Hunting banned at Briery Mountain

Army National Guard building firing range

BY MICHELLE WOLFORD

The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD — A popular hunting area has been closed because the National Guard is building a weapons range. It will not reopen for public use.

A lease between the Army National Guard and the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources on the Briery Mountain Wildlife Management Area is being terminated, according to Col. William Suver, post commander at Camp Dawson.

The guard is constructing a firing range on the property, ending public hunting there, Suver said, "for the safety of the public."

Lowell Clark, of Kingwood, said he's hunted on Briery Mountain for 56 years.

Though he said he was sad to hear he'd never hunt there again, the 70-year-old said, "I'm not surprised. I could see the handwriting on the wall the last 10 years.

"You never knew when they were going to be open," Clark said. "They'd say they had training going on and you couldn't hunt.' Clark said four generations of his family have hunted on Briery Mountain — from his father to his grandsons. "I knew every tree up there," he said.

Train leaks diesel onto W.Va. 100

Fuel spill contained in about 10 minutes

The Dominion Post

The Granville Volunteer Fire Department (VFD) assisted with stream and road cleanups Tuesday morning, after a Norfolk Southern train leaked diesel fuel near the intersection of W.Va. 100 and Fort Martin Road.

Norfolk Southern spokesman Robin Chapman said the company estimates about 25 gallons of fuel were leaked. "It's hard to be sure, the fire department did such a good job cleaning it up," he said.

Granville Fire Chief Butch Renner said it took the VFD about 10 minutes to contain the leak.

The train was stopped on a trestle above W.Va. 100 when the engineer was notified he was leaking fuel, Renner said. The engineer pulled into a nearby switching yard and shut off the engine.

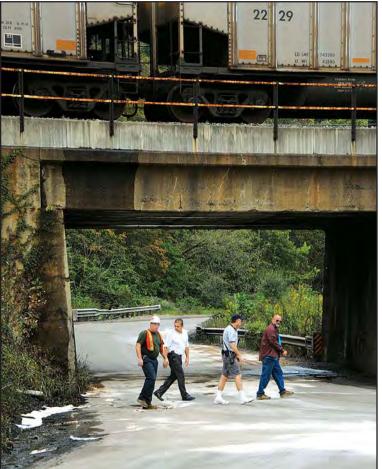

The VFD was called at about 10:30 a.m.

Renner said a little bit of diesel dripped down the trestle and into a nearby storm drain. Fuel also dripped onto W.Va. 100.

Representatives from Norfolk Southern — a company based in Norfolk, Va. — also responded to the cleanup.

Crews put three white harbor booms — each one is 5 inches in diameter and about 10 feet long — into Crafts Run, a nearby stream, Renner said. The booms float on the water and absorb the fuel, which also floats. An absorbent material was put on the road to soak up the fuel there, he

Soil stained with fuel was also removed, Chapman said, and the company's representatives will continue to monitor the area to make sure that all the fuel was absorbed.

Morgantown gas well fracking delayed again

BY DAVID BEARD

The Dominion Post

WV4MOM (West Virginia for Moratorium on Marcellus) staged another anti-fracking rally Tuesday at the edge of the Morgantown Industrial park.

Turnout was light, as only two were on duty in the morning and another two during the protest's final hour.

The group planned its protest to coincide with the expected start of fracking at Northeast Natural Energy's two horizontal Marcellus gas wells in the park.

As it turned out, fracking didn't begin. Northeast President Michael John told The Dominion Post that they are still waiting on equipment, and Morgantown Utility Board (MUB) General Manager Tim Ball said MUB understands fracking may not begin until this afternoon at the earliest.

A look at the well pad late Tuesday afternoon showed that the fracking operation is closer — the pad, empty days before, is filling with trucks and equipment.

Doddridge County native Emily Tanzey was one of the two protesters at the site late Tuesday. A WVU graduate student, she said her home county has been deeply, negatively affected by gas well operations. "I don't

EPA holds hearing on drilling pollution

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — A public hearing Tuesday on proposed rules to reduce air pollution from oil and gas drilling operations found at least some points of agreement between industry and environmental groups.

Howard Feldman, the director of regulatory and scientific affairs at the American Petroleum Institute, was the first speaker at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) hearing in Pittsburgh.

Feldman asked the EPA to extend the public comment period and give companies a one-vear extension to comply with the new rules. The current EPA timeline would see the rules take effect in the spring of 2012.

But Feldman told The Associated Press that industry isn't opposed to the basic concept of the EPA proposal, which would apply new pollution control standards to about 25,000 gas wells that are hydraulically fractured, or fracked, each year. The fracking process blasts large have the chance to protest in my hometown. They've already taken my home. I don't want them to take my second home.'

Lauren Stamm, a recent WVU graduate, carried a sign saying, "Don't frack with the Mon River." She said she's all for more jobs, and gas drilling, but not so close to a water supply. "I'd rather be on the side of caution."

Before drilling began, Northeast and MUB worked out an agreement — subsequently incorporated into the two well permits — for Northeast to take extra safety precautions to protect the nearby public water intake on the Monongahela River. Ball previously said MUB will have someone on site when fracking begins, and frequently thereafter, and will continue regular water testing.

John has said fracking should take 10 days to two weeks.

A WV4MOM representative did not respond in time for this report for questions about future protest plans.

The Dominion Post

A first-degree murder warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Dunbar man in connection with the fatal shooting of a Morgantown man Sunday.

Jeron Hawkins, 18, is believed to be in the Charleston area, accord ing to Charleston Police. He was one of the people injured in the shooting that killed 28-year-old former Marine, Lucas Lee. Other media reported Hawkins was arrested Tuesday, but a dispatcher with the Morgantown Police Department, Charleston Police Department Sgt. Bobby Eggleton and Supervisory Deputy U.S. Marshal Alex Neville told The Dominion Post late Tuesday night they were not aware of an arrest.

Eggleton said Morgantown detectives and his officers are narrowing the search for Hawkins and another man, Andre Lee, whom he called a "person of interest" in the case. Eggleton did not know if Andre Lee and Lucas Lee are related. Morgantown Police previously said Hawkins was shot in the leg during the incident, which occurred shortly after 3 a.m. Sunday outside Karma, at the corner of Wall and High streets. He was treated and released from Ruby Memorial Hospital. Also injured were Lucas Lee's brother, Rob Lee, 25, and Kirsten Barber, 18, of Fairmont. Both have been released from the hospital. NEESES, S.C. — Football games have been postponed by heavy rains, lightning, power outages: And now, fire ants.

A game in South Carolina was postponed Friday after the referee decided the field was unplayable because of fire ants. Referee Steve Hook said he found 15 to 20 large active fire ant mounds shortly before the game.

Morgantown man serving drug-charge sentence killed in prison

BY BRANDY BRUBAKER

The Dominion Post

A Morgantown man incarcerated for a Preston County drug case was killed in prison by an inmate serving a sentence for murder, officials said.

Joseph B. Braddock, 30, died Sunday at Charleston Area Medical Center for injuries sustained in an altercation at Mount Olive Correctional Center on Saturday morning.

Christopher D. Cox, 26, of Spencer, is accused in the case, according to State Police Sgt. Michael Baylous. No charges have been filed.

Baylous said in a press release that two inmates got into an altercation at 9:40 a.m. Saturday, during which Braddock sustained "severe injuries to his head."

Braddock, reportedly a 1999 Preston High School graduate, was serving a oneto-15-year sentence for manufacturing or delivering a controlled substance in connection with a 2007 Preston County case, according to state Division of Corrections (DOC) spokeswoman Susan Harding. He was scheduled for a parole hearing in June 2012.

According to the complaint filed by State Police in connection with the Preston County case, Braddock took two Preston County teenage boys to Pennsylvania without their parents' permission in 2006. At a motel there, at least one boy was given drugs and Braddock performed or caused to be performed sexual acts to both juveniles, the complaint said. A charge of child abduction was dismissed after Braddock pleaded guilty to the drug charge.

Cox is being held at Mount Olive for a 2005 Calhoun County conviction on charges of second-degree murder and second-degree robbery. according to online DOC information. His next parole hearing was set for August 2019, although his projected release date was listed as August 2033. No other information on his case was available Tuesday.

Baylous said State Police in Gauley Bridge are investigating. The trooper handling the case did not respond in time for this report.

amounts of water deep into the earth to break up dense shale and allow natural gas to escape.

"We think EPA has done a good job on the rule. We think it's pretty reasonable," Feldman said. "We just need a few more accommodations to make this work smoothly."

The technology to implement the proposed rule allows drillers to capture and sell gas that would normally go to waste. The EPA estimates that the rule would actually save the industry about $30 million each year.

"A lot of companies are doing that already," Feldman said of the capture process.

But some said the issues in Pennsylvania require more time to review.

Kathryn Klaber, president of the Marcellus Shale Coalition, said her group thinks there's "a lot more work to do" on the proposed rules, which could place a heavy burden on industry.

But citizens and environmental groups said there should be no delays in implementing the rules, because there are already problems.

Janet McIntyre said the air outside her Butler county home makes her and others sick. Officials with the Pa. Department of Environmental Protection haven't even taken air quality tests, she said, despite numerous visits. Butler is about 40 miles north of Pittsburgh.

The Lees also left the club and found the same men waiting outside. One of the men yelled obscenities at Rob Lee, and Lucas Lee approached the group. A man started shooting, Lee said. Lee said he didn't know the shooter, but described him as black, skinny and about 5-foot-11. He also said he didn't know Hawkins. No description of Hawkins was available Tuesday.

Lucas Lee, a former Marine who served in Afghanistan and Iraq, died at Ruby Memorial Hospital.

Eggleton said Morgantown detectives were processing a car for evidence that had been returned to a car rental service at Yeager Airport in Charleston. He said he believed Andre Lee had rented the car. An employee at Enterprise at Yeager Airport said he wasn't permitted to comment on the incident.

THE NEW DIETARY GUIDELINES

By now, lots of people have seen the USDA's new dietary guidelines. Gone is the old, familiar pyramid, and in its place is the image of a dinner plate. Many health problems are associated with obesity. According to the USDA, healthy eating focuses more on fruits and vegetables. In fact, half the plate should be made up of fruits and vegetables. A quarter of the plate should be grains, and of those grains, at least half should be whole grain. The remaining quarter is for lean protein. The USDA also recommends including a serving of dairy product with a meal, but that product should be low fat. The USDA also emphasizes the need for portion control.

Our practice is located at 1526 Mileground Road and our hours are Monday-Thursday, 9-4, and Friday, 9-2.

And those who hunted there kept it clean.

"I always took care of it up there. We all did. We picked up garbage — I bet we picked up a truckload of those MRE [meals ready to eat] packages."

Hunting there, he said, "would be like Christmas up there for us hunters. You'd see people you hadn't seen since last year. We'd talk and BS.'

The Modified Record Firing Range — to be used by those soldiers who need to qualify on M4 and M16 rifles — is to be operational by November. Suver said the National Guard will issue a press release on the closure in the near future.

Rick Chaney, Camp Dawson's environmental manager, said local hunters can still get permits for Camp Dawson's Pringle tract, about 2,000 acres off W.Va. 72 between Kingwood and Rowlesburg. Those permit applications are accepted from July 15 to Oct. 15. Permits are available at Camp Dawson's security gate, he said. The lease between the West Virginia Army National Guard and the state Division of Natural Resources for 1,162 acres was signed in June 2003, according to Chaney, and about 250 hunting permits are issued each year.

Clark said the number of places to hunt continues to dwindle.

"And they complain that the number of hunters is decreasing. Well, there's six to eight in my family that won't have a place to hunt." There was no place like Briery Mountain for Clark."When I was up there in a tree stand, I felt closer to God than I ever did in church," he said.

Panel rescinds order regarding behavior analysts

Board: This is a misunderstanding

Staff, wire reports

The state Board of Examiners of Psychologists voted Tuesday to rescind an emergency order requiring applied behavior analysts to be under direct supervision of a licensed psychologist.

The decision came in the wake of a lawsuit filed in Kanawha County Circuit Court by ABA therapist Jill Scarbro-McLaury, who said the rule undermined a new law extending insurance coverage for this therapy which can be used to treat autism.

Scarbro-McLaury also said the state Board of Examiners of Psychologists violated state open meetings laws and abused the rule-making process. The board had alleged that West Virginia faced "an immediate threat to public safety" when it sucJune 7 emergency rule at the center of the lawsuit.

The board met via phone conference Tuesday evening and voted unanimously to strike down the rule.

The lawsuit faults the board for voting to pursue the emergency rule during a May 26 evening conference phone call, without providing proper notice to the public. The emergency rule became effective July 10. Scarbro-McLaury and her fellow ABA analysts were unaware of the meeting, or of the board's push to claim jurisdiction over their profession, the lawsuit said.

Board Executive Director Jeff Harlow said it was never the board's intention to interrupt services for children with autism.

In a release, Harlow said: "The board's motive in this matter is to protect autistic children. Behavior analysts have misinterpreted the rule to mean that it would hamper autistic children from receivunderstanding. The rule does not prevent services from being rendered. ... The board continues to offer to meet with behavioral analysts to see if together we can resolve this issue with the purpose of protecting these autistic children and the integrity of the practice of psychology in West Virginia."

The emergency rule had left only one person in the state qualified to practice ABA — Dr. Susannah Poe, director of WVU Healthcare's Klingberg Neurodevelopmental Center, a licensed psychologist and certified ABA therapist. She opposed the rule, concerned that hundreds of children granted access to treatment by the law passed during the 2011 session would have been cut off by the emergency rule.

WVU Police: Locker room doors will be locked in future

Credentials to be checked closely

The Dominion Post

The doors to the WVU football team's locker rooms will be locked to prevent thefts during future games, WVU Police Chief Bob Roberts said Tuesday.

Two cell phones, a necklace, clothing and tote bags belonging to four players were taken during Saturday night's contest against LSU.

Roberts said some of the items were left out, rather than secured in lockers. They were taken between the time the players took the field and the end of the second quarter.

Players discovered the items missing during halftime, and a WVU athletic department staffer reported the theft to WVU police during the third quarter.

UPDATE

Roberts said family members and guests of the players have access to the locker rooms during the game. There are four entrances to the locker rooms, and one employee is stationed at each entrance for security.

WVU police are now in the process of interviewing those employees to determine what is required to gain access to the locker rooms.

"That's what we're following up on now," Roberts said. "What do you have to do to get access?"

Credentials will be checked closely at future games to prevent unauthorized access to the locker rooms during future games, Roberts said, and the doors will remain locked.

WVU omiciais nave declined to name the players whose items were taken.

EDITORIAL

Hey rude fans, enough is enough

We're throwing a penalty flag on poor game-day behavior

We've been disgraced and we can't take it anymore! The vicious beating of a man following Saturday's football game against LSU is shameful.

Whether the attack on him and his party was because of an allegiance to the Tigers or Mountaineers is secondary (the latest from law enforcement is that it may have been a random attack.)

But we do know thugs blindsided the visitors as they left a parking area following the game.

Meanwhile, reports of Mountaineers fans tossing beers (some in unopened cans) at Tigers fans are growing to overshadow wonderful comments about friendly folks who went out of their way to welcome visitors.

