of Schools Larry Parsons said the local funds would come through the $39.6 million school bond that goes before voters in November. The SBA awards MIPs in December, he said, but "without local funds, the SBA money won't be throwing the funds our way."

"It's contingent on the bond," Parsons said. "If the bond would fail, there would be no matching funds locally to do the project. The SBA bases MIP awards upon a funding package."

The MIP would replace aging modular classrooms at Fellowsville — modulators that "were put in place at the school several years ago as a temporary measure. Over the years — deterioration has occurred beyond repair. Further, the space provided is not adequate for a positive learning environment. The modulators are not connected to the main building; therefore the staff and children are exposed to inclement weather when changing classes during the instructional day. Handicap accessibility is not provided with the modulators," according to the MIP summary.

Parsons said the modulators house arts classes and the school library and are used by all grades at the school — kindergarten through fifth grade.

Also Monday, Parsons said the county's share of federal Education Jobs Funds (Ed Jobs) should be $928,478. The money is to be used for teacher salaries and benefits, especially to fund positions lost through reductions in force, created by expanded enrollment, or for extended learning, such as summer school and after-school programs. The Ed Jobs program was created by a bill signed by President Barack Obama on Aug. 10.

"The program provides $10 billion in assistance to states to save or create education jobs for the 2010-11 school year," according to the U.S. Department of Education.

The board also voted to change the meeting time of the Oct. 11 meeting from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Preston still responds to festival

Community celebration upholds finest traditions of buckwheat event

First responders are second to none. Maybe that's the reason the Preston County Buckwheat Festival is second to no other such event in our region.

From its origins — almost 70 years ago — to today, this festival's organization and operation are still as reliable as the scores of volunteer firefighters who may be called out at a moment's notice.

Not to mention this festival is certain to spark almost the kind of excitement that is a firefighter's life.

But the Buckwheat Festival, which opens Thursday, is all of that and a whole lot more.

There's not just something for everybody at the festival, but more importantly, there's always somebody you know there, or you're glad to meet.

Over the years, this event has become something of a homecoming for people from not only Preston County but across this region.

It also connects several generations to a tradition that ignites memories of long ago and just yesterday.

And although the Kingwood Volunteer Fire Department is the primary organizer and sponsor of this event, the festival is embraced by a host of VFDs and every community in Preston County.

Participation also runs the gamut of ages, occupations and associations.

Not only do schoolchildren prepare displays, marching bands parade their talents and civic groups and churches put their best cooks forward, but area businesses work doubly hard at their involvement in the community.

Clearly, this event is also a moneymaker to businesses, but more importantly, it is a perfect opportunity for fundraising in Preston County.

Hang up a cozy quilt and sell chances for winning it and you are virtually guaranteed to reach your group's goal.

Or, like many local churches and VFDs, serve up the festival's trademark buckwheat cakes and sausages that have been in this county's cookbooks for decades and be ready to dish out seconds.

Not surprisingly, in the tradition of Preston's VFDs, practically every feature of this festival is also run by volunteers, who sacrifice wages and salaries for the greater good. Sometimes for hours, sometimes for days.

Anyone who attends this festival will never be able to say they don't know what Preston Countians stand for. Although some define this county by its public schools, its local economy or its infrastructure, we urge them to warm up to Preston County's people.

People there don't just live to put out life's fires. Instead, they don't turn out to serve their community just one week of every year, but are on call every day to help each other.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR (ELECTION 2010)

Petty politics, negative thinking helps nothing

Perhaps our thinking needs to improve. Negativity, fault finding, blaming each other, petty politics, etc. are all a waste of time.

It would seem in this time of need perhaps our leadership should inspire our nation to roll up our sleeves and all work together. We don't need any more negativity.

The time that has been spent in the negative — now changed to a determination to work together with ideas of productive good — would change the national attitude to healthy, cooperative, help-each-other, let's-go-forward, love-each-other, enjoy-life attitude.

Remember the stories of our grandparents when they were going across the country in wagons. They had what I call problems; no water, no grocery stores, hunger, having to kill a rabbit or two for dinner, etc. And then a few years later they helped each other build little houses to get out of the weather, and on Saturday night they all got together to have a barn dance to have some fun.

We have come a long way. It has been a lot of good thinking and a lot of hard work. And that's what it takes to get it done. Petty politics and negative thinking don't get anything done. We have unlimited opportunity.

Vote for the man, not party in Senate race

West Virginians are now under the political microscope. How we vote on Nov. 2 will make a crucial difference in the control of the U.S. Senate and the immediate future survival of our country.

Vote for "the man" this time, not "the party." Both entrepreneur John Raese and Gov. Joe Manchin are formidable men of strong, assertive character. Both are good-looking, well-spoken and experienced in their fields of endeavor. The real difference is in their basic philosophies of government.

One promotes strong, centralized "big-government." The other urges a return to smaller government, lower taxes and large spending cuts. One seeks government-mandated, "one-size-fits-all" solutions to social problems. The other thinks people can solve their own individual problems without "help" from the nanny-state.

Manchin, as a Democrat, is bound by party loyalties to follow the lead of a failing Democrat president. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid and Majority Whip Dan Durbin have a large arsenal of political "weapons." With these tools they dangle the "carrots of incentive" or "twist arms" by withholding prestigious committee assignments, favors and support of desired bills. Such pressures make it very easy to "go along, to get along."

Raese is bound by his personal convictions and principles to oppose the "fundamental transformation of America" that Obama has promised. Raese is committed to work against Obama's agenda that will quickly bring our country down to Third World status.

Manchin, in his own words, supports Obama's long list:

Amnesty for illegals, attacking Arizona's anti-illegal law, Ground Zero mosque, bailout of AIG, takeover of GM, Rep. Barney Frank and his Fannie Mae/Freddie Mac fiascoes, Obamacare, Gulf-drilling moratorium, $2 billion gift to Brazil for deep-water drilling, attacking the tea party movement, redistributing your wealth and blaming George W. Bush for everything.

Do your part to defeat Team Manchin-Reid-Pelosi-Obama. Break the mold. Put Raese in West Virginia's U.S. Senate seat Nov 2.

Witches' brew boiling in tea party caucus

I can see it now, the first tea party caucus in Congress. They'll all be standing around the cauldron chanting, "more tax breaks for the rich, less regulation for the ones who drove our economy to the brink and all hail lobbyists."

Then they'll add to the cauldron a little eye of Newt Gingrich, a healthy dose of kill the messenger, a pinch of back to your own lunch counter in the name of freedom of business and a scoop of if you're not for us then you must be a dirty liberal.

Let the good times roll.

Jackson candidacy may be mission improbable

WHEN THE NEWS came out that Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr. was under federal investigation, I found myself hoping in an odd Chicago-style sort of way that he was indeed guilty. I would hate to see the system punish an innocent man.

And, guilty or not, he already is being punished in the court of public opinion without being formally accused of anything.

His latest headache came Tuesday when the Chicago Sun-Times dropped a bombshell: Indian-American fundraiser Raghuveer Nayak, of Oak Brook, Ill., had told authorities that Jackson directed him to offer then-Gov. Rod Blagojevich millions in campaign cash in return for President Obama's former Illinois Senate seat, the newspaper said.

Jackson has denied similar allegations since they first surfaced in a federal criminal complaint against Blagojevich in late 2008.

Jackson said little more until a radio interview Oct. 17 in which he acknowledged a meeting with Nayak on Oct. 28, 2008. But part of the conversation was in a foreign language, he said, and "I did not participate in any of that part of the conversation nor do I even remember hearing it."

Jackson, now considering a run to replace Mayor Richard M. Daley, who recently announced he will not run again, still appeared to have his political viability intact. After all, this is Illinois, where getting things done politically is not unlike dealing with Afghanistan's tribal warlords. You have to choose your allies carefully and heaven help you if you have to be held responsible for everything they say they are doing in your name — especially if they are speaking a language you don't speak so good.

But the newspaper report also dropped another bombshell: Nayak told authorities he paid for two airline trips at Jackson's request for a "social acquaintance," a blonde hostess at a Washington, D.C., cigar bar and restaurant.

As if comparisons to Blagojevich weren't bad enough, Jackson now was being compared to Tiger Woods, too.

Suddenly attempts by media folks, including me, to reach Jackson were politely rebuffed. "The reference to a social acquaintance is a private and personal matter between me and my wife that was handled some time ago," he said in a statement. "I ask that you respect our privacy." Very well. But don't expect the same respect from the House ethics committee investigators. The alleged flights could be a violation of House rules.

So, with all that in mind, I hope the young Jackson is guilty of something. Otherwise tons of public indignation are going to waste, along with pieces of his once-promising political reputation.

Some observers already are speculating that he'll lose half of his black female support behind that airplane ticket news alone. Maybe. But as an African-American male, I caution anyone who would attempt to take the African-American woman for granted. I am reminded of the pretrial assumption by O. J. Simpson's prosecutors that black female jurors would be swayed against Simpson out of resentment of his having married a white woman. That famously proved not to be the case.

Jackson is damaged more severely by something he has tried for years to escape: Unfavorable comparisons to his father, the Rev.

Jesse L. Jackson. With memories of the National Enquirer's disclosures in 2001 of the senior Jackson's then-20-month-old child of an extramarital affair, the phrase "Like father like son" has been tripping off many weary lips.

And even if Jackson clears the air of this recent scandal, his potential mayoral bid faces other landmines of our times: Voters have grown weary of family dynasties (just ask the Daley, Bush and Kennedy clans) and other names that have been around a long time.

But don't count Jackson out yet. A mayoral run has become a mission improbable for him, but not impossible. First he needs to clear the air of the questions that hang over him, including his own reasons for running. Voters are suspicious these days of candidates who seem too eager to win the job.

Obama urged to use spill fines to restore Gulf Coast

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama's point person on the Gulf Coast's restoration will recommend paying for it with some of the billions of dollars in civil penalties that could be collected from companies responsible for the oil spill.

That recommendation by Navy Secretary Ray Mabus will be in a report released Tuesday in New Orleans, a portion of which was obtained by The Associated Press.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity because the announcement hadn't yet been made, said the White House has already endorsed the proposal and Obama will ask Congress to dedicate "a significant amount" to the region's recovery.

"This is the dedicated money that kickstarts this thing," the official said.

Even before the announcement had been made, state and local officials were saying how it should be spent and managed.