What a shame.

The university, the city and the state took extraordinary steps to encourage behavior that we could be proud to share with a national television audience before, during and after the game — offensive T-shirts were purchased and couches were collected — but it wasn't enough.

Now, we've had enough. We urge our readers to join us in a campaign to change this negative and hurtful behavior. The Dominion Post is seeking volunteers to serve on a committee charged with developing initiatives and incentives that will turn the Touchdown City into the Goodwill City.

> We call on civic groups, such as Rotaries, Moose clubs and the Elks. We appeal to nonprofit organizations, such as the Red Cross, United Way and Big Brothers and Big Sisters. We reach out to religious organizations ... Christian, Muslim and Jew.

We are working to arrange a public meeting with community leaders so we can brainstorm ideas and develop a strategy to take our Goodwill City back from our biggest and most threatening opponents in football, basketball and other events - nasty fans and unruly thugs.

We believe there are more of us than them, and that we can make a difference.

If you agree, stay tuned as more details will come before the week's end.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

It was a treat to share football with WVU fans

We recently had the opportunity to visit your beautiful state and attend the LSU/WVU game. We also tailgated with some of your fans. To put it mildly, I was totally blown away.

Your residents and fans were the most hospitable folks I have met in quite a while. "Welcome to West Virginia" was offered to us by most everyone we met, both young and old. We were greeted with open arms and smiles everywhere we went. Their goodnatured ribbing was akin to our own "Tiger Bait" chant at home. Coach Holgorsen was gracious enough to autograph my LSU polo shirt and new WVU hat at his weekly radio show Thursday night. I can say without reservation that anyone who hasn't had the opportunity to visit Morgantown has missed out on a great time.

The pride and passion of your football fans was so impressive. From the thousands that showed up for ESPN's "College GameDay," in the hotel, restaurants and bars, I didn't go anywhere without seeing the gold and blue colors. The "flying WV" or some other form of support for your university — from ball caps to banners — was on display for all to see.

After the game, I was congratulated on our victory by hundreds of your fans. Many wished us well in our quest for the BCS title. What class. Your fans showed us how we should behave after a tough game. I hope our fans can follow that lead. And I hope the SEC ruling class sees your program for what it can add to our conference.

I, for one, would like the opportunity to come back.

Cheers to kindness, jeers to vulgarity Though Landau Eugene

Murphy Jr. sang the National Anthem at the WVU/LSU game this past weekend, I, personally, would like to thank the gentleman in Logan who recognized real talent when he

ANOTHER STIMULUS PLAN heard it. Not only did he recognize Murphy's beautiful voice, he acted upon his intuition by financing Murphy's trip to New York City so that he could audition. In my opinion, he too, is a very special West Virginian to be recognized.

I just hope that the issue of the vulgar T-shirts will have been squelched this time. The "powers-that-be" in Morgantown have certainly been doing all they can to stop this disgusting fad before we once again make national news. Isn't it time we show the world exactly what we are made of?

I am an elderly lady remembering "how it was" when I was young. If I had used words that are now being flashed all across our nation, my mouth would have been washed out with soap, and then doused with pepper. Trust me, that did happen to me. The word? Darn. I was about 6-years-old.

Of course I grew up and I am sure I have used "that word" occasionally, but I hope you get my point.

We can do without

After watching the voting on the economy last month and now the riffraff of the Republican Party trying to find some worthy candidate to vie for the presidency of the United States, I ask one question: What has the Republican party ever done for the United States?

We know that most of the rich are Republicans because the government has always looked out for them and given in to them. We have thousands of American business corporations that have moved to other countries to keep from paying taxes like the ordinary American.

Some of the business organizations have moved and list their permanent address in Switzerland — 300 companies - where they pay 12 percent taxes rather than list a United States address, where they would pay 35 percent.

I believe that if the Democrats are dumb enough to bow to the Republicans and let them have full control, we are doomed.

At 80 years of age, I have found that if you ask most Republican politicians a question, they will not give a direct answer.

Ask a Republican politician what his full name is. He will tell you where his father came from and where he worked, etc. Finally you have to ask; 'All I wanted to know is: What is your full name?' Remember George Bush?

Democratic means for all the people.

Retro TV revisits the birth of 'Culture War'

Do AMC's "MAD MEN," ABC's "Pan Am," NBC's "The Playboy Club" and BBC America's "The Hour' exploit society's barely suppressed appetite for a more sexist, racist and conservative era? Fear not. The underlying message in these depictions of the bad old days: We should be better than that now, even when we aren't.

Just as we can enjoy "Gone With the Wind" without feeling nostalgic for slavery, we can watch the chain-smoking white men and underpaid, underappreciated women of "Mad Men" without wishing we could bring back Jim Crow racial segregation and legal glass ceilings for women.

In fact, the best moments in this surprising new nostalgia craze for the 1950s and early '60s suggest glimmers of the social revolution that we, today's audience gazing back with the wisdom of hindsight, know is about to take place.

"Mad Men" led this craze by doing what cable TV does better than the big over-the-air networks: It took a chance on trying something new — and won. The show found thoughtful drama in a New York ad agency in a time that today's much-coveted 18-to-35 demographic knows to be ancient history, the 1960s.

That era happened to be a time when the advertising-marketing world was hitting its stride. The best ads often seemed more entertaining than the media that carried them. The 1960 Kennedy-Nixon presidential race and the civil rights revolution showcased the rising power of television to move politics and government. Against this backdrop, we see how changing attitudes toward sexism, racism, homophobia and rising divorce rates play out in the lives of ad execs who are making change happen for dollars or, in the case of the women in particular, respect.

"The Playboy Club" and "Pan Am," by comparison, are less engrossing over-the-air knockoffs inspired by a pathology that the late TV pioneer Ernie Kovacs described as "the beatit-to-death syndrome." Every time somebody comes up with a successful new TV idea, he said, other programmers "beat it to death."

The most prominent theme these shows share is a trip back, as filmmaker-essavist Nora Ephron sarcastically wrote in a Newsweek essay, "to the early 1960s, to that golden moment just before the women's movement came along and ruined everything."

"Pan Am" is easier to like than "The Playboy Club." It employs "stewardesses," as flight attendants used to be known, to remind us of the days before deregulation — back when airline travel was associated with a glamorous experience, not a high-altitude bus ride.

The program starring Christina Ricci plays like a high-flying "Sex and the City," a time when airlines opened up a world of fun, travel and financial independence to a generation of women who are portrayed as well-trained, well-educated and, despite the prevailing sexism of the times, variously skillful at navigating men into or away from their restricted air space.

'The Hour" is a recently completed six-part BBC America take, still available On-Demand, of a fictitious BBC newsmagazine program during the 1956 Hungarian uprising and Suez Canal crises. Leave it to the Brits to give us a gripping mix of love triangles, office politics, a hunt for a Soviet mole, genteel battles with government censors and, oh, yes, elegant bouts of class warfare between folks for whom class still mattered — a lot!

This program, as in its American cousins, we see the beginnings of what we now call the culture wars. Ads, news media, the Playboy ethic, globalism and changing concepts of family still fuel emotions in America's political and cultural divide. Even seemingly dry issues like the economy — and what to do about it — take on a high moral equivalency in the battle between those who see a need for more liberal progress versus those who want to take American values back, at least to the days before Elvis.

Is relationship fair to infatuated friend?

DEAR ABBY: I have known "Arthur" for more than 20 years. Since day one, he has wanted more than friendship, but I made it clear that I never wanted more than a platonic relationship. I care about him, but have never had romantic feelings for him.

We spend a lot of time together between relationships with other people. (I was married for eight years out of our 20year friendship.) Arthur comes over — we hang out, sometimes share a meal or watch a movie, etc. Then we go to sleep in my bed. He SLEEPS in my bed, where there's no hanky-panky. I'm content with things as they are. He makes me laugh and I feel good about myself.

However, lately I sense he's becoming too attached. I worry that I might be leading him on even though I've made it clear that I don't want anything romantic or sexual. My friends think what I'm doing is wrong, that I might be keeping Arthur from moving forward in his life. Keep in mind that I encourage him to go out with friends and to date. Am I doing anything wrong that may be hurting him in an indirect way? — PLATONICALLY CONNECTED IN TEXAS happy the way things are. Arthur appears to have accepted the relationship on your terms. While he may secretly hope that one morning you will roll over, open your eyes and realize that he's Prince Charming, you have been honest with him from the beginning. I see no reason to end a relationship that is rewarding to both of you because your friends are meddling. Your friends should mind their own business.

DEAR ABBY: I have a lot of health problems and need my rest. We have even disconnected the doorbell. So why do people ignore the "Do Not Disturb" sign on the front door and knock anyway? — DISTURBED IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR DISTURBED: Not knowing who's doing the knocking, I'm guessing they're people who are desperate to sell you something. Certainly no friend would behave that way.

BRIEFS

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Friday traffic to be altered for parade on High Street

The Morgantown Police Department will alter traffic patterns on Friday for the WVU Homecoming Parade.

The parade down High Street begins at 6:30 p.m. Parking will be restricted on High and Prospect streets beginning at 5:45 p.m. Friday. Spectators are urged to arrive early to find parking downtown.

Traffic in the downtown area will detour around the parade route — from Willey Street onto Prospect Street, up Price Street to Fife Street, down North High Street, turning right on Maiden Lane to College Avenue, then to University Avenue.

Officers will be at the intersections to assist with traffic. Any motorists wishing to avoid the detour may travel on College Avenue from Willey Street to University Avenue.

Women's health care class set for today

Partners in Women's Health Care will have their third class, "Reclaiming Your Sexuality in Midlife," from 5-6:30 p.m. today at Partners in Women's Health Care Monongalia General Hospital, Health Care Center, fourth floor, suite 402 (garden entrance). Participation is free and open to the public.

South Park Association of Neighbors set to meet

The South Park Association of Neighbors (SPAN) will meet at 7 p.m. today, at the First Christian Church on the corner of Cobun Avenue and Grand Street.

Topics for discussion will be the SPAN City Council Presentation and the Monongalia County Certified Emergency Response Team (CERT) program.

Call 304-599-6811 to sign up, or walk in. Bring a friend.

Community Shred Day to be held in Sabraton

Community Shred Day in Morgantown will be held today allowing area residents to safely dispose of sensitive documents and to protect themselves against identity theft.

The event will be from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. today, at the Sabraton office of My Bank! First United Bank and Trust, a co-sponsor of the event with PACE Shredding.

Locked containers will be lined up outside the bank, allowing residents to drive up and drop their documents in the containers.

Up to six boxes per person will be accepted. Staples, paper clips, hanging folders and rubber bands are acceptable. Threering binders must be removed.

All the shredded material will be recycled at the end of the event. PACE Shredding will pick up the containers afterwards and transport the locked containers to a secure shredding facility in Morgantown.

Info: Cheri Grigsby, 304-376-0036.

Suncrest group set to meet Thursday

The Suncrest Neighborhood Association will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at Calvary Baptist Church, on the corner of Burroughs Road and Eastern Avenue. Info: www.suncrestna.org.

Mon General access road work to alter traffic

Project construction on track for December completion date

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Some road restrictions will be in effect while work continues on the new Monongalia General Hospital access road.

Through traffic on Vandervort Drive will not be available for an indefinite period of time, according to a Mon General spokesman. Beginning Tuesday, anyone who typically travels Vandervort to access W.Va. 705 will need to exit the campus at Pineview Drive.

The Monongalia County Sheriff's Department will help with traffic control at the foot of J.D. Anderson from 2-5 p.m. This will continue as needed.

This construction will also impact access to MonKids. Tuesday it was via J.D. Anderson Drive only, while contractors worked on the drive into MonKids. That work should be finished by this morning, and then access to MonKids will be via Maple Drive.

According to a Mon General spokesman, the project is on track for opening in December, weather permitting. They are currently in the process of relocating utilities, including electric, water

The Pennsylvania man injured in an attack following Saturday's WVU home football game against LSU was released from a Pittsburgh hospital Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Morgantown police continue to investigate in the hopes of identifying his attackers.

Marcus Mason, 30, of Canonsburg, was assaulted after he asked a group of people near his vehicle if they had thrown a rock through an open window, according to a police report. He was initially taken to Monongalia General Hospital and later transferred to the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center for surgery.

His mother, Lynn Britt, told The Dominion Post several bones in his face were fractured as a result of the beating.

"He's doing considerably well," Britt said Tuesday in a telephone interview. "He went home and got on the couch. ... The surgery went great."

Mason's five-months-pregnant wife — Hannah, 32 — and two passengers were also assaulted, but not seriously injured. Morgantown police identified Mason's passengers — Nathan Glen Ray, 21, of Houston, and Douglas J.

Locals join the national rally to save postal service

Mail carriers and supporters gather at courthouse square

BY CHELSEA FULLER

The Dominion Post

The U.S. Postal Service (USPS) is looking for ways to save money including dropping Saturday delivery.

Asking for community support, mail carriers joined customers at a rally Tuesday evening at the Monongalia County Courthouse Square as part of the national "Save Our Postal Service" event. The Morgantown rally was one of hundreds across the country. Staying true to the national objective outlined by the American Postal Workers Union, the event was to provide information about the agency's financial situation, along with the facts surrounding the H.R. 1351 bill, said Steve Hose, a mail carrier with the Morgantown Post Office.

H.R. 1351 or the U.S. Postal Service Pension Obligation Recalculation and Restoration Act of 2011, was sponsored by Rep. Stephen F. Lynch, D-Mass., and was referred to the Subcommittee on Federal Workforce, U.S. Postal Service and Labor Policy on April 8.

The bill has 216 cosponsors and will allow the USPS to apply billions in pension overpayments to the congressional mandate that requires the USPS to pre-fund the healthcare benefits of future retirees, according to the postal employee network website.

'We are trying to get all congressmen to sponsor the bill and to get it passed," Hose said. "No other federal agency has to prefund their retirement --- we are paying people's retirement who have not even been hired yet."

Four speakers were invited to Tuesday's event: A representative of Congressman David McKinley,

Studio owner dances over sign approval

KINGWOOD — Sally Ann can keep her sign.

More than 200 residents packed the Kingwood City Council meeting Tuesday – a meeting that had to be moved to the Civic Center to support artwork painted on the front of Sally Ann's Dance Company at the corner of South Price and Main streets.

Sally Ann Harvey Deep owns the dance studio and was asked to attend the council meeting to discuss whether her signage, which is painted on the building, violates a city ordinance. She brought along 200 close friends, parents, dance students and former dance students to make sure council knew that there was community support for the sign.

After Deep, and about a dozen of her supporters spoke, Recorder Bill Robertson said, "We have an ordinance. All I want to know is, do we meet the measurements? If so, we have no issue."

City Supervisor Francis Hyre said he was not able to measure the sign, but estimating by the number of bricks, he said it was larger than the ordinance allows. Deep said her father did measure it and found it to be in compliance with the ordinance. Mayor Jim Lobb said he calculated it as four square feet under the maximum allowed by the ordinance. Deep said her father's measurements put it at eight square feet under. Hyre said he estimated it at 155 square feet.