"My view is that it should be specific to the injury and the subject that we are dealing with," said Sen. Mary Landrieu, D-La., during testimony before the oil spill commission Obama set up to investigate the April 20 accident. She named coastal restoration, ocean education, energy infrastructure and levee protection as possible projects.

In an interview with The Associated Press late last month, Mabus said the money would need to be tied to projects at least connected to the oil spill.

"You got everybody wanting everything now," he said. "And I don't think that is going to change. But I do think that because this is a result of the oil spill, I think there has gotta be at least a beginning nexus to that oil spill."

Dedicating fines levied against BP PLC and other companies involved in the April 20 accident to restoration and directly to Gulf states, which the report also calls for, will require a change in law.

Currently, Clean Water Act fines go into a trust fund to pay for oil spill cleanups.

But if successful, it would go a long way to solving what has been a critical problem in past efforts to restore the coast — money.

High court will put arguments on Internet

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court is broadening access to audio recordings of all its arguments, but ending its practice of same-day release of audio in high-profile cases.

Beginning with the new term next week, the court will post audio files of each week's arguments on its website Friday. The court has for several years put the argument transcripts on the site within hours of the arguments.

Court spokeswoman Kathy Arberg said Tuesday the justices have decided they will no longer entertain requests from broadcasters for the same-day release of audio recordings. Last term, the justices rejected every broadcaster request.

Grandson: Carter 'doing fine'

CLEVELAND — Former President Jimmy Carter, on a trip promoting his new book, devel-

Carter's grandson, Georgia state Sen. Jason Carter, said his 85-year-old grandfather was doing fine. "He's definitely resting comfortably and expected to continue his book tour this week," Jason Carter said. "I haven't talked to him, but nobody in the family is concerned."

Carter said earlier on his Facebook page that his grandfather had left the hospital, but he later told The Associated Press he had the wrong information.

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 29, the 272nd day of 2010. There are 93 days left in the year.

HIGHLIGHT: IN 1910, the National Urban League had its beginnings as The Committee on Urban Conditions Among Negroes was established in New York.

ON THIS DATE: IN 1789, the U.S. War Department established a regular army with a strength of several hundred men.

IN 1829, London's reorganized police force, which became known as Scotland Yard, went on duty.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Actress Elizabeth Scott is 88. Singer Jerry Lee Lewis is 75. Actor Ian McShane is 68. TV personality Bryant Gumbel is 62. Broadcast journalist Gwen Ifill is 55. Olympic gold medal runner Sebastian Coe is 54. Comedian-actor Andrew "Dice" Clay is 53. Singer-musician Les Claypool is 47. Actress Jill Whelan is 44. Actor Luke Goss is 42. Man must sort out his sexual orientation

DEAR ABBY: After many months of dating a wonderful woman, "Amy," we have set a date for our wedding. However, there's a problem. As the date draws closer, Amy is concerned about my lack of physical intimacy. While I am very attracted to her, I am having some doubts. I recently noticed a young man at my health club and experienced some unfamiliar feelings. I don't think I am gay, but I am no longer sure that Amy is what I have been looking for. Should I push these feelings aside and continue our plans for the wedding? Or should I tell Amy the truth about these feelings? — SEARCHING FOR ANSWERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR SEARCHING: You should absolutely tell your fiancée the truth about the feelings you're having — all of them. To marry a woman knowing you might be more attracted to a young man at your health club would bring everyone involved great pain. It is very important that you find out who you are and what you're looking for before coupling up with anyone. While Amy may not be thrilled to hear what you have to say, you owe it to her and to yourself to be frank before this goes any further.

DEAR ABBY: When I am out with my friends, they can't keep their hands and eyes off their cell phones. They sit there and text whatever guy they're involved with, and I feel like they would rather be with anyone else but me. I have talked to them about it, but they say I "don't understand" because I have never been in a relationship. Abby, I'm not jealous because they have guys to talk to. I am hurt that my friends think cyber communication is more important than spending time with friends. What do you think? — TEXTED OUT IN TEXAS

DEAR TEXTED OUT: I'm glad you asked. It is rude for people to behave the way you have described. Good manners dictate that people give their undivided attention to those they are with. To do otherwise sends the signal that their present company is less important.

Two people were taken to Ruby Memorial Hospital from a one-car crash on Old Route 250 in Pine Grove, Marion County.

The wreck forced the department to close the road for two hours.

National Guard promotes Dan Boroff

Honor bestowed during open house

BY TRACY EDDY
The Dominion Post

Three days before his retirement as Morgantown's city manager — and roughly 10 years after he retired from the military — Dan Boroff was promoted to the rank of brigadier general.

The promotion, which came from the state's West Virginia National Guard adjutant general, Allen E. Tackett, was one of several honors Boroff received Tuesday afternoon, during an open house celebrating his 18-year career with the city. He will retire Friday.

About 124 people attended the open house, City Clerk Linda Little said, including city, county, state and WVU officials. Boroff's wife, Mary, was there as well.

A group of retired soldiers who served with Boroff in the U.S. Army's special forces also attended. They gave Boroff his promotion on Tackett's behalf and pinned his new rank — a single star — on his lapel.

Reedsville building knocked down

Michelle Wolford/The Dominion Post

A pile of rubble was all that remained Tuesday morning of a building at the four-way intersection in Reedsville that was knocked down to make way for a wider intersection.

Work will make way for road-widening

The Dominion Post

REEDSVILLE — A demolition project at the four-way intersection got a jump-start Tuesday. A wooden-frame building came down more quickly than the contractor expected.

"It should have taken about four hours," said Mike Johns, of Orange Construction.

Instead, the building was down in 30 minutes. Morning traffic through the intersection was stopped for a time.

"I knew it was going to come down," Johns said. "I just wanted to try to control it."

He said trucks would likely be brought in to remove the rubble beginning Tuesday.

A second building — the brick one on the opposite side of the intersection — is undergoing asbestos abatement and will likely come down after the Buckwheat Festival.

Once it's gone, the road will be widened and the turning radius will be improved from W.Va. 92 North (Robert Stone Highway) to

An Oct. 15 completion date has been set for the $157,793.50 project, awarded to Stone Paving, of Reedsville. In addition to wider intersections, Stone Paving owner Rich Stone said, the stop point — the lines on the roadway that indicate where cars are to stop — "will be lined up more" for better visibility.

A third building, also brick, is not part of the demolition project.

Generators may be placed along the Mon River

BY ALEX LANG
The Dominion Post

A handful of developers has expressed interest in adding hydropower generators to dams in the region, though officials have said any changes to the dams are years away.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Pittsburgh district oversees the 23 locks and dams on the Monongahela River and in the region. Most dams have been looked at for possible hydropower generation, said Curt Meeder, chief of the planning department of the district. "Everyone had some expression of interest," Meeder said.

There was only one lock, near Elizabeth, Pa., that was not considered because it may close, Meeder said.

The power generator's design would be up to the developer, Meeder said. It could be attached to the side of a dam or placed downstream.

While water elevation drop isn't as great as seen in traditional hydraulic power dams, Meeder said, power can still be generated, and it has significant value to developers.

The application process is further along for hydropower generator at a dam northeast of Pittsburgh, Meeder said.

Preston bond would replace four middle schools

If approved, state to give county $24M

BY MICHELLE WOLFORD
The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD — "Don't Worry Be Happy" was a hit song.

Chinese students rallied for democracy in Tiananmen Square, and Gen. Colin Powell was named the first black chair of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It was 1989 — and the last time Preston County voters approved a school construction bond — the bond that built Preston High.

In November, they'll be asked to authorize the sale of bonds to make funds available to replace the county's aging middle schools — middle schools that were high schools before they were consolidated into PHS.

The last bond vote in the county — in 2008 — was a squeaker, failing by only 38 votes.

This time around, the $39.6 million bond would bring with it another $24 million from the state

ELECTION 2010

School Building Authority (SBA), for a total of $63.6 million to replace and improve the county's schools.

Those funds are contingent on the county's voters approving the bond.

"Failure to do so will put us out of the picture for another year and the long process starts all over again," said Barry Weber, of Bruce-ton Mills, who chairs a committee working toward the bond's passage. "In the meantime, our status quo will continue and we will continue to lose our greatest asset — our students."

A new South Preston area school is the first priority. The facility, to be built on the site of Tunnelton-Denver Elementary, would accommodate about 350 pre-kindergarten through eighth-grade students from Tunnelton-Denver and South Preston Middle schools.

The Preston County Board of Education closed South Preston Middle School (SPMS) in January 2009, at the behest of the state board, after structural issues were identified.

Its students are now in two facilities — sixth- and seventh-graders at Tunnelton-Denver and eighth-graders in the SPMS gym building, which is beside the closed school.

East Preston Middle School is also set for replacement at its current location, in Terra Alta. A new West Preston Middle School/Valley Elementary would be built in Arthurdale if voters approve the bond.

All four middle schools once served as high schools. South Preston was built in 1916, West in 1918, East in 1925 and Central in 1922.

Also set for the replacement is Central Preston Middle School, another facility closed by the board for structural issues. CPMS students attend classes at Preston High School.

The new school would be next to the Preston High School campus and would also accommodate fifth-graders from Kingwood Elementary.

The bond, Weber said, "has been in development for over a year and citizens from every sector of the county were challenged to come together, develop a bond in which each community gets something and is affordable in order to keep our community schools. We achieved this goal and, at the same time, saved the taxpayers $10 million over the previous bond by differentiating wants and needs and keeping the students of Preston County in center focus."

According to ballot information, other projects contingent on the bond are construction projects including but not limited to:

■ Aurora preK-8 School — a new platform stage, locker rooms, music art lab and technology education lab. Estimated cost: $1,547,750.

■ Bruce-ton preK-8 School — a new gymnasium with safe schools entry foyer, locker rooms, prekindergarten classrooms, and a sprinkler system. Estimated cost: $5,100,000.

■ Fellowsville preK-4 School — new media/technology lab, art/music classroom to replace modulars and fire suppression system. Estimated cost: $102,000.

Greer to send employees letter refuting Manchin campaign claims

BY DAVID BEARD
The Dominion Post

Greer Industries involved itself in the John Raese-Joe Manchin race for the U.S. Senate on Tuesday afternoon, announcing it will be sending a letter to the employees of Greer and related companies regarding Manchin campaign ads.

which is comprised of steel, lime and asphalt companies — along with Seneca Caverns, the Pikewood National Golf Club and several media operations, including The Dominion Post.

The letter will go out to all employees, not just those working for Greer, a company spokeswoman said.