In the end, council voted to accept Deep's father's measurements and allow the artwork to remain. Sixteen-year-old Jake Gordon, a Preston High School junior who designed the artwork and painted it with two helpers, admitted he was relieved that it can stay. He said he's since been hired for two other projects in Kingwood, one of which is on the side of Kingwood Floral — the former occupants of Deep's building.

Supporters cited Deep's commitment to the youth of Kingwood and her 17 years as a South Price Street husiness owner

Deep's uncle, Ben Harvey, said the building at 139 S. Price St. was once the Kingwood Post Office and "a very unattractive building. It's not anymore."

Also Monday, council:

- Agreed to hire Corbin Construction to replace the sidewalk in front of the Civic Center. Corbin was the low bidder on the project at $22,612.
- Announced that a new police officer has been hired. Todd Nestor will begin work on Oct. 17. His salary will be $30,000 per year. The former Bruceton Mills resident will be relocating from Kentucky.

R-W.Va., a representative of Sen. Joe Manchin, D-W.Va., Democrat Mike Oliverio and Morgantown Post Master Tommy White.

Hose said most community members are concerned with the elimination of Saturday mail delivery as a tactic for freeing up agency funds.

"People think we just want the weekend off, but that is not true. We want the postal service to be strong and to continue running,' Hose said.

"If we do away with Saturday delivery, it is not the end of the world. We will continue on, but it is a huge part of our nation's economy," White said.

Cathy Campbell, of Westover, said she feels eliminating Saturday delivery would not be that big of a deal; however, she believes the USPS is in this financial bind due to frivolous national spending.

"We need to bring our money home from other places so we can stop having to cut necessities," Campbell said. "When you talk about taking away the postal service, you are talking about taking away a U.S. standard, which has actually become a world standard now." She said.

Raising the price of first class stamps to 46 cents, cutting back n equipment, closing processing centers and slowing mail service are also being discussed as tactics that could cut about $3 billion a year.

If Congress does not pass extensive reform to existing regulations by Friday — the end of the fiscal year — the USPS could default on a $5.5 billion mandated payment to the national treasury. That is why local postal workers and supporters are encouraging people to get the facts about the bill and to contact their congressmen, said White.

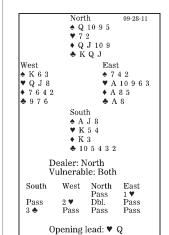

"There are several versions of the bill so if you like the current version, support it and push for it," White said." They [congress] just need to allow the postal service to create a better business model."

The USPS is responsible for 7 percent of the nation's gross national product and employs around 8.7 million Americans, White said.

White, who is not an official spokesperson for the USPS, believes postal workers do far more than most people realize.

"Our employees in Morgantown do more than just deliver the mail and sell stamps. They do great work in the community," White said. "It is not about just getting a letter, a magazine or catalog, letter carriers are out there in our communities everyday touching the customers and that is why we are one of the country's most trusted agencies.'

BRIDGE

Do not be cautious when they fit

By Phillip Alder

Self-help author Robert Collier said: "Something must be done when you find an opposing set of desires. You must set in operation a process of competition, from which one must emerge a victor and the other set be defeated." Bridge is like that, the two partnerships trying to outduel each other. Some deals end with the "par" result, the one that cannot be improved upon by either side. But more often one part ership will do better than par

What is par in this deal from my lesson on competitive bidding? What do you think of the given auction?

Taking the second question first, the auction is "perfect"! North might have opened one diamond because he has great intermediates (two 10s and two nines), but eight of his 11 points are in "quacks," which is not good. After East opens one heart, South ought to pass, although a couple of my students overcalled two clubs! West should raise to two hearts. North should make a takeout double with his maximum pass and suitable distribution. Then South should content himself with three clubs because his partner is a passed hand. (If North passes and two hearts comes around to South, he might balance with three clubs, but that very poor suit makes the overcall scary.) Note that three clubs makes, losing one trick in each suit. That is the par result. Three hearts goes down two, losing two spades, one heart, two diamonds and one club. If either East or West bids three hearts (perish the thought!), South should double and collect 500.

Lewis, 34, of Canonsburg in a Tuesday press release.

Britt said Hannah Mason was checked out in Morgantown. She has bruises and scrapes, but her unborn baby is fine.

Marcus Mason and his passengers were identified as LSU fans in a Morgantown Police Department press release, but police said they were not necessarily attacked because they support LSU.

"There was nothing to indicate that they were LSU fans on the car," Morgantown Police Lt. Harold Sperringer said. "It may not have been a WVU-LSU thing."

Sperringer said one occupant of the vehicle was wearing a LSU sweatshirt and another was wearing a LSU hat, though he wasn't sure who was wearing either item.

Britt said her son was wearing a solid white T-shirt Saturday, and all the vehicle's occupants were wearing jackets at the time of the attack.

Sperringer said as many as six people may have been involved in the attack. They have been described as white males and may have been traveling in light-colored SUV.

The attackers may have been wearing WVU colors. but the victims can't say for sure. "It's kind of sketchy," Sperringer said of the details of their appearance.

A few people who witnessed the incident — which occurred in the Purple Lot, behind Sheetz, shortly after midnight — have contacted Morgantown police since it was confirmed publicly. But Sperringer said police hope more witnesses will come forward to provide additional details.

Britt said she's pleased with the Morgantown Police Department's efforts to identify her son's attackers. And regardless of what they were wearing, she knows their behavior is not indicative of the WVU fans in Morgantown.

"People need to be aware of their surroundings and know that things like this can happen anywhere," she said.

Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke will give a speech at the Cleveland Clinic. His appearance comes a week after the Fed said it would sell short-term Treasurys and buy long-term ones to try to stimulate the economy. He'll give his speech after the close of stock trading. If Bernanke has any more insights about where the economy is headed, his remarks may have an impact on financial markets on Thursday.

How weak was manufacturing?

Orders for durable goods like planes, cars and computers tend to fluctuate sharply from one month to the next. But economists still look at the Commerce Department's monthly report on durable goods for a sense of how manufacturing is doing. We've already had several reports that manufacturing weakened further during August. The durable goods report is expected to echo that assessment.

Hope that European leaders are closer to containing that region's debt crisis sent stocks higher. It was the third straight day of gains for the Dow. German Chancellor Angela Merkel said her country would do whatever it could to help restore investor confidence in Greece. Greece's finance minister also said the country would get a new round of bailout loans in time to avoid default. Greece will run out of money next month if it does not receive the funds. The Dow rose 1.3 percent. The S&P 500 index rose 1.1 percent. The Nasdag rose 1.2 percent. Small companies rose more than larger ones, a sign that investors were moving money into riskier investments.

County smoking ban draft includes grandfather clause

Existing businesses could benefit from new recommendation

BY TRACY EDDY

The Dominion Post

The proposed county-wide smoking ban could offer exemptions for businesses mainly based on tobacco sales, such as the Smoker Friendly tobacco stores or X-hale, the hookah lounge on Walnut Street.

The ban also could require hotels to make 90 percent of their rooms nonsmoking by January 2014.

Morgantown City Council was presented with a draft of the proposed smoking ban during its Tuesday Committee of the Whole meeting. The Monongalia County Board of Health (BOH) is expected to receive a draft during its meeting today.

The draft was recommended by a committee made up of City Manager Terrence Moore and BOH members Donna Tennant and Robert Wheeler.

City Attorney Steve Fanok said the draft for the county's ban includes a grandfathering provision for existing businesses based on tobacco sales. Under the law, if those businesses were to close their doors for 60 days or more, they would lose their grandfathered-in status and could no longer allow smoking.

Also, according to the draft, hotels and motels could allow smoking in 20 percent of their rooms once the law is adopted, but would have to gradually decrease that percentage in the next two years.

By January 2013, smoking could be allowed in 15 percent of hotel and motel rooms, Moore said. Hotels and motels could only allow smoking in 10 percent of their rooms by January 2014.

The BOH is not expected to vote on the county-wide ban until November, Moore said, but could open the issue up for public comment after today's meeting.

Fanok said the city would have two options if the BOH passes a county-wide smoking ban — council could keep its own law in place but amend it to match the county's or the city could repeal its law. The county's law would include Morgantown's city

Councilman Bill Byrne said he would rather the city amend its own law to match a county one, if it's passed. That way, if the BOH decided later to repeal the countywide smoking ban, the city would still have its own law in place, he said.

The city's current law to ban smoking in all its bars, restaurants and workplaces is set to go into effect Jan. 1.

Finance director: OPEB lone cause for $6.3M deficit

BY JASON HOWERTON

The Dominion Post

The Monongalia County Board of Education (BOE) accepted its annual financial statement for 2010-'11 on Tuesday, which included a $6.3 million deficit in the general fund.

Finance Director Terry Hawkins said the lone cause for the deficit is Other Post-Employment Benefits (OPEB) liabilities.

The BOE would have been $3.4 million in the green if it weren't for $9.3 million in OPEB costs. OPEB used to show on the state board's financial statements, but it now falls to the counties, who receive no state funding for it, Hawkins said.

"OPEB is made up of employee health benefits during retirement," he added. "It is cumulative so it was added to last year's balance."

The BOE currently has a total OPEB liability balance of $20.6 million, Hawkins said. That is the amount that the board has

"set aside" for OPEB. Board member Nancy Walker said OPEB costs are affecting counties across

MON COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

West Virginia and it's something state legislators need to address.

The question that no one at the state level seems to be able to answer is how to fund it, she added.

If the state Legislature tackles OPEB funding during the upcoming interim sessions and decides to help counties fund the liabilities, it will free up some money for the BOE and will go into the general fund, Hawkins said.

Additionally, the BOE's total net assets decreased from the previous year by $1.8 million, which Hawkins said was also due to OPEB.

The board saw a nearly $2 million increase in revenue from property taxes and received a roughly $14 million increase in state funding, according to the board's financial statement.

Board expenses also increased by about $16 million. Officials said school renovations and construction caused increases in spending.

In other business, Clay-

Battelle High School reacted to a possible bomb threat Friday, which resulted in a police and K-9 search for possible explosives, Superintendent Frank Devono said.

Devono said there was writing found in a school bathroom that was perceived as a possible threat. The Monongalia County Sheriff's Department was notified.

Students were evacuated until police and their pooches finished searching the school, the superintendent said. Search results were negative.

C-B looking solid; MHS, UHS face a climb to playoffs

QUICK, WHICH MON COUNTY high school football team has the best record? Did you guess Morgantown? Sorry, that's not it. University? Nope, wrong again.

The answer: Clay-Battelle. Yep, the mighty Cee-Bees (3-1) are rolling these days. In fact, if the playoffs started today, they'd be the only county school to qualify.

For those who don't already know, the top 16 teams in each classification earn playoff spots. The Cee-Bees, winners of three straight, are Class A's 14thranked team — not bad for a team that went 4-6 and missed the playoffs a year ago. Not bad at all considering the Cee-Bees had to replace a graduated twotime, first-team all-state running back, Jordan Hockenberry.

Meanwhile, Morgantown (2-2) and University (2-3) are on the outside looking in, midway through the season. MHS is in a three-way tie at No. 18, with Hedgesville (2-2) and Wheeling Park (2-2), while UHS is No. 23. (The complete ratings are on Page 6-B.)

If that sounds strange, that's because it is. MHS and UHS have been as dominant as any two teams in the state during the past decade.

The two combined have made the playoffs 21 times since 2000 – UHS was the only miss, in 2006. The last time MHS missed out on the postseason was 1994.

Even more impressive: MHS and UHS boast 14 state semifinal appearances (MHS nine times, UHS five) and four state titles (all by MHS) since 2000. The last time neither made the semis was 1999.

So yeah, it's weird to think that neither would be in the playoffs if they began today.

But, the playoffs don't start today. That means UHS and MHS aren't out of it yet, and C-B still has some work to do.

Actually, MHS (19.5 points per game, 17.75 points allowed per game) is in pretty good shape. Four of its last six games are at home and none of its remaining opponents has a winning record. To say Morgantown has a good chance at running the table and finishing 8-2 is realistic. So, no need for MHS fans to panic.

As for you Hawks fans, you have reason to worry. Though UHS (16.8 ppg, 18 papg) plays three of its final five at home, the Hawks have a few tough games ahead of them. UHS plays at No. 9 Fairmont Senior (3-1) on Friday, then hosts No. 2 Bridgeport (5-0) next week. The Hawks also have a date with the Mohigans in the Mohawk Bowl, the final week of their season.

Don't get me wrong, by no means am I declaring the Hawks dead. It's just painfully obvious that they have their work cut out

And then you have the Cee-Bees. During their hot start, the Cee-Bees have become the state's not Class A, the state's — fifthranked offense, averaging 47 points per game. In their three wins, C-B averaged a scary 58 ppg. The C-B defense hasn't been bad either, pitching shutouts in its last two games.

But — yes, there is a "but" those three impressive C-B wins came against teams that aren't so impressive. Their three opponents have a combined 2-11 record.

Like MHS and UHS, the Cee-Bees play most of their remaining games at home (four of six). In the weeks to come, though, the competition gets cranked up a notch.

C-B plays No. 9 Van (3-1), No. 19 Cameron (2-3), No. 23 Notre Dame (2-3) and No. 13 Madonna (3-1) — along with Tygarts Valley (0-4) and Valley Wetzel (1-4). C-B will probably need to go 7-3 (at the worst) to make a return to the playoffs.

Will it be easy? No, probably not. But at least the Cee-Bees control their own destiny, while MHS and UHS flirt with a rare stint on the bubble.

WVU FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK

Defense not turning up enough turnovers

BY ED OWENS

At this time last year, the WVU football team was minus-4 in turnover margin. The Mountaineers had forced six turnovers (three fumbles, three interceptions) through the first four games but had made 10 of their own (seven fumbles, three interceptions).

The No. 22 Mountaineers are once again minus-4 in turnover margin and once again 3-1 after Saturday's loss to now-top-ranked LSU, in the fourth game of the 2011 season.

WVU has limited its mistakes, committing four fumbles and three interceptions, but the defense hasn't been as opportunistic as it was last season. The Mountaineers have three interceptions (all against Maryland) and are one of just eight FBS teams in the nation that

Schwarzenberg and Paladino claim crowns

BY KAYLYN CHRISTOPHER

FAIRMONT — The Preston High cross-country team claimed the victory over runner-up University High at the Bee-Knight Combo, held Tuesday, at White Day Golf Course.

The meet, which combines the girls' and boys' team scores to determine the overall program winner, switched venues due to the recent construction of a new football field at Preston High.

"It was disappointing that we couldn't host it at home since we have a tradition with the Mountaintop Combo," Preston High head coach Paul Martin said. "But White Day was gracious enough to let us come here and we collaborated with East Fairmont to put on a good meet."

Senior Peter Schwarzenberg (16:43) and junior Brody Born (16:51) swept the top two spots for the Preston boys.

Patriots overpower Mohigans

Mistakes plus lack of communication plague v-ball team

BY ANDREW BARNES For The Dominion Post

The Morgantown High girls' volleyball team came away with a disappointing loss to the Patriots of Parkersburg South, 3-1, on Tuesday. PSHS dominated the Mohigans with strong defense and stronger offense through the four games. Lack of communication and focus plagued the Mohigans despite strong performances from seniors Emily Luck, Alana Neptune and Jordan Roof.

For the Mohigans, the night started out rough. PSHS jumped to an 11-3 lead in the first game and never gave it up. MHS built momentum during the middle of the game, but key mistakes stalled their efforts. The Patriots took the win, 25-20.

"We were playing well, but it was just that last push over the top is what it came down to," MHS coach B.J. Campione said. "We kind of let them have a couple."

The Mohigans responded with their own dominating game, making adjustments and setting up well-placed spikes. A strong team effort secured a 25-17 win. Luck powered the victory with her defense, racking up numerous kills. She ended the night with 17 kills and 18 digs, and Neptune contributed 10 kills.

'When we were talking, we played well," said Roof, who ended the night with six kills, three digs and four blocks. "When we didn't,

LeBlanc expects rebound

WVU men at JMU off rare home loss

BY TODD MURRAY

The Dominion Post

For WVU men's soccer coach Marlon LeBlanc, today's 7 p.m. game, at James Madison, is more than just his team's final nonconference test of the regular season.

Much more.

"I think it's going to be an interesting test of our character," LeBlanc said.

LeBlanc's Mountaineers (4-3-1) are coming off their first loss at Dick Dlesk Soccer Stadium in more than a year Sunday. Big East Conference rival South Florida scored two unanswered goals in a 2-1 victory.

The loss in the league opener snapped WVU's 13-game home winning streak and sent the Mountaineers tumbling out of the NSCAA national rankings for the first time this season.

"I like my team," LeBlanc said after the USF setback. "I think we're going to bounce back just fine."

The Mountaineers have no other choice.

"That's over and done with," junior midfielder Shadow Sebele said of the home winning streak. "We have to keep going and try to build up another streak. Last year, we lost one game to Monmouth.

"Hopefully, this will be the only home game we lose this year. We're going to go to practice and work on some things we didn't do right today and hopefully correct them and be ready for [today]."

WVU visits a James Madison team (3-1-1) that hasn't lost at its JMU Soccer Complex this season. The Dukes' lone setback came against then-No. 4 North Carolina, 4-1, in Chapel Hill, on Sept. 13.

The Mountaineers defeated James Madison, 1-0, a year ago, at Dick Dlesk, on a Peabo Doue goal in the 18th minute. That was WVU's second victory in six games against the Dukes.

James Madison's coach, Tom Martin, is the second-winningest coach in the Division I ranks, with 444 victories in 26 seasons.

'James Madison is a good program," LeBlanc said. "Tom Martin has been there forever. They are going to be a tough nut to crack on the road. I wouldn't trade my team for any other one. We'll go at it and try to be better [today]. That's all we can do."

The USF loss was difficult to stomach because LeBlanc and his players believed they had

Slive: No more SEC expansion, for now

BRIEFS

Associated Press

Commissioner Mike Slive said no other schools are currently being considered as 14th members of the Southeastern Conference. Slive said Tuesday that Texas A&M is the only school to apply for membership. The Aggies will join the SEC next July, a move that was ushered in with festivities in College Station. Slive and Texas A&M President R. Bowen Loftin said in a conference call that a team of senior administrators from both will work on a transition plan, including scheduling. Slive declined to discuss what would make a potential 14th member appealing, saying "we'll just see how the future plays out." He reiterated that he expects to have 13 teams in 2012-'13. He said the SEC will begin talks this year to rework its TV deals.

College football

Vanderbilt starting linebacker Tristan Strong will miss the rest of the season. He hurt his leg covering a punt in the Commodores' loss at then-No. 12 South Carolina. Strong ranked third on the team with 13 solo tackles and tied for third with 16 total tackles, both career highs.

■ Connecticut apparently has found its first-string quarterback. Coach Paul Pasqualoni said junior Johnny McEntee has clearly separated himself from the other two who had been competing for the position — freshman Michael Nebrich and redshirt freshman Scott McCummings. McEntee threw for 213 yards and two touchdowns in the Huskies' 17-3 win Saturday, against Buffalo.

Baseball

Ozzie Guillen tweeted that he was in Miami and "ready to go" with the Florida Marlins, and the clubhouse buzz was all about the new manager. One minor holdup: The Marlins had yet to confirm a deal, saving some suspense for the final day of the regular season today. But Guillen's website eliminated much of the drama by leaking the news he has agreed to become the Marlins' manager.

■ Relatives of the San Francisco Giants fan nearly beaten to death outside Dodger Stadium said he went outside for the first time in nearly six months as he shows more signs of improvement. Bryan Stow's family wrote on their website that the father of two looked toward the sun Friday and said, "It's magical."

■ Authorities in the Dominican Republic said Florida Marlins closer Leo Nunez will not face charges for using false documents to sign a professional baseball contract. Central Electoral Commission President Roberto Rosario urged any athlete in a similar situation to contact authorities and help identify whoever provides false documents.

Hockey

The NHL suspended Anaheim forward Jean-Francois Jacques for the rest of the preseason and the Ducks' first five regular-season games for leaving the bench on a legal line change to start a fight with Vancouver's Mike Duco. Based on Jacques' average salary, he will lose $17,567.55 for the suspension.

Auto racing

Matt Kenseth said he was "over 90 percent sure" his wife was injured when she crashed while practicing for a charity race at Charlotte Motor Speedway. Katie Kenseth wrecked the Bandolero car she was driving late Monday and broke her shoulder blade. The 2003 NASCAR champion was at the track coaching his wife and sprinted down pit road to help her after the accident.

Miscellany

The World Anti-Doping Agency's updated list of banned substances offers no change to its evaluation of clenbuterol, the drug that could strip Alberto Contador of his third Tour de France victory. Contador blamed contaminated meat for his positive test en route to winning the 2010 Tour. WADA's 2012 list allows for asthma drug formoterol when inhaled in "therapeutic doses," while beta blockers have been allowed in such sports as wrestling, sailing and modern pentathlon. Nicotine was not added to the prohibited list.

Jurisprudence

A judge in Atlanta granted bond to ex-NBA player Javaris Crittenton, charged with murder in an August driveby shooting. Fulton County Magistrate Judge Karen Woodson allowed Crittenton to go free on $230,000 bond. Woodson rejected a motion to dismiss the charges against Crittenton in the shooting of Julian Jones, 22, who was killed as she walked along an Atlanta street.

A judge is allowing a lawsuit to proceed in limited form against the owners of the New York Mets by the trustee recovering money for investors who lost money to jailed financier Bernard Madoff. U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff said the lawsuit brought by Trustee Irving Picard can seek to recover up to $295 million in profits that were paid out to the Mets' owners during the multidecade fraud. But he said Picard can gain that sum only by proving the Mets' owners were "willfully blind" to the fraud.

MHS girls in OVAC semifinals

PREP ROUNDUP

The Dominion Post

Six players each scored a goal as Morgantown High coasted past Wheeling Central, 6-0, Tuesday, in an OVAC girls' soccer tournament quarterfinal game, at St. Clairsville, Ohio.

Charlotte Vester and Maggie Snively scored within 15 seconds of each other, then Mary Beth Selby, Natasha Trott, Makayla Schmidt and Tyler Jordan also found the net for the Mohigans (11-0-2).

Megan Murdock had two assists and MacKenzie Cira, Selby, Jordan and Mollie Shadle one each. Erika Yohn and Trott handled the goalkeeping and combined for two saves.

MHS plays Parkersburg South or Wheeling Park in the semifinals, at 10 a.m. Saturday, in Wheeling.

Boys' soccer Preston 4 Albert Gallatin 0

Ivo Cabral scored two goals and assisted on a third as the Knights (8-5) beat the Colonials, at Uniontown, Pa.

Matt Scheffel opened the scoring, with an assist from Cabral, and Tyler "Poppy" Steadman followed with a goal, assisted by Jake Smith. Cabral netted the final two, with assists from Scheffel and Zach Bryan.

Terrance Fanning and Colton Wilson combined on four saves in goal for PHS, which plays today, at Southern Garrett, in Oakland, Md.

The Knights' JVs tied, 1-1. Alex Barlow scored with an assist from Kieran Damm, and goalie Colton Wilson made one save.

Zach Poling

Golf

Senior Zach Poling became the first Clay-Battelle golfer ever to qualify for the state tournament. Poling shot a 91 during the Class A Region II match at Valley View golf course, in Moorefield.

Volleyball Clay-Battelle 3 Valley Wetzel 1

After splitting the first two sets, the Cee-Bees won two straight to win, 25-18, 18-25, 25-8, 25-19.

Ashley Pride had 11 kills to lead C-B, while Breann Dean (six kills), Hailee Foley (15 assists), Brooke Cropper (nine kills), Lindsey Cole (six aces) and Danielle Poling (seven aces) also had strong nights.

The Cee-Bees (8-6) play next on Tuesday, at home, against Madonna and Trinity.

East Fairmont 3 Preston 1

The Knights dropped a 25-16, 20-25, 16-25, 5-25 decision to the Bees late Monday. Tana Hershman had 17 points (three aces), 13 hits and two kills, Laken Jones collected 11 points, seven hits and a kill, and Becca Hagedorn contributed seven points, 17 hits and four kills.

The Bees also won the JV match, 25-10, 25-14.

Texans cut former WVU RB Slaton

HOUSTON — The Houston Texans released running back Steve Slaton on Tuesday and signed Chris Ogbonnaya from the practice squad.

The 5-foot-9, 209-pound Slaton was a third-round pick in 2008, out of WVU, and was the NFL's top rookie rusher with 1,282 yards. He rushed for 437 yards but fumbled seven times in 2009 and was placed on injured reserve after 11 games. He had neck surgery after the season, and never regained his form.

Steve Slaton

Arian Foster emerged in 2010, and Slaton was relegated to backup duty and returning kicks. Foster has been limited by a left hamstring strain early this season, and 2010 second-round pick Ben Tate topped 100 yards rushing in Houston's first two games. Slaton has only seven carries for 20 vards this season.

Houston coach Gary Kubiak said Monday that he's optimistic that Foster will be ready when Houston (2-1) plays Pittsburgh (2-1), on Sunday.

Foster, the NFL's leading rusher last season, has been inactive for two of Houston's first three games.

"I hope he's full-go," Kubiak said. "I know he's champing at the bit to get back on the field full time, and we'll sit there and watch how he works and hopefully everything's full speed."

The 6-foot, 220-pound Ogbonnaya was the Texans' leading rusher in the preseason and the only running back who avoided an injury during training camp. A former Texas star, Ogbonnaya was a seventh-round draft pick by St. Louis in 2009, then was cut last September.

At WVU, Slaton ran for 3,923 yards and 52 touchdowns in his career, averaging 5.8 yards a carry, and caught 65 passes for 805 yards and five scores.

He owns the WVU record for touchdowns scored in a game, with six. He was the first Mountaineer ever to have 100 yards rushing (215) and 100 yards receiving (130) in the same game.

He owns the Mountaineers' season marks for rushing yards (1,744), allpurpose yards (2,104), and touchdowns rushing and receiving (19).

that is when things fell apart." The third game was a tense back-and-forth battle, with the teams never separated by more than four points. MHS held on to an early lead until the very end, when PSHS prevailed, 25-23.

"We made mental mistakes at the wrong time," Campione said. "That game right there was one where mistakes at the very end cost us."

PSHS's endurance through the third game turned into an overwhelming attack on MHS for the fourth. Seniors Carmen Cutlip and Mikalya Fleak deflated an apparently fatigued Mohigans team with a series of kills and aces. The Patriots kept the Mohigans off balance and guessing, and won the game, 2510, and the match.

"Maybe that was just hard for them to come back from the third match," Campione said. "That was a tough loss. But it's a matter of mental toughness of pushing through and letting it go. It is something we're working on."

The loss puts the Mohigans at 9-6-3 before their next matchup, at Wheeling Park, on Thursday. Communication and mental prepping will be the focus before they hit the court, Campione said. That mental toughness will mean better communication and focus on the next matchup.

"It is always a challenge to come back from losing a game," senior Shannon McCombie said. "But we're determined and we're good at encouraging each other to come back from a loss."

Tigers' ace Verlander wins AL pitching Triple Crown

Rays-Red Sox wild-card race tied on last day

BASEBALL

Wire reports

DETROIT — Justin Verlander apparently has won the American League's pitching Triple Crown.

The Angels' Jered Weaver, the only remaining pitcher who could have denied Verlander the Triple Crown, was scratched from his final start of the season, after the Angels were eliminated from the playoff race Monday night.

Verlander leads Weaver in the ERA race, 2.40 to 2.41. (It's even closer if you carry out the numbers they are about one-third of one point apart.)

Unless Weaver were to pitch in relief and lower his ERA, Verlander will finish leading the league in all three Triple Crown categories: victories (24), strikeouts (250) and ERA.

The Dodgers' Clayton Kershaw has won the NL Triple Crown (21, 248, 2.28).

They are the first pitchers to win a Triple Crown since San Diego's Jake Peavy, in 2007. It's the first time both leagues have produced a pitching Triple Crown winner since 1924

Verlander made his final start of the season Saturday.

What's good news for Verlander in the Triple Crown race might be mixed news for the Tigers in their bid to win home field in the playoffs.

Ervin Santana and Weaver were due to start the final two games of the season against Texas, Tuesday night and tonight. The Angels must beat the Rangers one of those games for the Tigers to have a chance at home field in the first round of the playoffs. With the Angels eliminated, manager Mike Scioscia selected young pitchers Tyler Chatwood and Garrett Richards to start those games.

Red Sox 8, Orioles 7

BALTIMORE — Boston maintained a share of the AL wild-card lead, using four home runs to beat Baltimore and set up a dramatic conclusion to the regular season.

The skidding Red Sox were 6-19 in September before rebounding to edge the last-place Orioles. The win, combined with Tampa Bay's 5-3 victory against the New York Yankees, kept Boston and the Rays tied with one game left.

Rays 5, Yankees 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Matt Joyce and Ben Zobrist homered, helping surging Tampa Bay continue its improbable chase for the AL wild card with a victory against the New York Yankees.

The Rays, seeking their third playoff berth in four seasons, began the night tied with Boston, after making up nine games in the standings since Sept. 4.

The Rays turned the third triple play in franchise history.

White Sox 2, Blue Jays 1

CHICAGO — Mark Buehrle (13-9) pitched seven shutout innings in possibly his final start for Chicago.

Twins 7, Royals 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Rene Tosoni hit a grand slam and Chris Parmelee also went deep to lift Minnesota.

National League Phillies 7, Braves 1

ATLANTA — Atlanta is doing its best to give away what looked like a certain playoff berth just a few weeks ago. Derek Lowe had another miserable outing, surrendering five runs in fourplus innings, and Philadelphia romped to a victory that left the Braves on the brink going to the final day of the regular season.

Chase Utley, Hunter Pence and Jimmy Rollins homered for the playoffbound Phillies to back a three-hit outing by Roy Oswalt (9-10), who tuned up for the playoffs with a strong performance in a largely disappointing season.