Executive Vice President Robert Gwynne says, "Within the last few weeks, Greer Industries Inc. and related companies have received correspondence and telephone calls from employees regarding political ads aired by Mr. Joe Manchin. These ads are attempts by the state's governor to impugn some of the finest companies in the state of West Virginia and for that matter in America with statements or inferences that our mine sites have had excessive safety violations and fines or that our companies have 'repeatedly failed to pay workers' compensation.' These ads are misleading at best and are at worst, with regard to certain facts, untrue, false and defamatory."

The ads come from the Manchin campaign and from the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee. One Manchin campaign ad mentions the safety violations. Ads from both refer to the worker's comp issue.

Greer operates five lime and limestone mines. Gwynne wrote, "The Manchin political ad regarding safety has caused a great deal of unnecessary concern and worry among our employees, their families, and loved ones, that our companies' working conditions are less than safe."

He said Greer has received a total of 48 safety awards, including 19 from the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration; two from the state Miners Health, Safety and Training (MSHA) office; and three from the offices of Govs. Caperton and Underwood.

The ad, titled "John Raese is bad for mine workers," states that Greer mines received 627 safety violations — it doesn't specify if they're state or federal — with proposed fines totaling $98,160.

Gwynne responds that those figures cover a span of 15 years at all five mines. On the other hand, he wrote, the ad was filmed at Eastern Associated Coal's Federal No. 2 coal mine in Monongalia County. Gwynne says Federal No. 2 has had 757 state and federal violations in just over a year. MSHA records show it had 372 federal violations in 2009 and 466 to date in 2010, with $277,777 in penalties for both years.

A footnote in the Manchin ad notes that the workers' compensation issue stems from a July 1999 Associated Press article. The ads say "Raese's companies have repeatedly failed to pay workers' compensation."

Gwynne notes that the actual story doesn't use the words "companies" or "repeatedly."

"Moreover," Gwynne wrote, "the payment mentioned in the story or the article was either a reporting error or the failure of the Workers' Compensation Fund to appropriately bill our companies. Our companies have always been in good standing with the Workers' Compensation Fund, and none of our employees have ever been deprived of the benefits or protections of the Workers' Compensation Act."

Raese's campaign declined to comment on the letter, saying it's a company matter and it would be more appropriate to let Gwynne speak.

Manchin's campaign did not respond to requests for comment in time for this report.

W.Va. GOP says it won't appeal ballot ruling

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — West Virginia's Republican Party is dropping its challenge of the state's general election ballot because the party needs to concentrate on promoting its slate of congressional candidates, state Chairman Mike Stuart said Tuesday.

GOP officials believe voters in the Nov. 2 election should be given two ballots, one for the regular general election and a second for the special U.S. Senate election. Two ballots would prevent straight-ticket voting from applying to both elections, officials argued. Democrats outnumber Republicans in the state by nearly 2-to-1.

Kanawha Circuit Judge Jennifer Bailey rejected the GOP's challenge, ruling last week that Secretary of State Natalie Tennant's decision to go with a single ballot was legal. Tennant is a Democrat.

The GOP could have appealed to the state Supreme Court or federal court, but Stuart said Tuesday the party couldn't "afford for this ballot issue to remain the central point of this campaign."

Instead, the GOP needs to continue opposing President Barack Obama's policies on the environment and health care, and challenge the Democratic U.S. Senate and House campaigns of Gov. Joe Manchin, Rep. Nick Rahall and state Sen. Mike Oliverio.

Manchin is seeking to fill the remaining two-plus years in the late Democratic U.S. Sen. Robert Byrd's term. Byrd, the Senate's longest serving member, died on June 28. He would have faced re-election in 2012.

Challenging Manchin are Republican Morgantown businessman John Raese, Mountain Party candidate Jesse Johnson and Constitution Party candidate Jeff Becker.

Rahall is seeking his 18th term in the House. Oliverio is hoping to keep West Virginia's 1st Congressional District in Democrat hands following his primary defeat of longtime Democratic Rep. Alan Mollohan.

Republican Rep. Shelley Moore Capito is seeking a sixth term representing the state's 2nd Congressional District.

Stuart said if the GOP's congressional candidates are not successful, the state "will be forever doomed to a devastated economy where coal is targeted for destruction."

Rasmussen poll: Raese leads Manchin in Senate race

BY DAVID BEARD
The Dominion Post

Another poll shows Republican John Raese ahead of Democrat Joe Manchin in the race to fill the late Sen. Robert C. Byrd's unexpired term.

A Rasmussen Reports poll puts Raese ahead 48 percent to 46 percent, with 4 percent undecided.

The Democratic-leaning Public Policy Polling (PPP) poll in late September also showed Raese in the lead, 46-43. PPP surveyed 1,397 likely West Virginia voters from Sept. 18-19, with a margin of error of 2.6 percent.

Rasmussen surveyed 500 likely voters Monday, with a margin of error of 4.5 percent.

This is the fifth Rasmussen poll in the race, and the first showing Raese in the lead. An initial poll in July had Manchin ahead 51 percent to 35 percent. The second showed Manchin's lead thinning, 48-42. Poll three closed it up even more, 50-45. Manchin pulled ahead a bit in the fourth, 50-43.

The Republican-leaning Rasmussen Reports said the new numbers move the race from "Solid Democratic" back to "Toss-Up" in its 2010 Senate Balance of Power rankings.

"This race has been closer than expected for weeks," Rasmussen said, "as Manchin, despite his popularity with voters in the state, faces an electorate that is even unhappier with the national Democratic agenda than voters in most other parts of the country."

Manchin spokeswoman Lara Ramsburg said in an e-mail, "There will be a number of different types of polls between now and Nov. 2, but the only one that counts is the one that takes place on Election Day. This race is really pretty simple. Joe Manchin is running for the United States Senate to fight for what's best for West Virginia. John Raese is running for the United States Senate to fight for what's best for John Raese — and the voters of West Virginia know the difference."

Ramsburg, a former Manchin staffer who left in 2009 to work for Mylan Inc., recently joined the campaign, taking a leave of absence from Mylan, according to reports.

Raese spokesman Jim Doran said his response is the same as in previous polls. "We knew this was never going to be a slam dunk. ... People are responding to John's message of repealing Obamacare," reducing regulation and cutting taxes.

John Raese and David Raese co-own the West Virginia Newspaper Publishing Co., publisher of The Dominion Post. The Raese brothers also co-own the West Virginia Radio Corp. and Greer Industries Inc.

CAT drives the Dow

Today

Window dressing
The last few days of a quarter bring a rush of trading known as "window dressing," or buying and selling by institutional investors who want to show the best returns to clients. The third quarter's end Thursday may bring heavy selling if the market sticks to the pattern reported by The Stock Trader's Almanac. The Dow has fallen on the quarter's final day in eight of the last 12 years.

Dow point changes on the last day of the third quarter

American Greetings earnings

Cost cuts at greeting card maker American Greetings allowed the company to triple its fiscal first-quarter earnings despite a 4 percent drop in revenue. When the company reports its latest results today, the forecast is for earnings of 38 cents per share, down from 40 cents a year ago.

Operating EPS $0.40 (2Q '09) vs. est. $0.38 (2Q '10)
Price-to-earnings ratio: 8.1 based on past 12 months' results
Dividend: $0.56 Div. Yield: 2.7%

These days, when the Dow Jones industrial average has a good day, it may be due to one stock: Caterpillar. The equipment maker is just one of 30 stocks in the Dow, but it gets credit for 40 percent of the index's advance this year. Without Caterpillar, the Dow would be up just 2.5 percent instead of 4 percent. Take out gains from the next three biggest contributors — McDonald's, DuPont and Boeing — and the Dow would be down for 2010.

These stocks get to be so important partly because of their weighting, which is the value a stock is given in the index based on its price. They also have a big impact because they've gained so much. Caterpillar, which closed Tuesday at $79.67, is one of the Dow's more expensive stocks and it's up 40 percent, the index's biggest gain this year. The importance of one stock can raise questions about how relevant the Dow is as a market indicator. Market pros tend to focus on the S&P 500. It weights stocks according to a company's market value, or its stock price multiplied by the number of shares. The S&P also spreads its bets over 500 stocks so a single stock has less power than a Dow stock.

"You can get some distorted results," Jack Ablin, a strategist at Harris Private Bank, says of the Dow. But, "I still follow it." Over time, the Dow and the S&P 500 tend to move fairly close together. The S&P is up 3 percent this year.

BOROFF

"All of this is absolutely overwhelming," Boroff said. "I look around the room and I see so many faces from so many places. ... What a range and what a difference it has made in my life."

Garry Hogue, of Clarksburg, said he has known Boroff since about 1976. The two served in the special forces together, and he was a member of the group that bestowed Boroff's promotion.

"He was a man that you'd follow about anywhere," Hogue said. "And there's not many you'd say that about."

Carol Allen, Boroff's executive secretary, presented Boroff with a gift from all the city's staff, which included a gift card and a leather wallet with Boroff's initials on it.

Allen said the city manager was a great boss and he will be missed.

"I'm wearing black because I'm officially in mourning," she joked.

Local legislators presented Boroff with a certificate of appreciation from Gov. Joe Manchin.

And Mayor Bill Byrne and city council members gave Boroff and his wife a two-night stay at Pipestem Resort State Park in southern West Virginia.

Council members thanked Boroff for his accessibility, professionalism and continued patience.

"You are a gem of a city manager," Councilman Charlie Byrer said. "And not just statewide, but in the country."

Boroff said he would spend his final two days making notes on the city's current projects to leave behind for his successor.

Assistant City Manager Jeff Mikorski will serve as Morgantown's interim city manager once Boroff retires. City Council appointed Mikorski to the position last week.

they might be able to get a permit in a year, Meeder said the process takes a few years to complete.

Several organizations — including the corps, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and environmental groups — review the applications, he said.

Meeder said the corps looks to make sure any proposal doesn't impair the existing structure, doesn't affect its operations and will not impact the environment.

A developer's first step would be to obtain a preliminary permit, said Celeste Miller, a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission spokeswoman. There would be an opportunity for public input before the permit is issued. The permit would not allow construction or the operation of a generator, but would give the commission three years to study the feasibility of adding a generator.

Once the group receives a permit, it could try to obtain a license, Miller said. A license would allow them to construct and run a generator, but there would be more opportunities for public input before a license is issued.

"My hot flashes have disappeared"
Announcing a breakthrough in menopausal relief

Clinically proven to safely reduce hot flashes by up to 85%<sup>1†</sup>

Barbara W., Washington

Now there's a new supplement that's been proven to provide relief from menopausal symptoms. One tiny pill a day takes the heat away and brings back the better you.†

The scientific research is clear. i-cool™ is the menopause relief product with an active ingredient (geniVida® non-soy genistein) that's been clinically proven in a double-blind, placebo-controlled study in North America. In that study<sup>1</sup>, there were significant reductions in hot flashes and night sweats

<sup>1</sup> 25% of patients taking geniVida for 12 weeks had an 85% or more reduction in hot flashes. Elliott, J., et al; Genistein reduces the number and duration of hot flashes in peri-post menopausal women in a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled, multi-center trial. Experimental Biology 2009, LB471, 4/09

In a second study among 210 members of the Red Hot Mamas® educational organization, geniVida, the active ingredient in i-cool, showed similar results.

How does i-cool™ work?

During and after menopause, a woman's estrogen levels drop. This drop often brings on discomforting symptoms such as hot flashes, night sweats and mood changes, as well as the rapid loss of bone that can lead to bone health problems. The pure genistein in i-cool combats this drop in estrogen and alleviates, if not eliminates, miserable menopausal symptoms. Plus, i-cool has been clinically proven to maintain bone mineral density and bone mineral composition in postmenopausal women.†

"i-cool™ saved my marriage!"

Amy S., from California, is a firm believer in i-cool. "Hot flashes and night sweats are incredibly uncomfortable. When I started to get them, they really caused me to stress out, which had an impact on my work and sleep. And when I had a hot flash when I was around my family, I took it out on them, which wasn't fair to them. When my husband brought home a supplement with geniVida, I started taking it. It started to work in just a couple of weeks. Now I have a more normal life with much fewer and less intense hot flashes. I'm happy and my family is happy."

One tiny pill a day takes the heat away and brings back the better you.

In clinical research<sup>1</sup>, i-cool demonstrated a significant decrease in psychological, anxiety and depression scores vs. those taking a placebo.

What i-cool™ doesn't contain

i-cool does not contain soy or other allergens. It also doesn't contain black cohosh, which has been the subject of many recent articles. A study funded by the National Institutes of Health found that black cohosh, by itself or with other botanicals, failed to relieve hot flashes and night sweats in postmenopausal women or those approaching menopause. And, of course, i-cool does not contain synthetic estrogen. i-cool can be taken with other supplements.

Goals, not polls, WVU soccer coach LeBlanc's concern

WVU's MARLON LeBLANC is no different from most Division I men's college soccer coaches.

He doesn't rush to his computer every morning to check on the latest national rankings. If he had done so Tuesday, he would have discovered that his 5-2-0 Mountaineers had cracked the National Soccer Coaches Association of America-Hendrick Cars.com — now there's a combination — poll at No. 21.

It's the first time WVU has been ranked in a national poll since October 2009, but it's unlikely LeBlanc interrupted training Tuesday to inform his players.

"I couldn't really care less, to be honest with you," LeBlanc said before WVU's most recent game, a 5-0 victory against Big East Conference rival DePaul, on Friday, at Dick Dlesk Soccer Stadium.

"Polls mean nothing. I can say that because I'm on the national committee for the Big East for the NSCAA poll. I make no bones about it. I don't have any problem saying that. I'm more concerned with us winning games and continuing to get better."

LeBlanc's Mountaineers are one of four Big East teams ranked in the NSCAA poll, joining Connecticut (No. 3), Louisville (No. 6) and St. John's (No. 18). South Florida and Notre Dame are receiving votes.

The Monmouth team WVU fell to, 1-0 in overtime, in the season opener, is ranked 10th. James Madison, which lost to the Mountaineers, 2-1, earlier this month, is ranked 25th. UNC Wilmington, which edged WVU, 3-2, in double-overtime, is also garnering votes.

The Mountaineers were not ranked in the Soccer Times poll released Monday, but they are receiving votes. All of which means the Mountaineers should be in good shape when the first Ratings Percentage Index (RPI) comes out, in the next month.

"Our RPI has to be pretty strong at the moment," said LeBlanc, whose team is trying to earn the school's first NCAA trip since 2007. "The hopes are, the teams we have played continue to win games like they have been so far this year and the rest takes care of itself."

"The polls are great for media and recruiting and everything that really matters except for getting into the NCAA tournament. It's not the BCS. It's more like basketball. I think last year we were 10th or 12th in the [men's basketball] polls at one stage but No. 1 in the RPI. It's the same for us."

This much is certain: WVU is beginning to generate some excitement around town. A young team that was decimated by injury and stumbled down the stretch a year ago has grown up considerably.

After a difficult start to the season offensively, the Mountaineers have sprung to life. They tied a Dick Dlesk record with five goals in the DePaul shutout.

"I don't know if it shows what we can do offensively; it's still a long season," junior defender and captain Raymon Gaddis said after the DePaul win. "It showed what we can do on one particular night. We bounced back and continued to do it. It shows we have been scoring this season very often. That's a good thing."

WVU has already scored more goals this season (15) than it did in 18 matches (13 goals) a year ago. The biggest contributor offensively has been sophomore forward Peabo Doue, with five, three more than he did all of 2009.

Five different players scored in the DePaul whitewashing, and that's a positive sign for LeBlanc and his players.

"Five goals by five different people, it shows that it's not just one person doing all the work," said sophomore forward Shadow Sebele, who scored his first goal in the DePaul game. "It's a whole team effort. It's not just Peabo. It's not just me. We have a lot of weapons. If somebody's off, somebody else can step up and do the work."

Hawks' Kehl a Mohigans-killer

Leads victory in volleyball rivalry match

UNIVERSITY 3 MORGANTOWN 0

With a name like Kehl, she was bound to be one heck of a volleyball player — and that's exactly what University High senior Hannah Kehl is.

In volleyball, a spike that results in a point is called a "kill," which sounds remarkably similar to the UHS star's last name.

"It's kind of like Kehl, 'The Kill,' get it?" UHS head coach Don Godfrey said with a chuckle.

The play on her name is nothing new to Kehl, who has dealt with fans and teammates punning her name since the beginning of her volleyball career.

"They always say things like,

Week off a chance for WVU to mend

WVU FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK

BY ED OWENS
The Dominion Post

The WVU football team is finally getting a little rest.

The Mountaineers are off until UNLV comes to Mountaineer Field, on Oct. 9, giving the players their first break since the season began.

And it couldn't come at a better time.

WVU was already banged up heading into Saturday's game, at LSU, and while the team didn't suffer any long-term injuries in the game, the Mountaineers haven't had much chance to get healthy.

Left guard Josh Jenkins and defensive end Will Clarke didn't dress against LSU, and tight end Tyler Urban was sidelined by a knee injury. Defensive end Julian Miller (hip) and linebacker Pat Miller (knee) both played with existing injuries. Running back Noel Devine suffered a bone bruise on his toe when he was hit out of bounds in the first quarter.

Devine is receiving regular treatments for his injury and it does not appear it will be a lingering problem, though his performance against LSU was visibly affected.

"I would have liked to have gone in there with full forces," WVU head coach Bill Stewart said. "We certainly missed Josh Jenkins, then Noel went down and you try to regroup and carry on the best you can. I wish we had had him for the full 60 minutes, but we didn't."

Miller, who injured his hip against Maryland, in week three, recovered quickly enough to play against LSU, though he wasn't near 100 percent. Miller, who suffered from muscle spasms and

Rodriguez picking up her scoring

WVU 3, PITT 0

BY TODD MURRAY
The Dominion Post

WVU sophomore midfielder Bri Rodriguez's play on the soccer pitch has often been described as poetry in motion.

Her ability to control the ball, bend brilliant passes around defenders and set up teammates for goals helped make her the NSCAA/adidas national prep player of the year, in 2008, at Waubonsie (Ill.) Valley High.

It also helped shape her on-field mentality: Pass first, shoot for the goal second.

Bri Rodriguez

WVU coach Nikki Izzo-Brown has worked to change that mindset almost from the moment BriRod — as she is known to teammates and coaches — arrived on campus, in the summer of 2009.

"There's pretty play, and there's scoring goals," Izzo-Brown said. "She can find any pass, but the bottom line is, we have to score."

That's what she's doing now. Rodriguez scored her team-leading fourth goal on a chilly Tuesday night, as WVU shut out Big East Conference rival Pitt, 3-0, before a Dick Dlesk Soccer Stadium crowd of 426.

Tuesday's goal was the fifth of Rodriguez's career, but it meant so much more than the first four for one important reason.

Speedy Hawks' boys buzz past Bees

Currence, Zerkel, Cognac get goals

UNIVERSITY 3 EAST FAIRMONT 1

BY ANDREW BARNES
For The Dominion Post

The University High School boys' soccer team is finding its stride as it prepares for the post-season. It found a quick rhythm and took down the East Fairmont Bees, 3-1, at Mylan Pharmaceuticals Stadium, on Tuesday.

The Hawks came out strong against the Bees, pressuring EFHS goalie Johnny Rinck with shots from the side. UHS struck first with a score in the 11th minute, off the foot of D.J. Currence. UHS forward Aaron Zerkel beat the EFHS defenders for a downfield pass, only to miss the shot off the side of the goalpost. Currence quickly came up to strike a rebound shot into the back of the net.

The Hawks kept up the pressure on the Bees with ball control and crossing passes. Zerkel netted the second Hawks goal, in the 25th minute.

"They played pretty well," UHS coach Michael Johnston said. "They're getting on track on what we need to do in the games to get on the winning track."

The Bees couldn't counter the Hawks' attacks, mustering only one shot on goal in the first half. UHS had 12.

The Hawks lost much of their offensive aggressiveness in the second half, though, mustering only a few shot attempts. The Hawks let up on the intensity and failed to set up plays.

"A little letdown, but we will try to address that," Johnston said. "It can't keep happening though. We've got to keep the intensity up."

East Fairmont improved its counterattack in the second half. In the 52nd minute, Bees forward Tony Hayes came with a quick strike in the middle of the goalie box to pull EFHS one behind.

Hayes was hurt on the play, but left the field under his own power.