The Braves lost their fourth in a row and eighth in 11 games, sending them to the final day of the regular season assured of no more than a one-game lead on the St. Louis Cardinals, who were at Houston.

Marlins 3. Nationals 2

MIAMI — Bryan Petersen homered with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning and Javier Vazquez (13-11) pitched a five-hitter as Florida beat Washington.

Petersen hit the first pitch from reliever Doug Slaten (0-2).

Vazquez, 35, may have pitched the final game of his career as he is likely to retire at the end of the season.

the competition that he meant business, took the race out from the gun, as planned, and was pleased to see his teammate follow the example.

gantown High in the boys' race was junior Cameron Greza (18:43), in 16th place.

"We have a young team with three freshmen in our top five," MHS head coach Mike Ryan said. "Cameron was pacing two of our top guys to help them be a little more aggressive out there."

Greza succeeded, despite the late afternoon heat, as teammate Jacob Jacquez followed close behind with a time of 18:50.

"Regionals and states are still four or five weeks away and we are progressing well," Greza said.

Also turning in a strong finish for the boys was University High's Jordan Brown-Stobbe, who placed fourth, in a time of 17:29.

On the girls' side, the number-one ranked runner in the state, University High's Amelia Paladino, showed that her place at the top is well-deserved. The sophomore ran away from the field to win the race with a time of 20:04, with Preston sophomore Kaitlyn Workman (20:29) claiming second.

According to Paladino, the race served as a preview to the Region I championships, which are also set to take place at White Day Golf Course, on Oct. 20.

"Golf courses are hard to run on because you can always see what's ahead of you and what you have left to run," she said. "Now we will know when to push the pace and when to conserve."

University High coach Dan Demchak was pleased with his team's performance as all seven runners placed in the top 20. According to Demchak, the race provided great preparation for when the Hawks again compete against local rivals Morgantown High and Preston at the regional and state championships, in just a few short weeks.

"They got to get an idea of what to do the next time," he said. "It's all practice for regionals, and that is the stepping stone for the big one."

more to do with the loss than the Bulls. The Mountaineers failed to clear one ball, leading to a goal. Another goal was set up by a foul on a breakaway.

"We made two big-time mistakes that cost us," LeBlanc said. "They didn't do anything we weren't prepared for. We just made a couple of critical errors and didn't get enough of those really good attacks that we had where we got the ball squared across. We didn't do a good job of finishing out the attacks and obviously did a poor job a couple of times in the back."

DEFENSE

haven't recovered a fumble. "We played well overall," WVU head coach Dana Holgorsen said of his defense's performance in Saturday's 47-21 loss. "We were every bit as physical as LSU was, which was really good to see. But we gave up a couple of big plays in the passing game, we still didn't get any sacks and we still didn't get any turnovers."

Holgorsen found fault with his own players on two of the Mountaineers' four turnovers against LSU.

"If you look at the turnovers that we had, [quarterback Geno Smith] was responsible for one," Holgorsen said. "The [fumble] on the snap obviously could've been prevented: That's on him. And [inside receiver Tavon Austin] dropped a ball that bounced off his head and went up into the air: That's on Tavon."

Holgorsen credited the other two turnovers to the outstanding play of Tigers cornerback Tyrann Mathieu. Mathieu forced a fumble in the first quarter, when he wrestled the ball out of the hands of WVU senior receiver Bradley Starks, and, in the second quarter, he jumped in front of a screen pass intended for Austin. tipped the ball to himself and secured the interception. Mathieu returned it to the 1-yard line, setting up a quick LSU touchdown right before halftime.

It was the kind of ballhawking defense Holgorsen hopes to see come from his players in the near future.

"Those two plays by [Mathieu] were as good as you're going to see all year in college football," Holgorsen said. "Their defense made plays on the ball, which is something we continue to stress with our defense.

Tavon Austin

"We just haven't done it. We've got three picks in four games and we've got zero strips or fumbles in four games. That's got to get better."

Back of the future?

Four WVU running backs have at least 10 carries this season. Freshman Vernard Roberts leads the way with 41, freshman Andrew Buie has 26, freshman Dustin Garrison has 13 and junior Shawne Alston, who has appeared in only two games due to a neck injury, has 10. Through the first month of the season, the Mountaineers' crowded backfield hasn't shown any signs of thinning out.

"We're still searching for guys who are every-down backs and we don't have one yet," Holgorsen said. But when it comes to production, Garrison seems to be distancing himself from the pack. He has the team's longest run from scrimmage (17 yards), he has scored two touchdowns and he is averaging 5 yards per carry. Alston and Buie are the next closest, at 3.4 yards per attempt.

Garrison also led the WVU rushing attack against a tough LSU defense, picking up a season-best 46 yards on a season-high 10 carries. He entered the game shortly before halftime and remained in the game as WVU's primary back for the entire second half.

"Dustin came in last week and gave us really good production in one half of football," Holgorsen said. "That was as good of a half as we've gotten out of a running back this year.

"He got a chance and he did some good things, so we kept him in there. We gave it to him a few times and he made some really good runs without a lot of space."

But that doesn't mean Holgorsen is ready to name him the starter yet.

'We'll re-evaluate it [Tuesday], like we always do, but I imagine that when our first team comes up, Dustin will be in there," Holgorsen said. "But whether that's the case tomorrow, the next day or Saturday — that depends on practice."

Sending a message

Redshirt freshman right tackle Quinton Spain got his first real game-time opportunity against LSU when teammate Pat Eger went down with an injury. Spain (6-foot-5, 338 pounds) is the Mountaineers' biggest linemen, but Holgorsen said he has a lot of work to do before he cracks WVU's regular rotation.

"He's lazy," Holgorsen said of Spain. "Much like he is in practice. He's a big, massive guy with good feet who will eventually be a really good player. But right now, he does things on his time and not on our time. We'll keep trying to get him on our time."

"He changed football there so much," WVU's former head coach of 21 years said. "He had Bo Schembechler (who went on to coach Michigan) and some really great guys there, and I remember seeing them in their football offices, which were these barracks, these little wooden buildings, and they'd be in there until 8 or 9 or 10 o'clock at night every night. I'd wonder what they were doing in there all that time.'

"Working" was the answer. Perry compiled a 77-11-5 record in 10 seasons at Bowling Green, turning the Falcons' program around. A year after going 2-7, Bowling Green went 7-1-1 with Perry at the helm. In Nehlen's three seasons as quarterback, the Falcons had a 21-2-4 record, but he's quick to pass off credit. Perry's positive outlook was contagious and he had a way of inspiring all players. "After my sophomore year and being around Doyt Perry for a year, I wanted to coach. Being a pro baseball player didn't seem important to me any more, and I admired what he did for the team and all the players. I wanted to be like him. Doyt Perry is the reason I went into coaching. He was the most unique guy I'd ever been around."

Fifty-five years later, and more than a decade since retiring with 202 career college wins, Nehlen still has many dear friends and fond memories from his 16 years (four as a student-athlete and 12 as an assistant and head coach) at Bowling Green. That's why it will be a special weekend for Nehlen and wife Merry Ann, who will host friends Kenny and Rita Scheoni and expect to hear from a number of other BGSU alums before Saturday's WVU-Bowling Green game, at Milan Puskar Stadium.

"I'm sure they'll be calling, saying, 'Hey, Bones, got any tickets?' And I will say, 'No, I don't, I'm not in the ticket business, but you can buy some.' '

WVU varsity club coordinator Dale Wolfley said this weekend is packed with events surrounding the game between Nehlen's two favorite schools. The Mountaineer Athletic Club is looking to endow four scholarships given to the Mountaineers' quarterbacks each year in BGSU file photo Don Nehlen went 21-2-4 in three seasons as Bowling Green's head coach.

Doyt Perry

Nehlen's honor. There's a fundraising golf outing and dinner at Nemacolin on Friday (foursome must donate $10,000 to participate), and on Saturday, Nehlen and a group of 25-plus former WVU quarterbacks will lead the team on the "Mountaineer Mantrip" and into the stadium. Nehlen and those quarterbacks will be available to sign autographs in the Puskar Center and will serve as WVU's honorary captains against the Falcons. They'll be recognized at some point during the game.

'This is a great way to honor coach Nehlen," Wolfley said. "It's giving just due for all he's done."

Winning at BGSU

Nehlen appreciates WVU's gestures, and he finds himself wandering down memory lane as the Falcons (3-1) prepare for their third trip to Morgantown. Nehlen went 2-0 against his alma mater while at WVU (wins in 1988 and 1991), but it was in northwest Ohio that he not only fell in love with the idea of coaching, but also got his break into the college game.

In 1967, he accepted an assistant coaching job at Bowling Green for $9,000 a year over an $11,000 offer from Ohio State. The next year, he was named head coach at Bowling Green, where he compiled a 53-35-4 record in nine seasons and earned the nickname "Master of the Upset" from BGSU fans following wins against Syracuse, Purdue and Brigham Young.

But by 1976, Nehlen was in need of a change. His alma mater forced coaches to teach on the side, and Nehlen felt he needed to go elsewhere to further his career.

"We were all tenured professors, and I really thought that hurt our recruiting,' Nehlen said. "The other Mid-American schools weren't doing that anymore, so I thought that made Bowling Green a very difficult job.'

He'll never forget a phone conversation he had around that time with Schembechler, who was coaching Michigan.

"I said, 'Bo, I am running faster than I've ever run and I'm not getting very far,' " Nehlen recalled. "That's when he said, 'I'd like you on my staff.' He just hired me."

Learning to work

After three seasons in Ann Arbor, Nehlen was offered the WVU job, and the rest is history. But as Nehlen, 75, looks back, he realizes he developed his disciplined work ethic at Bowling Green. Nehlen has been asked to visit the BGSU alumni tailgate before Saturday's game, and he's looking forward to the visit.

"You have to work harder," Nehlen said of what it takes to win at a smaller school like Bowling Green. "You get home at 3 a.m. from a recruiting trip and get up to teach a class at 8. That's what it takes. I'd drive home from a recruiting trip to Cincinnati or Akron or Youngstown and get home at 1 or 2 a.m. and then get up to teach a class early the next morning. That was during the season and during recruiting season, and it was challenging.

"I learned if someone puts an obstacle in front of you, you have to get over it. I think those players respected us for our work ethic because we recruited some pretty good players."

Despite that history, WVU fans need not worry about Nehlen having split feelings when the ball is kicked off Saturday

"Oh, I'm a Mountaineer now," he said. "I've been a Mountaineer for a long time."

Former quarterbacks will be back for an autograph session Saturday

WVU ROUNDUP

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Dozens of former WVU quarterbacks, from Richard Loring to Pat White, are expected to attend an autograph session from 2-2:45 p.m. Saturday, at the Caperton Indoor Practice Facility, as part of the Don Nehlen Quarterback Scholarship weekend.

The session, facilitated by the Mountaineer Athletic Club, will follow the quarterbacks' participation in the "Mountaineer Mantrip" that precedes kickoff of the WVU-Bowling Green football game, at 3:30 p.m.

No outside items may be signed. A special commemorative photo will be available for $5. To accommodate as many autograph requests as

Heart Walk

WVU's Student Government Association, the Center for Civic Engagement and the Mountaineer Parents Club will hold the third annual Student Memorial Scholarship Heart Walk on Oct. 15, during Fall Family Weekend.

It's a 5K run or walk from noon-3 p.m., at the Student Recreation Center fields. The entry fee is $10 for WVU students and $20 for all others. Everyone is welcome, and each participant gets a Tshirt and pedometer, as well as entrance into raffles for prizes. Students will get community service hours.

The Student Memorial Scholarship is meant to honor the memory of students who lost their lives while attending WVU. It goes each year to a student who displays an outstanding sense of leadership through a student organization and is presented to the student at the annual SGA Inauguration ceremony.

MARYANNE REED REAL FLAVOR

Appetizer not as important as the entree

IN DINING AND DATING, first impressions are extremely important.

In dining, if you don't like the appetizer, you may not stick around for the entree. In dating, if you aren't immediately bowled over by your new boyfriend, chances are you won't be getting together for the next "course."

Luckily for me, I got a second chance with my husband Bill. Set up on a blind date 15 years ago, our first encounters were a recipe for disaster.

Ashamed to admit this now, I researched his likes and dislikes, so I could make myself more appealing. Learning he was an avid outdoorsman, I told him I loved to mountain bike and cross-country ski an exaggeration. I also knew he was a vegetarian, so I described myself as an excellent vegetarian cook — an outright lie.

In fact, in those days, I barely cooked. Ate out mostly, or caged dinner from friends. Some nights I would even stoop to a supper of cold cereal or popcorn.

But I decided if I could read a cookbook, I could make a meal. Offering to make dinner on our second date, I picked up a copy of Jane Brody's "Good Food" and discovered the perfect recipe — "Lentils Magyar," a kind of vegetarian goulash, with exotic appeal.

Needless to say, the meal that followed was inedible. I undercooked the lentils making them hard as pebbles and I added too much paprika, giving the dish an unpleasant smoky flavor.

Bravely, Bill ate the stew and pretended to like it. He, too, was trying to make a positive first impression.

During those first months, I tortured Bill with several more foodie failures, including curried noodles (too much coconut milk) lentil stew (used cinnamon instead of cumin), then the piece d'resistance — the blue cheese tart.

Not realizing that blue cheese is best taken in small doses, I served it as a main course. After the first bite, Bill, smiled and said, "This is pretty good!" By the fourth mouthful, he was grimacing, and by the sixth, he put his fork down and declared, "I can't eat another bite."

Fortunately, my terrible cooking didn't deter Bill, nor did my limitations as an outdoors athlete. By that time, we were both smitten — in love with each other's genuine self, rather than our embellished versions. And as our relationship deepened, we grew to accept, even appreciate our differences. For example, Bill became the cook in the family, and I turned out to be the baker. I learned to enjoy cross-country skiing, but decided the rough sport of mountain biking was not for me. Fifteen years later and happily married, I have come to realize that in a lasting relationship, the appetizer is not nearly as important as the entree.

What really matters is your commitment to the long haul and the give-and-take of everyday living. Being there for each other to celebrate life's joys and harder moments — a work promotion denied, the death of a parent, a close call with cancer. Whether it's filet mignon or Hamburger Helper, the "main course" is what sustains you.

And while the occasional "dessert" is welcome — flowers on Valentines Day, breakfast in bed, a romantic dinner by candlelight — the sweetest part of marriage is sharing life's journey together, through its five-starred meals and zero-starred failures. Just avoid the blue cheese.

What's hot, and what's not, in the world of cuisine

BY KATIE McDOWELL

The Dominion Post

Then it comes to something as fashionable as food, there will always be trends. Be it the latest hot ingredient, cuisine, preparation or presentation, what goes on our plates is often more influenced by trends than the frontrow celebrities at Fall Fashion Week.

In recent years, we've seen the rise (and slow decline) of the cupcake. Now, food experts say, it's the doughnut that's king. Latin foods reigned as the cuisines of the ing over. Remember those tralian cooking are tak-

fancy vertically stacked dishes that were everywhere in the first decade of the 2000s? These days, chefs are plating more simply and allowing the food to speak for itself, Ohlinger said.