2 UConn football players charged in fight

BRIEFS

Associated Press

A fight between the University of Connecticut football team's place kicker and a backup linebacker led to the arrests of both Tuesday on charges of breach of the peace. Kicker David Teggart, 21, and linebacker Jerome Williams, 20, were charged with misdemeanors following a fight in a parking lot at the Hilltop Apartments complex, where about 1,200 students live. UConn coach Randy Edsall said Teggart, of Northborough, Mass., and Williams, of Burlington Township, N.J., were fighting each other. He called the tussle "crazy stuff that kids will do" and said any discipline will be handled internally, although neither player had been suspended from the team. "I don't like what happened, but at least there was no one else involved," Edsall said. "It was just those two guys. No one got hurt. No one's got black eyes, none of that stuff. So it was like a cat fight." Teggart and Williams were released on $500 bonds and are due in court Oct. 12.

He was hospitalized for two days.

■ Missouri indefinitely suspended senior safety Jasper Simmons from the team. The school did not disclose the reason but said the violation was not related to legal troubles.

THE 19TH HOLE

Hospice Care Corp. 22nd Dr. D.R. Davis

For the first time in the 22-year history of the tournament, there was a hole-in-one on one of the prize holes.

Mike Peddicord, of Kingwood, said he was barefoot when he used a 3 iron to make the 185-yard air drive that landed directly in the cup of the 11th hole. Hospice Care volunteer Savannah McCrobie verified the ace.

"This was my first hole-in-one in my golfing career," Peddicord said. "Too bad it wasn't for the $10,000; but a set of irons is pretty nice."

Peddicord won his choice of either a driver or a set of irons from Nike. He chose a set of irons. Players had the chance to win prizes on four holes that also included $10,000, two $500 Visa Gift Cards and a Bose Wave stereo. Hartley Insurance sponsored the gift prize holes while Insurance Center sponsored the $10,000 hole.

Dick's Sporting Goods Tour Championship

Pikewood National's Christopher McGinnis (77) was in 25th place after the first day of the tournament, at Green Oaks Country Club, in Verona, Pa. (Par 71, 6,475 yards).

Gordon Vietmeier (67), of The Club at Nevillewood, was in the lead. Brad Westfall (72), of Bel Meadow Country Club, was tied for eighth in the 36-hole tournament.

Hawks pass Mohigans in grid ratings

PREP ROUNDUP

The Dominion Post

University High's comeback victory against a good Hedgesville team Friday vaulted the Hawks past Morgantown and up to No. 3 in the new West Virginia Secondary School Activities Commission high school football ratings.

UHS sits just a few tenths of a point behind No. 1 Martinsburg and No. 2 George Washington in Class AAA. The Hawks trailed Hedgesville, 21-7, before scoring four straight touchdowns. UHS then held off the Eagles deep in its own territory in the game's final seconds.

Morgantown, meanwhile, absorbed a 35-7 loss at Steubenville, Ohio, and slipped into an eighth-place tie with Brooke.

The first 16 teams in the ratings make the state playoffs. Complete list, Page 6-B.

Men face Duquesne in soccer

WVU NOTEBOOK

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Riding a four-match unbeaten streak, the WVU men's soccer team plays a nonconference match against Duquesne today, in Pittsburgh.

The Mountaineers (5-2-0, 1-0-0 Big East) won their most recent match, on Friday, defeating DePaul, 5-0. Freshmen Julio Arjona, sophomores Peabo Doue and Shadow Sebele, and juniors Matt Drake and Franck Tayou scored for the Mountaineers. Redshirt senior Zach Johnson preserved the shutout.

Doue leads the Mountaineers with his five goals and two assists. Doue is also tied for the Big East lead in goals. Franck Tayou has three goals and Drake has two. Sebele and sophomore Uwem Etuk each have four assists to lead the team. Eleven Mountaineers have recorded at least a point this season.

The Mountaineers are 4-1-1 all-time against the Dukes (4-3-0).

Simon Gomez leads the Dukes with five goals and one assist, while Stefan Lundberg has three goals and two assists.

Volleyball

WVU is ranked No. 1 in digs per set in the nation in the NCAA statistics released this week.

"I am proud of our squad for having such a great mentality defensively," coach Jill Kramer said. The Mountaineers (11-6, 1-1 Big East) collect 19.94 digs per set. Baylor is second (18.85) and Dartmouth third (18.87).

Senior Bonnie West leads the Mountaineers and is third in the Big East in digs, with 277 (5.13 per set).

WVU plays at Seton Hall and Rutgers this weekend.

'Hannah Kill,' or 'Kehl, The Kill,' " she said, laughing. "They've made signs: 'Kill it, Kehl.' "

Forget the wordplay: Morgantown High got its fill of her play Tuesday night, as Kehl led UHS to a 3-0 victory against its crosstown rival.

Kehl kept the Mohigans (4-10-1, NCAC 4-2) scrambling all evening as she piled up 11 kills and eight aces.

"In the first game, she was a lot of trouble for us and she picked us apart," MHS coach B.J. Campione said.

The Hawks (12-4-2, NCAC 6-0) charged out to a huge lead in the first set with a 17-2 run and eventually won, 25-13.

Three of Kehl's kills came in that first set, along with two aces, a block and a number of other points on touch plays.

It was more of the same in the second set as UHS built a 12-2 lead. Kehl had six kills and three aces.

"She's our go-to girl and you could see why in the first two games," Godfrey said.

But midway through the set, something changed, and MHS used a late 7-1 rally to make things interesting. University did manage to hold on for a 25-20 win.

"I thought we played really great in the first game-and-a-half," Kehl said. "Then we kind of fizzled out. We need to step it up and make sure that doesn't happen again."

In the third set, UHS got back to business and stormed to an 11-3 lead. Again, back came the Mohigans.

"The first game we played pretty well. The second game we started out the same way, but then for some reason we lost our focus," Godfrey said.

"After we got up big, I guess our girls just said, 'Well, hey, I guess we can do anything we want,' and MHS made it a game again."

Nonetheless, in the end the deficit was too much for the the Mohigans to erase, and the Hawks won, 25-23.

"It's frustrating to dig those kinds of holes," Campione said. "Down [11 points] in the second game, down [eight] in the third ... take those holes out of the equation and the outcome could've been a lot different."

"On the positive side, we did fight back."

Kehl had two kills and three aces in the final set. Teammate Abbey Watkins finished with 20 assists.

Ramsey, Ware goals pace UHS

UNIVERSITY 4

EAST FAIRMONT 0

BY ASHWIN JAGANNATHAN
For The Dominion Post

By University High's standards, it wasn't a dominant performance. Still, the Hawks' girls' soccer team walked off Mylan Pharmaceutical Field with a 4-0 Senior Night victory Tuesday evening, against East Fairmont.

The Hawks have nine seniors on their roster, and they all started for this game. Ashley Ramsey and Kate Ware, both seniors, each netted two goals to account for all of the Hawks' scoring.

University first got on the board 15 minutes into the game, when Ware kicked the ball toward the goal. Ramsey got control and kicked the ball over the head of East Fairmont's goalie, with Ware gaining the assist.

Before that goal, East Fairmont had gotten a couple of shots on goal and appeared to be holding its own. After the goal, University began to put the clamps on offensively.

Roughly 10 minutes later, Kaylynn Petrisin led a breakaway chance for the Hawks. She split a couple of defenders with a pass ahead to Ware, who capitalized on a wide-open shot from point-blank range to give University a two-goal advantage. The Hawks would take this lead into halftime.

In the second half, East Fairmont began to withdraw its offensive players and, load most of its players on the defensive side of the field. While it may have been confusing to see the Bees playing so defensively while trailing, UHS coach Ray Petrisin said the tactic didn't surprise him.

"They have a lot of injuries," he said, "So they were being realistic about their chances."

Regardless of the Bees' defensive stance, the Hawks continued to threaten. University earned a good chance at a goal three minutes into the half, but came up just short.

Ten minutes in, UHS gained a corner kick. Regan Budig, the Hawks' corner-kick specialist, perfectly set up Ramsey for a header, and Ramsey converted, to put the Hawks ahead, 3-0. University earned its final goal with 13 minutes left in the half.

Ramsey said winning on Senior Night "feels good, like any other game. But it's a bigger deal."

BUZZ

This was the extent of the Bees' offense. They mustered only a few more shots.

The Hawks struggled as well, failing to set up effective shots and letting passes get away.

"We had tons of chances that we didn't finish," Zerkel said. "After the first half, being up by two, we just slowed down when we should've kept going."

The Hawks still kept the ball away from East Fairmont and found an occasional opportunity for scoring. Their speed slowly wore down EFHS defenders, forcing them to make mistakes and commit some ugly penalties.

In the 69th minute, UHS capped the scoring with a penalty kick from Andrew Cognac to go up, 3-1.

"I think they are getting into a rhythm with how they need to play in the field," Johnston said. "This is the time of the year whenever the guys are getting on the same page. That helps out a results but could see Rodriguez's confidence in her ability to score growing.

"Last year, I knew the ability Bri had," Izzo-Brown said. "I think she was just hesitant about her capabilities to finish. I really think the confidence she has and how she goes to goal has really brought us to another level. She's our leading goal scorer. That shows you right there her mentality has changed, and she's looking to get after that net."

Rodriguez won't try to claim that she's a total convert to the shoot-first style of play, but ...

"I think now I have a better balance," she said. "I wouldn't say I'm always goal-first, but I know last year I can honestly say I was pass-first. This year, I'm looking for whatever's open instead of just looking to pass first."

She enjoyed the best of both worlds in helping WVU (5-4-1, 1-1-1 Big East) to its first conference victory of the season, against the hated Panthers (3-7-1, 0-3-0). Rodriguez scored a goal and assisted on Bry McCarthy's shot that staked the Mountaineers to a 1-0 advantage.

McCarthy, a sophomore defender, was part of Rodriguez's recruiting class, and both started as freshmen a year ago. McCarthy understands how important Rodriguez's scoring and passing is to the Mountaineers' success.

"Rod is a natural soccer player," said McCarthy, whose goal came on a shot from 14 yards out. "She's very good at what she does. She's good at finding the back of the net."

"She's good at finding players to find the back of the net. She loves passing the ball. Sometimes I think she would rather get the assist. She is so dangerous either way. She brings so much to this team. She owns our midfield. She is so good to have going forward in the attack."

Junior forward Blake Miller scored the Mountaineers' final goal, with 6:57 to play. The players and coaches cherished the three-goal output, especially after WVU scored only two goals in the past three games.

The output was even more special considering this was WVU's third game in six days.

"This team showed a lot of character and fought through things and worked hard and worked smart," said Izzo-Brown, whose teams have never lost at home to Pitt. "I was really proud of how hard they worked for having that many miles on their legs."

Treatment for back and neck pain ranges from "conservative care," (things like exercises, flexibility, and postural re-education) to very invasive measures - such as back surgery. Most of the time, your doctor will start your treatment as conservatively as possible, and, based on your back or neck's response, will determine your need for more invasive measures. Join us to discuss physical therapy options as part of your conservative treatment plan.

His closest teammate was Cameron Greza (155, 18:56), followed by Logan Moore (248, 20:20), Stewart Lynch (258, 20:40), Eric Libell (260, 20:47), William Burns (261, 20:48) and Brandon Nicholas (266, 21:35).

The Mohigans finished 40th out of 41 boys' teams.

University High's Jordan Brown-Stobbe took 71st place, in 18:08, followed by fellow Hawks Andy Paladino (90, 18:19), Patrick Wells (164, 19:04), Ty Nagy (193, 19:27), Dan Nowak (219, 19:52), Alex Cheslock (242, 20:12) and Takuma Katagiri (251, 20:26). The UHS boys finished 31st out of 41 teams.

tightness in his back, admitted to feeling about 80 percent physically. He said he wasn't worried about potentially making the injury worse, but that it was just a matter of managing the pain.

"It wasn't going to keep me out but it was something that I had to work through and rehab back," Miller said. "It's something you're constantly dealing with. It's something that you hope loosens up but, for the most part, you're feeling it on every step and every hit. But when you get down there in front of that crowd and you know what's at stake and the type of game it is, you want to go out there and try to produce for your teammates."

Miller did not make a tackle against the Tigers.

While Miller coped with his injury, Lazear made his first appearance of the season for the Mountaineers. He had been recovering from a bone bruise suffered in fall camp and had a solo tackle.

"I watched the film and I watched how he ran," Stewart said. "He was physical and he had a tackle or two in there. I was real pleased with the way that [Lazear] played. He played hard."

Stewart hopes Devine and Miller will be back at full strength against the Rebels and expects to see constant progress, especially as it relates to conditioning, by Lazear.

Jenkins, who underwent arthroscopic knee surgery early this past week, could be back on the field in time to play against UNLV, though Stewart would rather have him return at 100 percent in time to open the Big East slate, against South Florida, on Oct. 14.

"I'm expecting him back for the UNLV game but I really want him to be ready for the South Florida game," Stewart said. "Not that we'd ever overlook an opponent but that South Florida game, being our first Big East game, we'd like to have all of our starters back intact."

Loss still lingers

The aftereffects of the 20-17 loss at LSU can still be felt around the WVU football offices. But while Stewart and his staff aren't happy with the outcome, no one is questioning the team's effort against the Tigers.

"I still have a hard time letting that one go but it's time to let it go," Stewart said. "The ball game is behind us, and I'm real pleased and real proud of the effort and the intensity with which the Mountaineers played."

WVU's defense, in particular, seized its opportunity to shine in the national spotlight. The Mountaineers held LSU quarterback Jordan Jefferson to 10-of-22 passing for 75 yards and came up with a pair of interceptions. The lone touchdown the defense allowed came after WVU's offense turned over the ball on its 7-yard line. LSU's longest drive of the night stalled in the red zone and the Tigers were forced to settle for a field goal.

WVU's defense gave up only 230 yards, more than 25 below their season average heading into the game.

"We played hard, we played physical, and that's all you can ask anybody to do," Stewart said. "Our guys played with a passion, they played with discipline and they played to win. [LSU] is 10th in the country in one poll and 12th in another. And we lost by six points in what's supposed to be one of the toughest venues in all of college football."

Peterson's speed kills

Blown coverage led to LSU sophomore Patrick Peterson's punt return touchdown Saturday. Peterson's speed didn't do WVU any favors though.

"That guy is faster than our guys," Stewart said. "Our fastest guy had leverage on him and [Peterson] ran right around him just like Steve Slaton used to run around people. [Peterson] is faster than anyone on our team. No one is faster than him. Nobody."

A fiery James turns the Heat up at first practice with team

MIAMI drafted former WVU star Da'Sean Butler in the second round this year. He will be trying to make the team.

Associated Press

HURLBURT FIELD, Fla. — On Day 1, LeBron James looked perfectly comfortable in new surroundings.

He pumped his fist after passing over a double-team and setting up Joel Anthony for a dunk. He got wide-eyed after breaking free in a defensive drill for a thunderous slam that left teammates more than impressed. He shouted instructions during drills, then got into an animated argument with Dwyane Wade over a scoring dispute as practice was ending.

"That's just me," James said.

That's who the Miami Heat wanted.

The NBA's reigning two-time MVP went through his first full practice with the Heat on Tuesday, a workout so intense even coach Erik Spoelstra was dripping sweat when the first session of training camp was over, at a U.S. Air Force installation on Florida's Panhandle. A snaking line of reporters and camera crews surrounded nearly half the court, and James gave them a memorable show.

"It's not normal," James said. "It's not normal just yet. It's a new beginning for me. I don't feel like a rookie but I feel like it's a new start. I've been around training camps before, but it's not normal. You guys know it's not normal. But as the year goes on, with the team getting to know each other, I continue to get to know you ... you get more comfortable with one another."

He'd put on the Heat practice uniform before, doing so during the summer, after joining Miami and spurning an offer to remain with the Cleveland Cavaliers, essentially his hometown team and the place where he grew into a global icon during his first seven pro seasons.

And he wasn't laid-back in his first formal Miami practice. Quite the contrary.

"That's what we're trying to get from everybody, no possessions off, to have that mentality," Spoelstra said. "It was a good start."

Miami arrived 12 hours before its first practice amid fanfare, a large crowd of military personnel packed into a hangar to greet the team that decided for many reasons to hold its week-long camp about 650 miles from home.

Steelers' Batch will start Sunday

Ravens visit; Ben still has week to serve

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Mike Tomlin probably wishes his quarterback decision had been this easy all season.

Charlie Batch, buried so deep on the Steelers' depth chart that he barely practiced during training camp, will start Sunday's AFC North game, against Baltimore. Batch hasn't started successive games since midway through 2005, when Ben Roethlisberger had a knee injury.

Batch started Sunday, at Tampa Bay, only because Dennis Dixon had knee surgery this past week and Byron Leftwich was recovering from a knee injury, yet he completed 12 of 17 passes for 186 yards and three touchdowns — his first scoring passes since 2007.

Leftwich, expected to start throughout Roethlisberger's four-game suspension, is healthy, but Tomlin said Tuesday that Batch earned the right to remain in the lineup.

He did it through his play — he's 4-1 as a fill-in starter since joining the Steelers, in 2002 — and through his perseverance.

Batch played only one game the previous two seasons due to injuries, and his perceived fragility was partly why Tomlin started the inexperienced Dixon in the first two games. Batch declined to criticize the decision, nor did he complain when it seemed likely the Steelers (3-0) would cut him before Leftwich was hurt in the final preseason game, on Sept. 2.

"Guys have a great deal of confidence in him," Tomlin said. "He's a man who's taken advantage of an opportunity, and you've got to be happy for him. It's an awesome lesson learned for our young players, one I hope they're taking heed to. This league is about perseverance, this profession is about perseverance and taking advantage of opportunities when they're given. He's given them a shining, clear-cut example of that at this juncture."

Tomlin isn't second-guessing his decision to start Dixon during tight victories against Atlanta (15-9) and Tennessee (19-11), even though Batch threw for Pittsburgh's first three TD passes of the season. Batch also looked more polished and comfortable than Dixon. Dixon will be out for up to six weeks, but the Steelers don't plan to put him on the injured-reserve list.

Roethlisberger is eligible to return to practice next week, when the Steelers have a bye. He will start Oct. 17, against Cleveland.

Tomlin won't dispute that his players' determination to prove their season wouldn't be derailed by Roethlisberger's four-game suspension has played into their 3-0 start. The Steelers can go 4-0 for the first time since 1979 by beating the Ravens (2-1).

REAL FLAVOR

A taste of the plains

I AM NOT A WEST VIRGINIA native, so I say without much shame that before I moved here, I had never tasted a ramp. I now love them. Even more, I certainly never had a pepperoni roll. (They're growing on me.) But no matter how pungent or wacky regional specialties can be, I feel an obligation to respect them.

They tell stories: Of the earth and the allium bulbs that give us that garlicky promise of spring; of the cultures that made these mountains their home, however Italian pepperoni rolls might be.

I'm a flatlander from the plains of central Illinois, so my newfound appreciation of Appalachian cuisine of course sparked my wonderings: What Midwestern delicacy can I share with those in my adopted home of West Virginia? Something that does not involve a can of cream of mushroom soup?

And it didn't take long for me to recall the quintessential comfort food of my childhood: The "horseshoe." Now, before I divulge secrets of this local fare, I should say that I don't know many Illini who actually make horseshoes in their homes. Mostly, they are restaurant food, which is probably one of the reasons they are so comforting — someone else is making them for you and cleaning up afterwards.

But I knew there was a story, so in the true spirit of food investigation, I called my my parents. I pictured my mom sitting on the porch in a rocking chair, watching the thunder clouds rolling in over the cornfields, the smell of imminent rain mingling with the sound of crickets.

"Tell me the story of the horseshoe," I asked, preparing myself for cross-generational storytelling: A sort of "How to Make an American Quilt" moment. She replied, "I don't know. Google it." So together, hundreds of miles apart, we had a mutual online exploration of the cuisine of my childhood.

The horseshoe (and its smaller version, the ponyshoe) originated in the Leland Hotel in Springfield, Ill., in 1928. Some even say a 17-year-old dishwasher named Steve Tomko concocted the "delicacy."

The horseshoe is, essentially, an open-faced sandwich. It starts with a thick piece of toasted bread, topped with a hamburger patty or ham or really any other type of meat. (Not traditional, but in our home we make them by marinating a portobello mushroom cap with oil, soy sauce, and garlic and roasting it until tender). Marrying these two is a thick Welsh Rarebit sauce, completed with a handful or two of French fries.

Now this might not sound like much to you, but to me, this is as central Illinois as Abe Lincoln's beard and the whispering memories of old Route 66. Granted, the horseshoes I remember weren't haute cuisine. Somehow, the original Rarebit got replaced with oily cheese sauce, and the thick bread with a paltry slice of Wonder. But it was pure comfort. And even comfort food can be redeemed with some creative substitution.