And according to Judy Spade, co-owner of Cafe Bacchus, the freshness of that food is a major issue in today's foodie circles.

And they both agreed: Bacon is big. that way.

up-to-date on the latest and greatest in the gastronome world, we compiled a few of Ohlinger's and Spade's picks for what's hot, and what's not.

Bacon

"Everybody loves bacon," Ohlinger said. "It's smoky, it's salty, it's porky. But people have only figured out in the last decade that it's not just for breakfast anymore."

Not only that, but it's not just savory anymore. Bacon has been country for the past several years. Consider chocolatier Vosges' signature Chocolate Bacon Bar (available in dark and milk varieties), Bacon Chocolate Chip Pancake Mix, bacon truffles and bacon caramel toffee.

Cult favorite Voodoo Doughnut made the Maple Bacon Bar — a yeast doughnut with maple icing and strips of bacon on top — famous. And Iron Chef Michael Symon has been known to serve chocolate-covered bacon as a dessert.

When tomatoes aren't ripe, break out the frying pan

BY SHARON LANE

One co-worker gloated about his ripe tomato crop — seems he placed his plants near a wall that reflected back whatever heat we had this summer. The rest of the room groused about unripened crops.

What to do with all those green tomatoes, chorused the green thumbs with green tomato crops?

"Fry them," cried someone who had complained about our

While the room was ruminating on the fate of tomatoes, I was reading food maven Kathy Casey's blog, Dishing with Kathy Casey — KathyCasey.com/blog/ — voila, there was her recipe for Fried Green Tomatoes With Remoulade Sauce.

RECIPE BOX

GRILLED GINGER CHICKEN ON JALAPEÑO CORN SLAW

Makes 4 servings Grilled Ginger Chicken: 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts

2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce 3 tablespoons fresh-squeezed lemon juice (about 1 1/2 lemons) 1 tablespoon honey

1 tablespoon freshly grated ginger root Salt and pepper to taste

Jalapeño Corn Slaw: 3 tablespoons freshsqueezed lemon juice (about 1 1/2 lemons)

2 tablespoons rice vinegar 2 teaspoons sesame oil 1 teaspoon honey

2 large ears of corn 1 (16-ounce) package coleslaw mix (cabbage and

1/2 cup chopped cilantro 4 green onions, finely chopped

1/2 jalapeño, seeded and finely chopped 2 tablespoons sesame

seeds, toasted

For grilled chicken: Place chicken in a zip-top bag. Combine soy sauce, lemon juice, honey, ginger root, salt and pepper to taste; whisk until blended. Pour marinade over chicken, seal and marinate in refrigerator for 1/2 hour to 4 hours. Preheat grill to medium-high or allow coals to burn down to white ash. Drain chicken and discard marinade. Grill chicken, turning to brown evenly, until meat thermometer registers 165 degrees and meat is no longer pink, about 10 to 12 minutes. Cover and allow to stand 5 to 10 minutes. Slice into thin slices; set aside. For slaw: Combine lemon juice, rice vinegar, sesame oil and honey; whisk until blended. Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Boil corn for 2 minutes, immediately submerge into ice cold water. Cut kernels from ears. Place slaw mix, corn, cilantro, green onions, jalapeño and sesame seeds in a large salad bowl. Add dressing and toss gently to blend. Place cooked chicken on top of slaw mixture.

TRENDS

house-cured bacon with shaved heirloom chocolate and said people were blown away by the mix of flavors.

"Bacon is not going away, ever," Ohlinger said. "Because it's delicious."

Doughnuts and cake pops

Spade said that while cupcakes are on their way out, cakeballs and cake pops are hot, hot, hot, Cake balls are basically round bite-sized cakes — similar to a doughnut hole. Cake pops are essentially the same thing, served on a stick like a lollipop. Their appeal lies in the singlebite decadence, Spade said.

Also big in the dessert world, she noted, are "fun and funky" ice creams, such as the applebutter ice cream with Forks of Cheat applejack caramel sauce and bacon (there it is again) topping her husband chef Heath Finnell took home Best Dish for at the Cast Iron Cookoff. Finnell also makes habenero ice cream to top his black bean soup, as well as avocado ice cream and a watermelon-and-moscato (a sweet, sparkling wine)

Ohlinger agreed that cupcakes have probably seen their heyday, and pointed to doughnuts as the next big thing though not necessarily the doughnuts one might expect.

He said the latest trend is to stuff savory fillings such as meat- or cheesebased fillings — into a yeasty doughnut.

"Americans have just discovered that you can stuff anything into a doughnut and not put powdered sugar on it, and it's delicious."

Local, farm-fresh ingredients

Often referred to as "farm-to-table" by foodies, Spade and Ohlinger both pride themselves on using fresh, locally produced ingredients and often plan entire themed dinners to showcase them.

For example, Cafe Bacchus may serve an autumn harvest dinner to feature local greens, beets, squash, berries and beef. And Ohlinger shops the Morgantown Farmers' Market every weekend for produce, meat, baked goods and artisan cheeses to use in his dishes. Using fresh herbs over dried is also very popular, Ohlinger and Spade said.

It's all part of the trend to focus on the food, Ohlinger said, and think and act responsibly when it comes to supporting local farmers and promoting sustainability.

Sustainability is also a growing concern — and therefore a trend — among chefs.

Many chefs refuse to serve blue fin tuna, or Chilean sea bass, for instance, because of how over-fished the species are.

"Serious gastronomes will not eat in restaurants that serve these things, because they aren't environmentally responsible," Ohlinger said. "Chefs have realized that we're at a point in the restaurant and food business where, with the rise of Food Network and celebrity chefs, we have influence, and with that comes a moral responsibility to set an example when it comes to these things."

Burgers, grass-fed beef

"There is a huge renaissance of the burger, with many gourmet twists," Spade said. "Bacchus has featured a Southwest burger with half-pound beef patty, green chilis, cheddar cheese, fritos, barbecue mayo and a fried egg."

The restaurant has also served Jamaican burgers, three cheese burgers and a Caprese burger, she said.

Big-name chefs are getting into the burger game, too. Richard Blais, Hubert Keller, Bobby Flay, Marcus Samuelsson and Emeril Lagasse have all opened burger joints, and franchises such as Five Guys are blowing up everywhere.

As far as beef goes, Ohlinger said, grass-fed is key. Whereas the word to remember several years ago was "kobe" — a type of Japanese beef in which the cows are fed beer and massaged regularly to increase marbling — these days, it's all about local, grass-fed

"Grass-fed is in, but grass-fed is misunderstood," Ohlinger said. "Some people complain that it's tough because they don't understand that it's been walking around, unlike factory-farmed beef — and there's nothing natural about that."

He said grass-fed beef is also more expensive, because it takes more time and more land to raise, but that chefs are moving toward its use because it's more responsible.

Spade also said grassfed is big, noting that Finnell is friends with Bill Niman, who started the area's Niman Ranch.

Comfort food and simple plating

In the past several years, there's been a return to roots with the rise in popularity of comfort food favorites such as grilled cheese sandwiches, pot pies, meatloaf and mac 'n' cheese. But these aren't your grandma's dishes with each, chefs are having fun putting their own gourmet twists on the perennial comfort foods.

For instance, Richwood Grill has served a sevencheese grilled cheese made with artisan cheeses and served with an heirloom tomato foam to dip it in -Ohlinger's gourmet take on the classic grilled cheese and tomato soup combo. He also once served a chickenfried kobe steak.

Other restaurants have been getting experimental with macaroni and cheese, often adding luxe ingredients such as lobster or house-made cured meats.

To showcase the downhome-yet-swank appeal of these foods, Ohlinger and Spade said the move has been made toward more simple plating. The big, white charger is back, replacing the odd-shaped plates and vertically stacked foods of the past.

Also to go with this return to comfort foods, many restaurants are '86ing the white tablecloths and stuffy setting to be more homey and relaxed. "Again, it's all about the food," Ohlinger said.

Theme dinners

A big draw for Cafe Bacchus and Richwood Grill are theme dinners, during which a multi-course meal is served around a central theme. Ohlinger often bases his around a type of cuisine or holiday (Filipino cuisine, deconstruction and gastronomy, Day of the Dead), as does Bacchus (recreating the last meal served on the Titanic, showcasing Southern Italian foods, hosting guest chefs or basing the meal on a popular movie, such as "Julie and Julia" or "Like Water For Chocolate").

"It's how to stimulate more interest in a restaurant, give variety to the menu, entertain guests and have fun doing it," Spade said.

Cheese and chocolate

Always palate favorites cheese and chocolate have been "blowing up," Ohlinger said, and going artisan. Artisan cheese plates are growing in popularity, allowing patrons to sample anywhere from three to 10 cheeses, often with complementary fruits, spreads and jams to bring out the flavors.

Heirloom chocolate is also making its mark, and finding its way into nontraditional dishes (think using it in savory dishes) and onto tasting plates.

Cheap wine and expensive beer

Whereas diners are tending to opt for less-expensive, more unusual wines from regions such as Portugal, Romania and Uruguay, Ohlinger said, they are more likely to shell out big for domestically made craft beers these days.

Food panelists needed

The Dominion Post

You've seen the Food Panel pick their favorite hummus and try out kitchen gadgets. You've read what they think are the best orange juices, birthday cakes and turkey sandwiches. If you've ever read about the Food Panel and thought, "Hey, I'd like to do that," now's your chance.

The Dominion Post is taking applications for new food panelists to serve in 2012. The panel of 12 meets monthly to share recipes, sample new food products, and conduct taste tests on foods and experiment with kitchen gadgets. Members write a column—on a rotating basis.

We're not looking for professionals, just people who like and know food. Even if you don't cook, if you eat, you qualify. So, email us a letter telling us why you think you would be an asset to The Dominion Post Food Panel. Include a sample column of 500-550 words on any food or cooking subject. Send to food@dominionpost.com. Deadline for submissions is 5 p.m. Nov. 21.

TOMATOES FROM PAGE 1-C

Food section, and I know her recipes to be spot on, so I grabbed the recipe from her blog and let her know I was going to share it with you today.

Kathy said this recipe was one of her favorite childhood late-summer or early-fall dishes. "My mom used to serve these on Friday nights alongside fried oysters. I like to top them with a jazzed-up remoulade — why not make a meal of them?" Later, I was reading an upcoming column from our garden writer, Ciscoe Morris, who was giving tips on ripening the fruit.

Today I'll share his garden wisdom and Casey's practical take on making the best of ingredients you have in front of you.

Ciscoe's tips:

"The easiest method to ripen green tomatoes is to pick them and bring them in to ripen on the kitchen counter.

"A quicker method is to dig the entire plant, shake the soil off the roots and hang it upside down in your garage or basement in a bright spot out of direct sunlight. The warmer the location you hang them, the sooner the tomatoes will ripen.

"If you hang them over a nice floor, protect the surface because the tomatoes will make a big splat if they ripen and fall. No matter what method you use, only tomatoes that have a tinge of mature color in them will ever ripen. So don't waste your time on the hard green ones."

Ciscoe said, "Tomatoes will keep ripening on the vine as long as temperatures stay above 60 degrees."

But if the tomatoes lingering on the vines at your home fail to turn ruby red even in the late-summer sun, try Ciscoe's ripening advice or Kathy's recipe for using green tomatoes.

FRIED GREEN TOMATOES WITH REMOULADE SAUCE Make 4 to 6 servings

Remoulade Sauce:

3/4 cup mayonnaise 2 tablespoons finely

1 tablespoon drained capers, chopped 1/2 green onion, very chopped dill pickle

thinly sliced 1 1/2 teaspoons whole grain mustard 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco sauce 1 tablespoon chopped parsley 1/8 teaspoon celery

1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice seed

1/8 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon black pepper

Fried Tomatoes: 1 cup flour 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal

2 teaspoons salt 1/2 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper 1/2 teaspoon paprika or smoked Spanish paprika (pimenton)

4-5 large green tomatoes, cut into 1/2-inchthick crosswise slices (about 16 slices)

Vegetable oil or a mixture of oil and bacon drippings for frying

1. In a small bowl, mix all the remoulade ingredients. The recipe makes 1 cup of sauce. The sauce can be made up to 4 days in advance and refrigerated until needed.

2. Preheat an oven to 165 to 200 degrees. In a plate or shallow bowl, mix the flour, cornmeal, salt, pepper and paprika with a

3. Dredge the tomato slices, a few at a time, in the seasoned flour to coat well. Set the tomatoes aside on a lightly floured baking sheet. Reserve the flour mixture.

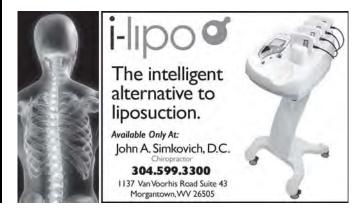

4. In a large skillet, heat 1/4- to 1/3-inch oil over medium heat. Fry the tomato slices in batches for about 2 to 5 minutes or until golden brown on each side, turning as necessary. As the tomatoes are done, transfer them to a cake rack set on a baking pan to keep warm in the low oven.

5. Divide the tomatoes among individual plates and serve immediately, accompanied with the remoulade.

Send in your kitchen tips

The Dominion Post

The Dominion Post lifestyles section is looking for kitchen hints and tips to fill the Short Tip box on the Food front each week. We need you to send in your best kitchen tips, ranging from picking out the perfect vegetable to cooking to cleaning up after the meal.

Here's an example of what we're looking for: Spray WD-40 on a new pot or pan when trying to remove the manufacturer's sticker. Wait a few minutes, then wipe the sticker off with a paper towel.

If you have a tip, please email it to food@dominion post.com, and don't forget to include your full name.

Portion size a problem for quick cooking pasta

RONZONI MACARONI.

Quick Cook Elbow, Penne Rigate and Rotini; and Pasta Portions Curly Elbow, Penne and Rotini. $1.35 to $1.80 per 16-ounce Quick Cook box, and $1.32 to $1.65 per 9-ounce box containing three Pasta Portions.

Bonnie: New World Pasta recently introduced quick-cooking pasta called Quick Cook under six of its regional brands: San Giorgio, Creamette, American Beauty, Skinner and Prince, plus the nationally available Ronzoni. Being thinner, these shaped pastas cook in just three minutes instead of six to 15, while tasting quite similar to regular pasta.

At the same time, New World is also introducing Pasta Portions: Boxes containing three, 3-ounce portions of Quick Cook pasta packed in a boil-in-bag that also cook in three minutes. That's one ounce larger than the FDA's definition of a pasta portion, and too large.

On the plus side, no measuring or straining is required. You just tear open the bag (being careful not to burn yourself on the hot pasta water) and serve.

Nutritionally, ounce-forounce, Quick Cook and Pasta Portions are the same as regular pasta. If you have the extra cash and are pressed for time, you might want to try these. I'm waiting for New World to apply its quick-cooking techniques to whole-wheat pasta, which is better nutritionally and generally takes longer to cook than regular pasta.

Carolyn: You can heat up jarred pasta sauce on the stove or in the microwave in less than 5 minutes. The pasta to accompany it can take twice as long.

But if you've got a couple of hungry, cranky kids in your kitchen, those extra five minutes can be an eternity. That's why I can recommend Ronzoni's new Quick Cook line — especially since, unlike original Minute Rice, there is no sacrifice in flavor or texture here. People in adult-only households should buy cheaper regular pasta and relax for the extra five minutes that the regular takes to cook. It's good for the digestion, not to mention your mental health.

Measuring the right amount is another problem that people have with pasta, which the also-new Pasta Portions product addresses but doesn't solve. In fact, Ronzoni seems to share the problem because the portion size it's chosen is too big for one person but not big enough for two. I suspect not ignorance but a barely disguised agenda, shared by super-sizing restaurants such as McDonald's, of getting us to buy more of their food than we really need.

STONEFIRE FLATBREADS. Original and Whole Grain Mediterranean Pita, and Original and Tandoori Whole Grain Roti. $2.99 per 12.7-ounce package of four pita or 9.5-ounce package of three roti.

Bonnie: I first fell for Stonefire's flatbreads while writing about its naan last summer on my blog, Bite oftheBest.com. At that time, the breads were sold under the Fabulous Flats name. These new pita pockets and roti are also made without preservatives or hydrogenated oils and are every bit as delicious.

I like the fresh taste of all three breads, but especially the roti and naan after heating. To heat, first sprinkle the breads with water and then either toss them into a hot oven (425 degrees), onto a hot grill (brushing them with a bit of olive oil first if your grill isn't well-oiled) or onto an indoor griddle or large pan for about three to four minutes. For extra flavor after grilling the first side, sprinkle on some fresh grated Parmigiano-Reggiano, which will melt while you're grilling the second side.

Carolyn: Like Bonnie, I like the fire-grilled taste of this new roti bread, which Stonefire's also-new pita breads lack. The roti also has a softer texture and fuller flavor and can be used in almost all the same ways as the pita. I highly recommend its Original flavor. (The Whole Grain version of it and the pita are bitter from their whole wheat, and so are big passes.)

One preparation note: Forget Bonnie's and Stonefire's fussy reheating directions. Throwing them in the microwave for a few seconds works just fine.

Program continues at gift shop

Literacy Volunteers benefit from sales

Submitted to The Dominion Post

As part of its ongoing Charity Partner Program, 10 percent of the Old Stone House Gift Shop's gross sales through Saturday will be donated to Mon County Literacy Volunteers.

Mon County Literacy Volunteers is a nonprofit agency founded in 1983. It provides free programs that increase literacy skills for adults.

Literacy Volunteers envisions a community where all people have the literacy skills and knowledge needed to break the intergenerational cycle of illiteracy, communicate in English, make informed financial decisions, use technology to better their lives and be sustainable. In 2007, they provided services to 495 volunteers and adult learners.

The Old Stone House is at 313 Chestnut St. in downtown Morgantown. Hours are 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday-Friday and 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday. The gift shop offers a wide variety of gift items, food products, West Virginia-made items and handcrafted items. For more info, call 304-296-

The Old Stone House is maintained and run as a gift shop by Service League volunteers to provide this funding. There are no paid employees.

Built in 1795, it is the county's oldest stone dwelling and is listed on the National Historic Registry.

In its 76 years of existence, the league has contributed more than $320,000 back to the Morgantown community. This includes more than $26,000 to the Morgantown Public Library, about $77,000 toward books for Mon County School libraries, and more than $216,000 to other charitable donations throughout the county to improve the lives of local residents through charitable, educational and cultural activities

In 2008, Service League of Morgantown expanded its community outreach through the addition of the Charity Partnership Program.

A total of 17 organizations will benefit this year. Those benefiting in October are: West Virginia Family Grief Center (Monday-Oct. 8); Community Kitchen (Oct. 10-15); Christian Help (Oct. 17-22); Stepping Stones (Oct. 24-29).

Golden Finch plans Oktoberfest dinner

Submitted to The Dominion Post

The Golden Finch restaurant will celebrate Oktoberfest at 6 p.m. Sunday with a dinner featuring traditional German food with beer or wine.

The festival was begun in Munich more than 200 years ago, originally as a celebration of a royal marriage, but now it is a celebration of newly crafted beer and German cuisine. The rich dishes served at the Oktoberfest make a seasonal change from the light food of summer. Schnitzels, sweet-sour Sauerbraten, potato pancakes, sauerkraut, red cabbage, applesauce and Black Forest cake are all traditional fare.

There will be one sitting, reservations only. The $55 price per person includes wine or beer with each course, but not tax or gratuity. Information and reservations: 304-292-0088.

The Golden Finch is at 330 High St., between Fayette and Walnut streets in Morgantown.

Oktoberfest menu (each course is served with German beer or wine):

- Appetizer: Potato pancakes (latkes), with applesauce and homemade sausages.
- Soup: Roasted butternut corn chowder
- Duo entree: Schnitzel and sauerbraten, served with side dishes of sauerkraut and red cabbage
- Dessert: Classic Black Forest cake: Chocolate layers steeped in kirsch, filled with

Diet Detective's diet recovery guide

IF YOU'VE EVER LOST WEIGHT, you know it's not easy to make it last. In fact, there are a few key problems to pay attention to before the diet even starts. Here are some common problems and ways you can avoid

The problem: After losing those pounds you suddenly feel that, overnight, your body has changed, making you a charter member of the exclusive "fast-metabolism-I-can-eatwhatever-I want" club.

Then one morning you wake up and the mirror reveals a truth that cannot be denied. You were never in the club. Not only have you regained the weight you lost, you've actually added more pounds.

The fix: To begin with, it ought to be obvious that once you lose weight, you need to keep the weight off by eating the same types of foods that helped you shed the pounds — not by going back to consuming whole boxes of cookies in front of the TV. But it is not obvious to most.

Most dieters are restricting foods, and not planning a livable diet. What is a livable diet? It's a diet you can live with for the rest of your life. So let me ask you a question: How long can you hold your breath? Maybe 40 seconds. So, yes, you can do it, but only for a short time. Well, that's how most people diet — they can do it for a bit, but they can't keep holding their breath

To come up with a livable diet you need to find a variety of foods you can eat that are healthy and tasty instead of thinking about what you can't eat. The most important factor to consider when you create a livable diet is accommodating your food preferences. In fact, the Journal of Nutrition reports that taste is the single most important reason people choose the foods they do, and that this is also an important factor for regulating "hunger, satiety and voluntary food intake."

Not sure how to choose the foods for your livable diet? Look for calorie bargains: Foods that taste great but are healthier and lower in calories than what you normally eat (and that you won't end up eating too much of which would negate the calorie bargain effect).

To help you find calorie bargains, start by purchasing a few cookbooks to find some creative tips on lowcalorie foods and snacks.

The problem: You've been on a diet and haven't lost as much as you'd hoped. You're demoralized and have no desire to try

The fix: Connect to the past. Keep in mind that every time you diet you learn something. Whether or not you're successful, there is a lesson to be learned. Review your diet disasters and never be ashamed of your failures. Think of the strategies that didn't work. By looking at these failures, you learn what NOT to repeat. Ask yourself: Why didn't these strategies work, and what have I learned?

For instance, you might have had the following situation: "All the dieting gurus told me, 'Don't deprive yourself.' Well, I didn't deprive myself. However, I went too far.

Whenever I wanted cookies, I ate them. I would try having just one, but I couldn't stop. I put on 10 pounds following the 'don't deprive yourself' diet."

Examine successes. One of the most important techniques associated with permanent weight loss is to review your successes. For instance, from Atkins you might have learned you didn't need bread to feel satisfied by a sandwich: Just the meat and veggies wrapped in a lettuce leaf were satisfying on their own. From South Beach vou might have learned about good carbs versus bad carbs. Maybe Weight Watchers helped you realize that surrounding yourself with supportive people keeps you motivated. Or with Jenny Craig you might have learned portion control by eating the program's prepared foods.

Write down everything you've learned from your past successes. Then hold on to those facts, attitudes and behaviors to keep the weight off.

The problem: Diets are exhausting. They take time, effort, and often don't provide enough calories for sustained energy.

The fix: Planning is the answer. Develop an action plan by thinking ahead. You can minimize crises by anticipating obstacles and planning how to surmount them. There are seven characteristics of effective planning and goal setting you can remember with the acronym SMARTER: Specific, Motivating, Achievable, Rewarding, Tactical, Evaluated, Revisable.

See: dietdetective.com/ column/getting-smart er.aspx and check out the following goal-planning guide to help put your goals in action: "Get Back on the Diet Track" dietde tective.com/columns/getback-on-the-di et-track.aspx.

Also, eat smart. If you don't eat enough food, especially essentials such as fruits and vegetables, you will feel deprived and tired. Also, don't ignore exercise. It can help you stay strong, and research shows that it will help give you energy.

The problem: If "diet" is simply another word for deprivation, it makes sense that any time we deny ourselves food, we will want to eat more than ever. We tend to want things we can't have, so why would we think food was any different? Keep in mind, if you restrict too much (and eat too few calories) your body can hold on to the fat because it thinks it's starving.

The fix: Do not restrict yourself too much. Balance is key, and you need to eat less of the garbage foods and more high-quality healthy foods. Yes, you do need to make some changes in your diet, but if you toss out everything but lettuce, celery and the occasional apple, vou're setting yourself up for failure. The key is to compromise: Make healthier, lower-calorie choices. Also, follow the advice of experts: Eat lean protein to fend off hunger. Fill up on vegetables. When eating bread and pasta, make sure it's 100 percent wholegrain — and limit amounts. By doing that you'll be able to keep those cravings under control.

Nemacolin Woodlands presents annual fall festival

Submitted to The Dominion Post

FARMINGTON, Pa. - The fourth annual Fall Festival at Nemacolin Woodlands is slated for Oct. 8. This year's event begins at 11 a.m. and will feature hot air balloon rides, as well as activities and offerings for guests of all ages.

"Our Fall Festival was originally planned to showcase the beauty of this season in the Laurel Highlands and provide an opportunity for families to spend the day together," said Chris Plummer, general manager of the luxury resort southeast of Pittsburgh. "This event has grown substantially, and the addition of the hot air balloon rides will certainly provide our guests a spectacular view of the mountains in all of their splendor. Each year, we explore different options when planning the festival to make certain that we offer something for every member of the family."

For the first time ever, admission to the Fall Festival is complimentary, and an All Access Pass for resort activities, including the Fat Bird Flyer Zip Line, Jeep Ride Alongs and the ropes courses, will be available at a discounted

Hot air balloon rides will be handled on a firstcome, first-served basis and are $10 for adults and $8 for children ages 4-12. Fall Festival 2011 will once again feature a Craft Beer Brewfest with more than 30 beers supplied by vendors and brewers from throughout the region. An additional fee for admission to this venue provides unlimited tasting for guests above the age of 21.

Skill contests and prizes will highlight the Fourth Fall Finale Golf Scramble, a nine-hole event on the Links Golf Course, while a candy apple-making session and pumpkin-carving demonstration are new to the festival.

Live entertainment will be provided by The Delanevs, Chuck Cantalamessa and Reggaematic. Fans can come out and meet their favorite on-air personalities as radio partner WDVE will broadcast from the resort's Adventure Center from 10:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday.

A craft fair features local artisans exhibiting a wide variety of handcrafted items including jewelry, candles, hand knitted apparel and woodcrafts. Nemacolin's popular carnival games, as well as bounce houses and more, will be offered for children along with arts and crafts and a pumpkin patch.

For a complete schedule of the day's events or to register for the craft fair or Fall Finale Golf Scramble. visit the website at nema colin.com.

WVBG hosts fall festival for children

Submitted to The Dominion Post

After the response of participants in the 2009 and 2010 Fall Children's Festivals and with support from the Kiwanis Foundation, the West Virginia Botanic Garden is again sponsoring a Fall Children's Festival from 1-4 p.m. Oct. 16 at 1061 Tyrone Road. There is no admission fee. The featured event will be the construction of fairy houses in the Fairy Garden. The garden has four new fairy houses, but the woodland sprites need many more. For a small donation, pictures will be taken of each child with his or her fairy house, courtesy of Autumn McDaniel. In a new activity this year, a child can plant a bulb in a pot to grow at home. The pots, bulbs, potting soil and directions will be provided. Also, the Children's Discovery Museum of West Virginia will have selected activities and a display of work. Other activities will include pumpkin painting, pine cone bird feeders, nature bingo, leaf crafts and many others. Order forms for spring blooming bulbs will be available, as well as the sale of WVBG souvenirs. Bring cash or check, as the WVBG does not accept credit or debit cards. Bulbs may also be purchased online at wvbg.org.

Seasonal refreshments include homemade pumpkin cookies, fruit breads, apple cider, and do-it-yourself trail mix. Parking is somewhat limited, so carpooling is recommended. Info: Ellen at ellen1121@peoplepc.com or 304-282-5913.

Humorist offers 'dreadfully distasteful lists'

"TEN WAYS TO RECYCLE A CORPSE: AND 100 MORE DREADFULLY DIS-TASTEFUL LISTS" by Karl Shaw; Three Rivers Press.

REVIEW

BY CARL HARTMAN

The Associated Press

This book could be called magnetic. It pulls you in, the way a magnet pulls a paper clip, and it doesn't want to let you go.

It recounts Julius Caesar's attempt to cure his baldness and Cleopatra's recommendation: The bodies of domestic mice, burnt and ground up, horse teeth mixed with bear grease, and marrow from deer bones.

That pulls you into the effects of a French king's contrivance to mask his own loss of hair: A voluminous, powdered, curly wig. Distinguished men — see portraits of George Washington and other Founding Fathers wore powdered wigs for almost two centuries. After Louis XIV comes a remedy Napoleon tried. It consisted mainly of dogs' paws and the hooves of a certain animal.

If you read on for another 188 pages, you'll find that Adolf Hitler — though he didn't make the list — also knew of a "miracle cure" for baldness, from which he hoped to make his fortune. Ingredients and actual profitability are not given.

So don't start "10 Ways to Recycle a Corpse" at bedtime. You may lose a lot of sleep. The book's subtitle warns that it includes "100 More Dreadfully Distasteful Lists."

One chapter justifies the book's title, suggesting profitable and mostly legal ways to dispose of dead bodies. One is to sell parts to legitimate trading companies, which resell them to recognized medical organizations.

Top prices (2010) include tendons at $1,000 each. Corneas fetch $6,000 a pair, the book says, but adds that it's illegal to sell human body fat to cosmetic firms.

Author Karl Shaw assures readers in an introduction that he has "tried in good faith to ensure that everything in this book, as far as possible, is accurate, although of course some of these 'facts' are open to debate and interpretation."

Library adds Kindle to its compatibility

MORGANTOWN PUBLIC LIBRARY SYSTEM is excited to announce that its eBook collection is now compatible with the world's bestselling eBook reader, the Amazon Kindle. Patrons can now download popular and classic eBooks to a Kindle device or any mobile device running the free Kindle app, such as iPhone, iPad, Android and more.