So in celebration of local fusion cuisine, I invite you into the world of the horseshoe. And I know I'm not the only central Illinois native here. Anyone up for a horseshoe party? We can read Edgar Lee Masters poetry, swap tornado drill stories and revel in the comfort of home.

See the recipe for Welsh Rarebit Sauce in the recipe box in the lower right-hand corner of this page.

THE GRAFTON 123

Coffeehouse aims to entice more tourists into town

BY AMANDA DEPROSPERO
The Dominion Post

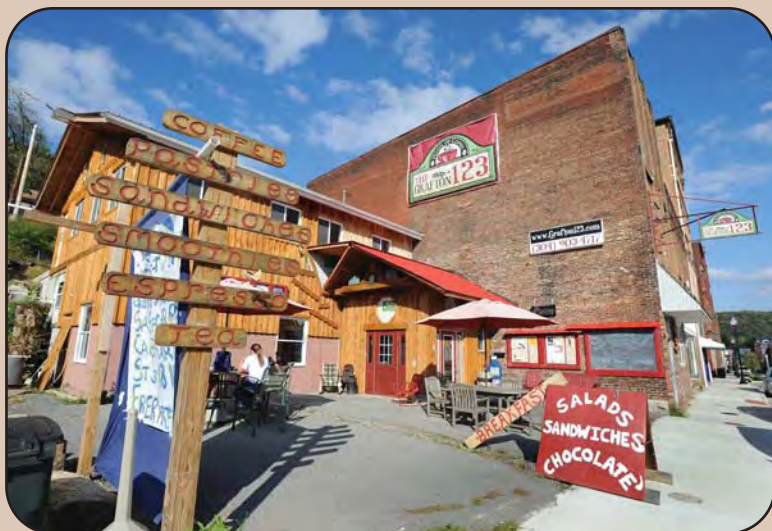

Mary Kay Stover is on a mission: Bring tourists to Grafton.

And the headquarters for that mission is a coffeehouse at 123 Main St. she's appropriately dubbed The Grafton 123.

From the central location, she and her husband, Paul, have been slowly adding to the menu, the music line-up and even the building itself. Since it opened in October 2008, it's gone from simple coffeehouse to a lunch or dinner spot for locals, a live music hangout on the weekends and a central meeting place for many organizations.

And it's all because Stover said Grafton needed a boost. After much research, she knew the coffeehouse was the way to do that, as it always seemed to be a central meeting place in other communities. After all, she said, the only way to keep people in Grafton is for the town to grow.

"We're hard-headed Appalachian folks. We're very loyal people: Steadfast, independent. But if we want our kids to stay here, we've got to be something different," she said.

She and Paul had been eyeing the W. Main Street building near the Taylor County Courthouse for awhile.

"There was a for-sale sign in the window for a good four or five years," she said.

They purchased the building in July 2007, and after "15 months of hard labor" and almost no advertising about what they were doing, they opened the coffeehouse. Now, the building, with its numerous nooks and crannies, offers several places to sit back and relax, including a book corner, a gathering area with a stage and an upstairs hangout. ## Simpler tips to take the boredom out of broccoli

BY BILL DALEY
Chicago Tribune (MCT)

Old Papa Bush got plenty of heat for dissing broccoli while in the White House, but you can't blame him, really. There are a lot of bad broccoli dishes out there. The trouble often lies in the presentation: Naked, save for a pat or two of butter, salt and pepper. Boring!

Broccoli can taste good, be fun, even, if you play around with it a bit.

Here are some easy ideas to whip broccoli into something special enough not only for a former president but your family, too. All these tips begin with a batch of cooked broccoli.

Make soup. Puree the cooked broccoli in a blender or food processor with just enough hot vegetable broth to give it a creamy, souplike consistency. Squeeze in fresh lemon juice, add cream if you want it, salt and pepper. Serve hot as is, or

Making nuts more pliable

Nuts are easier to chop and more pliable when they are warm. Heat them in the microwave for about a minute and check to see if they're warm enough. After the first minute, only microwave in increments of 30 seconds.

RECIPE BOX

WELSH RAREBIT SAUCE

(From The New Moosewood Cookbook by Mollie Katzen)

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 tsp dry mustard
- 1 1/2 cups beer or ale, at room temperature (OK if flat)

1 packed cup grated cheddar
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 medium garlic clove, minced
Salt, black pepper, and cayenne-to taste

Melt the butter in a medium sized saucepan. Sprinkle in the flour and dry mustard, whisking constantly. Add the beer or ale, and keep whisking as you bring it to a boil.

Lower the heat, and simmer for about 10 minutes, mixing frequently.

Add the remaining ingredients and stir until the cheese melts.

Drizzle, or pour (depending on your mood) over the bread, meat/mushroom and then top with potatoes.

"We have the best coffee in the world," she said. "I know this for a fact."

"My favorite menu item has to be the vanilla lattes," said regular customer and Grafton native Casey Pitzer via e-mail. "I was not a fan of coffee before The Grafton 123 opened, but now I am hooked. I think I might be a little spoiled because when I get a coffee at another coffeehouse, it never seems to be as good. Jenny [his wife] and I both think the lattes are our favorite item on the menu."

Baked goods, including cakes, cheesecakes and cookies, are also a big part of the business, along with a full menu of salads, paninis, deli sandwiches and several Mexican favorites.

Lunch specials are featured every day, and the business also offers some beer and wine items, including beer from Mountaineer Brewing Company.

Sam Simoes, the minister at Parkview Church of the Nazarene, in Grafton, said while he loves to just have a cup of plain coffee with sugar and cream, one of his favorite lunch menu items is the pear and blue cheese panini. The sweetness of the pear melds well with the blue cheese, he said, and "it's fascinating."

While the sandwich makes a tasty lunch, Simoes said he mainly visits the coffeehouse because it's a quiet place for him to work.

"I'm a minister, and when I need an office away from my office, that's where I go," he said, adding that the business also offers wireless internet.

And when he needs ideas for a column he writes, he goes to the 123 as well.

"It's the people you meet, the good experiences," he said. "The fact that there's movement and things happening that keep my interest flowing."

It's been a welcome addition to this small town, he said, where before there was "no place for us to just go and get a cup of coffee and just relax."

That's the point, Stover said.

"Grafton is such a cool little town," she said, adding that it was once a bustling place thanks to the railroad. But when the trains quit running, Grafton was left out of the loop, and the small town has been feeling the loss ever since. "We've got so much history here."

That history includes the coffeehouse building, too. It was built by Henry Colerider in 1890 as a shoe store, and was used as a bakery, an insurance agent's office and — most recently — a dentist's office.

When they purchased the building, the Stovers gutted it and started fresh. They even added on, incorporating what used to be the rock wall at the back of a parking lot into the coffeehouse.

Now, Stover said the face of this small town is changing; it's becoming more of an arts community, and it's just a short drive from bigger cities such as Morgantown, Bridgeport and Clarksburg. Plus, it's close to Tygart Lake and Dam, which receives a lot of tourists from outside the area.

She wants to bring those people to Grafton to enjoy a cup of coffee, some live music or even a nice dinner.

"I have been a life long resident of Grafton, and I am glad the coffee shop opened in our downtown," Pitzer said. "Grafton was once a vibrant city full of life, and I think the coffee shop may be the first step of bringing some of that back."

But Stover said she's still moving slow and steady with the business, and that has been working so far.

"The 123 reminds me to keep everything simple. We're very basic, homegrown, relaxed," she said. "You treat the customer as if they're right, no matter what."

That's a sentiment Simoes agreed with wholeheartedly.

"They're very welcoming to people, and I don't remember ever going there and not seeing an employee smiling and being happy you're there," he said.

"That makes me feel that all this hard work and this stuff is worth it," Stover said.

Richwood Grill hosts harvest brunch

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Richwood Grill is proud to announce the 10th event in its Global Specialty Menu Series, a benefit brunch for the Morgantown Farmers Market from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Oct. 3. All dishes will be prepared primarily with ingredients grown in Appalachia, with the majority of ingredients coming from the local farmers market. The goal is to highlight the role of Appalachian cuisine in global culture, and to bring West Virginia recognition as a culinary destination.

While Richwood Grill is known for creating exotic dishes from local ingredients, this brunch will feature traditional Appalachian breakfast dishes with all ingredients coming from small farmers in West Virginia. Ingredients will be coming from local farms and providers, such as Round Right Farm, Mon Valley Farms, Firefly Farms, New Day Bakery, WVU Aquaculture and from other farms around Appalachia.

Upcoming Global Specialty Dinners are our fifth annual Dia de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) Dinner featuring traditional cuisine of the Guadalajara region of Mexico, which will take place Oct. 28-30, and a second craft beer tasting dinner is being planned for November, with the date to be announced.

Sweet Moments on the lips could be a lifetime on the hips

PILLSBURY SWEET MOMENTS BROWNIES. Chocolate Fudge Bite-Size and Chocolate Caramel Bite-Size; and Chocolate Fudge Molten Lava, and Chocolate Caramel Molten Lava. $3.19 per 5.6-ounce bag of 12 bite-size brownies or 6.1-ounce box containing two Molten Lava bowls.

Bonnie: Pillsbury says Sweet Moments are its answer to women's desire for "a truly satisfying yet convenient option when their chocolate cravings hit." Both of these new refrigerated brownie items are chocolate, but do they "truly satisfy?"

The ready-to-nibble bite-sized brownies are layered with either caramel or fudge and coated in chocolate. Three teeny brownies are 180 calories and 9 grams fat, of which 4.5 grams are saturated. The other Sweet Moments option is either a caramel or fudge brownie that you microwave for 15 seconds so that it's almost liquefied. One will set you back double the calories and fat of a serving of the bite-size, or about 365 calories and 18 grams fat. That's an indulgence, not a sweet moment. And although the labels on both varieties claim 0 trans fats, the brownies are made using partially hydrogenated oils, which are a source of trans fats.

With all their artificial flavors, gums and additives, Sweet Moments would not satisfy the women I know, with the exception of Carolyn, who doesn't care about such things.

Carolyn: Pillsbury Sweet Moments Molten Lava Brownies are General Mills' sister Betty Crocker brand's Warm Delights single-serve microwave dessert mixes taken to the next level of quality and convenience.

Warm Delights Hot Fudge Brownies and Sweet Moments Molten Lava are very similar in size and calories and serve a similar function (to give chocolate lovers their own quick, delicious treat). But unlike Warm Delights, which must be mixed with water and micro-baked, Sweet Moments Molten Lava Brownies come already cooked, and are even richer and more indulgent. The proof is in the vanilla ice cream I always put on Warm Delights brownies, but didn't need with these.

The companion Sweet Moments Bite-Size Brownies are even more indulgent, perhaps too much so, at least for something called a brownie. With their small size and heavy chocolate coating, they're really more like petit fours or candy bonbons. They come 12 brownie bites to a non-resealable pouch — which might sound dangerous, but these are so rich I didn't want to eat more than three.

LEBLANG AND WYMAN
SUPERMARKET SAMPLER

Because I like brownies more than petit fours, the Molten Lava Brownies are the Sweet Moments I most look forward to experiencing again — artificial flavor, gums, additives and all.

LINDSAY ITALIAN SEASONED OLIVES. $2.99 per 6.5-ounce resealable container.

Bonnie: Although these olives are labeled "Italian Seasoned," I found that flavor almost too mild to discern. I also don't like the taste of "canned" black olives. I did as a kid, when I didn't know better olives existed. But now that my tastes are more sophisticated, I prefer the flavor and texture of kalamata, gaeta, picholine, Moroccan dry-cured or nicoise over any generic "canned" olive.

If you feel differently, these olives' resealable container certainly makes them more convenient than olives in cans or aseptic containers that must be repackaged if the olives aren't finished right after opening.

All olives contain a lot of sodium. Like Lindsay's regular olives, these Italian-seasoned ones contain 115 milligrams sodium per four olives.

Carolyn: Americans are such huge snackers that it's no wonder food companies keep trying to reposition their products as cookie and chip alternatives. The latest unlikely snacking candidates are these Lindsay olives.

Lindsay's approach? Packing its olives in recloseable cups instead of cans and adding Italian seasoning. I like the container but not the seasoned brine, which make these olives taste more like chicken broth than olives.

That pinpoints a bigger problem: These olives are not high quality. A good olive would blow away a little oregano, basil and rosemary flavor-wise, instead of — as here — being overwhelmed by them.

Diet Detective's guide to antioxidants

THE TERM "ANTIOXIDANT" is tossed around a lot, but many of you still are not sure exactly what antioxidants are or why they're important. Read on to find out more.

What is oxidative stress?

Believe it or not, oxygen — the very thing you need to survive — can harm you. Think of how the flesh of an apple browns when it's exposed to air. That's the effect of oxygen — called oxidation. An antioxidant prevents oxidation. Dipping the cut apple in lemon juice prevents browning. The lemon juice is an antioxidant.

Oxidative stress occurs when someone has too many free radicals in his or her body and not enough antioxidants to combat them. A free radical is a molecule with an oxygen atom missing an electron. In its effort to replace the missing electron, the free radical steals from another molecule, which then becomes a free radical itself. It's a vicious cycle.

Antioxidants provide the free radical with its missing electron so that it doesn't have to steal from another molecule, thus stopping the cycle. Your body produces free radicals as byproducts of functions it performs, such as when you digest foods, when you exercise, or when you're exposed to tobacco and other pollutants.

If there are too many free radicals and not enough antioxidants, the balance is off — there are not enough antioxidants to go around, and the damaged cells become more susceptible to diseases such as cancer or heart disease.

What are examples of antioxidants?

Antioxidants are found in plants — they protect the plant from ultraviolet light and act as its immune system. Here are a few names that you might have heard: beta carotene, flavonoids, lycopene, vitamin A, vitamin C, vitamin E and selenium.

Can we get needed antioxidants from a pill?

We're still learning what, if any, differences our bodies recognize when we take supplements instead of getting antioxidants from foods. "Often there's no distinction," said Karen Collins, nutrition adviser to the American Institute for Cancer Research.

"But sometimes the chemical form may change slightly. One concern about the use of supplements is the issue of synergy — how nutrients and phytochemicals work together differently from the way each one works on its own. (i.e., 1 + 1 = 3 instead of just 2.)"

There is something about the way nature packages fruits and vegetables — the combination of chemicals in plants — that causes them to fight off disease.

"High intakes of fruits and vegetables have been associated with a reduced risk for several chronic diseases, including cardiovascular diseases, cancer, type 2 diabetes, osteoporosis and even eye-related disorders such as macular degeneration.

Obtaining antioxidants from food is important because foods high in antioxidants also contain other micronutrients and phytochemicals that are important in preventing chronic disease," said Victoria J. Drake, Ph.D., a researcher at the Linus Pauling Institute at Oregon State University.

The other issue concerning supplements is there's ambiguity about the correct dosage. Some doctors, for example, have suggested that cancer patients on a treatment designed to increase their free radicals may want to avoid antioxidants.

"Correct dosage can be a problem with supplements because it's easy to exceed healthy amounts and set the normal balance off," said Collins. "On the other hand, supplements might turn out to be helpful if it is found that larger amounts of particular phytochemicals do produce benefits. For now, consuming the large amounts possible with some supplements is a risky gamble."

According to National Institutes of Health's National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine, "Large, long-term studies (randomized, controlled trials) funded primarily by NIH have generally found that antioxidant supplements have no beneficial effects." Can taking supplements ever be harmful? According to Janet Brill, Ph.D., R.D., a Florida-based nutrition expert, thousands of studies have examined the effects of antioxidant supplements such as vitamin E, beta carotene and vitamin C on chronic diseases.

"While most have shown either beneficial or neutral effects, there is some concern over research demonstrating that higher doses can actually increase myocardial events and promote cancer cell proliferation." For example, The Beta-Carotene and Retinol Efficacy Trial, which looked at more than 18,000 men and women who were smokers, former smokers or workers exposed to asbestos, found that after four years lung cancer incidence was 28 percent higher in those taking beta carotene supplements compared with those taking a placebo.

The Cochrane Library, a well-known scientific research collaboration, reviewed 67 trials with a combined 232,550 subjects to assess the effects of antioxidant supplements on mortality and concluded that there is "no evidence to support antioxidant supplements for primary or secondary prevention" of mortality. And, in fact, vitamin A, beta carotene and vitamin E may increase mortality.

This review was controversial and disputed by supplement manufacturers and food manufacturers that add supplements to foods.

He Only Takes the Best

God saw he was getting tired and a cure was not to be, So he put His arms around him and whispered, "Come with me."

With tear-filled eyes we watched him suffer and fade away.

Although we loved him deeply, we could not make him stay.

A golden heart stopped beating, hard-working hands put to rest.

God broke our hearts to prove to us, He only takes the best.

PRESTON COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION RECONCILIATION OF THE STATEMENT OF REVENUES - GOVERNMENTAL FUNDS TO THE STATEMENT OF NET ACTIVITIES
Amounts reported for governmental activities in the statement of activities are different due to:
Net change in fund balances - total governmental funds		$(6,702,973)
Governmental funds report capital outlays as expenditures. However, in the statement of net assets, the cost of those assets is allocated over their estimated useful lives and reported as depreciation expense. The effect on net assets is the amount by which capital outlays exceed depreciation in the current period.
Depreciation expense		(1,488,112)
Capital outlays		964,573
Certain receivables will be collected this year but are not available soon enough to pay for the current period's expenditures. This is the amount by which such receivables increased (decreased).
Property taxes receivable
Other miscellaneous conversion adjustment
The repayment of the principal of long-term debt (e.g., bonds, leases) consumes the current financial resources of governmental funds. However, such repayment has no effect on net assets.
Differences in the cost and accumulated depreciation on disposed capital assets are reported as a loss and reduction in net assets in the statement of activities.
Cost of assets disposed

Net change in fund balances - total governmental funds	$(6,702,973)
Governmental funds report capital outlays as expenditures. However, in the statement of net assets, the cost of those assets is allocated over their estimated useful lives and reported as depreciation expense. The effect on net assets is the amount by which capital outlays exceed depreciation in the current period.
Depreciation expense	(1,488,112)
Capital outlays	964,573
Certain receivables will be collected this year but are not available soon enough to pay for the current period's expenditures. This is the amount by which such receivables increased (decreased).
Property taxes receivable	-
Other miscellaneous conversion adjustment	-
The repayment of the principal of long-term debt (e.g., bonds, leases) consumes the current financial resources of governmental funds. However, such repayment has no effect on net assets.
Differences in the cost and accumulated depreciation on disposed capital assets are reported as a loss and reduction in net assets in the statement of activities.
Cost of assets disposed	-
Accumulated depreciation of assets disposed	-
Compensated absences are reported as liabilities in the statement of net assets, but are only reported in government funds to the extent they have matured. This is the amount by which compensated absences (increased)/decreased.
Accrued vacation payable	-
Amortization of bond issuance costs are reported in the statement of activities but do not require the use of current financial resources and, therefore, are not reported as expenditures in government funds.
"Interest on long-term debt in the statement of activities differs from the amount reported in the governmental funds because interest is recognized as an expenditure in the funds when it is due, and thus requires the use of current financial resources. In the statement of activities, however, interest expense is recognized as the interest accrues, regardless of when it is due.

OTC product may soften some skin

DR. PETER GOTT

DEAR DR. GOTT: Tell your readers that A&D Ointment is absolutely wonderful to use on dry areas, such as fingertips, cracked heels, hands, elbows and more. I get cracks in my heels. I have learned to wear only 100 percent cotton socks and not to wear sandals too frequently. Open sandals quickly contribute to dryness and dirt.

I soak the affected area in warm, soapy water (using mild soap) before bedtime, apply the ointment, and then put on the socks. It is amazing how much healing occurs during one night. It can be repeated as often as needed and is also inexpensive and safe.

ingredients making up the remaining 31.1 percent include cod-liver oil (the source of the vitamins A and D), fragrance, light mineral oil, microcrystalline wax and paraffin.

Petrolatum and lanolin are common ingredients in moisturizers. They protect, soften, and rehydrate skin. Paraffin, wax and mineral oil help create a barrier to prevent loss of moisture. I'm not sure what topical cod-liver oil is good for other than moisturizing, but as I have reported in my column, many find that taking it internally helps maintain good health, improves vitamin A and D deficiencies, eases arthritis symptoms and more.

I have printed your letter because the product is indeed safe and inexpensive, since many retailers carry store-brand versions. This may be a good first choice for treating and preventing finger cracks as well as other minor skin irritations and problems.

DR. PETER GOTT is a retired physician. Write him at Dr. Gott c/o United Media, 200 Madison Ave., 4th floor, New York, NY 10016.