To get started, visit http://wvdeli.lib.over drive.com. Kindle users can browse the library's collection of bestselling and classic eBooks from a PC or Mac computer, check out titles using a library card, and select "Get to Kindle" to deliver eBooks to their Kindle device or any devices running the free Kindle app.

The Morgantown Public Library System also offers audio books, music, videos, and Disney's children's books for use on a PC or Mac computer and popular mobile devices such as a Smartphone, MP3 player, and other eBooks readers such as the Barnes & Noble Nook and Sony Reader.

West Virginia Digital Entertainment Library Initiative (WVDeli) began in April 2008 with a group of north central libraries striving to keep pace with new technologies for our patrons.

There are more than 15,000 items available for our patrons. Those items are proving to be very popular and have circulated more than 112,000 times. Now with the addition of the Kindle, the library is anticipating a high demand for eBooks, so patrons are encouraged to take advantage of the "Always Available" eBooks, where you will find many great classics, with no need for holds. We will continue to build the eBook collection, so keep checking back for more titles.

Morgantown Public Library System (as part of WVDeli) partners with OverDrive, Inc. (overdrive.com), a global leader in eBook distribution for libraries and schools, to offer this service. You must have a library card to take advantage of this service. Stop by the library for more information or visit our website at morgan town.lib.wv.us.

Whooo We Are" and "Fraidy Cat," won gold, and "The Day The Snapdragons Snapped Back" won the Silver Award. The Mom's Choice Awards is an awards program that recognizes authors, inventors, companies, parents and others for their efforts in creating quality family-friendly media, products and services. Chambers was a featured author in New York this May at Book Expo America.

■ Stephanie Corum of Williamsport, Md., wrote "Antics in the Attic," which won honorable mention at the San Francisco Book Festival. In "Antics in the Attic," things don't just go bump in the night at Zach's house. They go clickety, clickety and skritchety, skritchety. Illustrations are by Susan Tater.

■ Barbara Myers of Morgantown wrote "Lily & Nana" with her then-5-year-old granddaughter Lily Hamilton about the everyday things the pair likes to do together. Myers, a retired early childhood educator, saw the genre of children's literature lacked books on intergenerational subjects. They will sign books from 2-4 p.m. Friday.

■ Melissa Ridenour of Morgantown penned "What Would You Do? A Kid's Guide to Staying Safe in a World of Strangers" to instruct young readers in a gentle questionand-answer format that shows them how to make good decisions about their safety, empowering children in a non-threatening way to take a proactive role in staying safe from predators and harm. She will also be in the Headline Books booth on Saturday.

Saturday: ■ Ashley Ball of Terra Alta is a high school student, horsewoman and author. In the new release "My Horse Samson," Ball writes about how her family adopted horses rescued from neglect and how she trains and shows one of the horse's foals to be a champion. ■ Uncle Dave Howard of Waynesburg, Pa., wrote "Lady's Day to Play" about his Jack Russell-cocker spanielpoodle. The books also features his hand-drawn, computer-aided illustrations and rhyming verse as he takes them through a typical day in Lady's life. Howard, who writes his books as Uncle Dave, gives a portion of his sales to research about Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, which claimed the life of his niece's baby. He wrote the book as a baby shower gift for his niece. ■ Melanie Michael of Cumberland, Md., tells the story of an insignificant, grey-mouse sock-puppet named Nerfnerd who believes he leads a decidedly pitiful life. But, when he's tossed into the clothes hamper to remove a rather large ketchup stain that covers his whole nose, most of one button-eye, and about half of his right ear, he finds his life is far from pitiful and is considerably richer than the other characters he encounters. ■ Barbara Smith of Philippi is a freelance writer/editor, and medical ethicist, Emerita Professor of Literature and Writing and former Chair of the Division of the Humanities, Alderson-Broaddus College. She will sign copies of her novel, "Through The Glass," an upbeat story about a stained glass artist whose studio faces a cul-de-sac in the outskirts of Logan.

■ Helen Hedrick of Petersburg will sign copies of her children's books including "Tails, Trails, & Pies: An Appalachian Cattle Drive." Hedrick writes from her childhood memories and her books are all Appalachia-based. USA Book News named it a finalist for Best Juvenile Non-Fiction in the Best Books 2010 Awards. Sunday:

■ Myers and Hamilton will be in the Headline Books booth from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Sunday.

Founded in Terra Alta 26 years ago, Headline Books is the 2010 Independent Publisher of the Year.

Latin Fitness by Alex hosts Zumba fundraiser

Submitted to The Dominion Post

As part of its fundraiser for poor children in Colombia, Latin Fitness with Alex is hosting a drawing to win a free month of Zumba classes. There is a $1 fee to enter. You can enter as many times as you wish and every dollar counts as an entry. At the end of October, a name will be randomly selected.

All the proceeds will go toward the studio's Colombian fundraiser. The studio is almost halfway to its goal, having collected $2,429 so far. If you are new to Latin

Fitness with Alex and would like to know more about the fundraiser, go to latinfitnesswith alex.com and watch the videos of the delivery of Christmas' presents in 2009 and 2010 to hundreds of children and displaced families living in extreme poverty.

McClatchy Newspapers

he National Cancer Institute estimates 21,990 women will be diagnosed with ovarian cancer this year, and 15,460 will die from the disease.

Ovarian cancer has the highest mortality rate of all female reproductive cancers, partly because of a lack of early symptoms and an effective screening test. So it's often diagnosed at advanced stages when the cancer has spread beyond the ovaries.

In honor of Ovarian Cancer Awareness month (September), here are some misconceptions and truths about ovarian cancer that could save your life:

MYTH: The Pap test can diagnose ovarian

FACT: A Pap smear is used to diagnose cancer of the cervix (the opening of the uterus), but not other cancers of the female reproductive tract.

MYTH: Ovarian cancer has no symptoms.

FACT: Symptoms are not specific and often mimic other diseases, but they include pelvic or abdominal pain or discomfort, persistent gas, nausea and indigestion, frequency or urgency of urination in the absence of an infection, unexplained weight gain or loss, pelvic or abdominal swelling, bloating and feelings of fullness, ongoing unusual fatigue and unexplained changes in bowel habits.

MYTH: Ovarian cysts and ovarian cancer are the same thing.

FACT: Most ovarian cysts are not cancerous (or benign). Cysts may be found on the surface of an ovary or inside it, and contains fluid. Most cysts go away with time.

MYTH: There are no diagnostic tests that can be used to detect ovarian cancer.

FACT: Even though no reliable screening test exists, annual vaginal exams to feel for abnormal swelling and tenderness, transvaginal sonography and a blood test to determine the level of a tumor marker called CA-125 are all used to help determine the need for a CT scan, X-rays and tissue samples from the ovaries.

MYTH: There are no known risk factors for

FACT: Risk factors include personal or family history of breast, ovarian, endometrial, prostate or colorectal cancer; increasing age, unexplained infertility; no pregnancies or very late pregnancy; no history of oral contraceptive use; and taking high-dose estrogen without progesterone.

MYTH: Ovarian cancer does not run in my family so I can't get it.

FACT: All women are at risk for ovarian cancer. Only about 10 percent of cases are hereditary.

MYTH: Taking birth control pills increases your risk of getting ovarian cancer.

FACT: Studies show taking the pill over a number of years actually decreases a woman's risk of getting ovarian cancer. Other things that may reduce risk: having one or more children, particularly if the first is born before age 25, and breast feeding; as well as tubal ligation and hysterectomy.

MYTH: Ovarian cancer has no cure.

FACT: If ovarian cancer is detected early and treated properly, the five-year survival or cure rate is 90 percent. However, only about one in four cases are diagnosed before the cancer has spread, and late diagnosis has a significantly lower survival rate of only about 29 percent.

BY THE NUMBERS

- 1 in 72: Number of women who will be diagnosed with ovarian cancer in their lifetime
- 92 percent: Chance of surviving 5 years or more if diagnosed in the earliest stages
- 27 percent: Chance of surviving 5 years of more if diagnosed in the latest stages
- 19 percent: Percentage of cases diagnosed in the
- earliest stages 63: Median age for diagnosis
- $4.4 billion: Estimated amount spent each year in the U.S. on ovarian cancer treatment

OVARIAN CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

September is Ovarian Cancer Awareness Month. Its symbol is a teal ribbon. The Ovarian Cancer National Alliance offers suggestions on getting involved, including a campaign to urge legislators to increase research funding. They also have a selection of teal merchandise to support the cause. Find out more at www.ovariancancer.org.

The month's color also lines up with the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition's t.e.a.l. campaign: Take Early Action and Live.

Ovarian cancer is the deadliest gynecological disease. So why isn't anyone talking about it?

WHAT IS OVARIAN CANCER?

The National Cancer Institute gives this definition: "Cancer that forms in tissues of the ovary (one of a pair of female reproductive glands in which the ova, or eggs, are formed). Most ovarian cancers are either ovarian epithelial carcinomas (cancer that begins in the cells on the surface of the ovary) or malignant germ cell tumors (cancer that begins in egg cells)."

TYPES OF OVARIAN CANCER

There are more than 30 types of ovarian cancer, according to the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition. The ovarian cancers are classified according to the type of cell from which they start. Cancerous tumors can start from three common cell types:

- Surface Epithelium cells covering the lining of
- Germ Cells cells that are destined to form eggs
- Stromal Cells cells that release hormones and connect the different structures of the ovaries

STAGES OF OVARIAN CANCER

According to the National Cancer Institute, these are the stages of ovarian cancer. The earlier in the stages the diagnosis comes, the greater the chances for survival.

- Stage I: Cancer cells are found in one or both ovaries. Cancer cells may be found on the surface of the ovaries or in fluid collected from the abdomen.
- Stage II: Cancer cells have spread from one or both ovaries to other tissues in the pelvis. Cancer cells are found on the fallopian tubes, the uterus or other tissues in the pelvis. Cancer cells may be found in fluid collected from the abdomen.
  - Stage III: Cancer cells have spread to tissues outside the pelvis or to the regional lymph nodes. Cancer cells may be found on the outside of the liver.
    - Stage IV: Cancer cells have spread to tissues outside the abdomen and pelvis. Cancer cells may be found inside the liver, lungs or other organs.

TREATMENT FOR OVARIAN CANCER

There are three main treatment types for ovarian cancer, according to the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition:

- 1. Surgery: Removing the cancerous growth through surgery is both the most conmon method of diagnosis and the most common treatment. Surgery is usually performed by a gynecologic oncologist.
- 2. Chemotherapy: Chemotherapy is the treatment of cancer using chemicals that travel through the bloodstream to destroy cancer cells or stop them from growing both in and outside the ovaries. Chemotherapy is used in the majority of cases as a follow-up therapy to surgery.
- 3. Radiation Therapy: Radiation therapy uses highenergy X-rays to kill cancer cells and shrink tumors (only rarely used in the treatment of ovarian cancer in the United States).

TERMS TO KNOW

- Benign: Noncancerous.
- Biopsy: A surgery performed to remove tissue for examination in order to determine whether cancer is
- CA-125: A blood protein that can be measured and is an important tumor marker in ovarian cancer.
- Chemotherapy: The treatment of cancer by chemicals (drugs) designed to destroy cancer cells or stop them from growing.
- Cyst: A fluid-filled sac.
- Hysterectomy: Surgical removal of the uterus.
- Malignant: A term used to describe a cancerous
- Metastasis: The spread of cancer from one part of the body to another.
- Oncologist: A physician who specializes in cancer therapy and handles general medical problems that arise during the disease.
- Staging: The stages that describe how far a cancer has progressed, based on the size of the primary tumor and on whether and where it has spread.
- Tumor: A lump, mass or swelling. A tumor can be either benign (noncancerous) or malignant (cancerous).

WASHINGTON — Public disclosure of graphic photos and video taken of Osama bin Laden after he was killed in May by U.S. commandos would damage national security and lead to attacks on American property and personnel, the Obama administration contends in court documents.

In a response late Monday to a Freedom of Information Act lawsuit filed by Judicial Watch, a conservative watchdog group seeking the imagery, Justice Department attorneys said the CIA has located 52 photographs and video recordings. But they argued the images of the deceased bin Laden are classified and are being withheld from the public to avoid inciting violence against Americans overseas and compromising secret systems and techniques used by the CIA and the military.

The Justice Department has asked the court to dismiss Judicial Watch's lawsuit because the records the group wants are "wholly exempt from disclosure," according to the filing.

Tom Fitton, president of Judicial Watch, accused the Obama administration of making a "political decision" to keep the bin Laden imagery secret. "We shouldn't throw out our transparency laws because complying with them might offend terrorists," Fitton said in a statement. "The historical record of Osama bin Laden's death should be released to the American people as the law requires."

Court: Woman will get 10 lashes for driving car

CAIRO — A Saudi woman was sentenced Tuesday to be lashed 10 times with a whip for defying the kingdom's prohibition on female drivers, the first time a legal punishment has been handed down for a violation of the longtime ban in the ultraconservative Muslim nation.

Normally, police just stop female drivers, question them and let them go after they sign a pledge not to take to the roads since June in a campaign to protect women's rights and decreed that women would be allowed to participate in municipal elections in 2015.

The two officials said some people were also wounded in the strike near the town of Wana in South Waziristan.

They spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to brief reporters.

Washington has fired scores of missiles into northwest Pakistan since 2008 to target Taliban and al-Qaida-linked operatives.

Sleep key to general well-being

DEAR DOCTOR K: For the past few months I've been having a lot of trouble falling asleep, basically every night. I'm groggy and can't concentrate on anything all day. I'd give anything for a good night's rest.

DEAR READER: Trouble falling asleep often occurs because a person is overstimulated. There may be unusual stresses in your life that cause a lot of anxiety. With most of my patients, however, there's no one thing they can put their finger on that explains why they are lying there having trouble falling asleep. Here are some of the things I tell my patients to do, and not to do, to fall asleep more easily:

- Go to bed and wake up at the same time every day, and avoid naps. Get your body used to a regular sleep pattern.
- Cut down on caffeinated beverages during the day. Believe it or not, having caffeine after noon can make you sleep less soundly 10 hours later.
- Avoid heavy meals before bedtime.
- Eliminate alcohol before bedtime. A little "nightcap" may make you feel sleepy right after you take it, but it has a stimulating effect two to four hours later that can interrupt your sleep.

■ Exercise daily, preferably early in the day. Regular exercise improves your sleep, although vigorous exercise in the hours just before bedtime can be stimulating and make it hard to fall asleep.

■ Eliminate noise or bright lights that might be disrupting your sleep, even if you are not aware of it.

■ Use a fan, white noise machine or a recording of nature sounds to lull you to sleep. (By the way, I do this myself, and I'm convinced it helps me sleep more soundly.)

■ Maintain a comfortable temperature in your bedroom, slightly on the cool side.

■ Try not reading or watching TV in bed. They may be stimulating you even if you think they are relaxing you. (If you don't have trouble falling asleep and love to read or watch TV in bed, there's no reason not to.)

Wednesday, Sept. 28, 2011

If from time to time in the year ahead you get some very strong hunches regarding business or other serious matters, do not treat them with indifference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Not only will companions appreciate your charisma, they will equally welcome your leadership qualities as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Someone who needs to vent will share private information with you that others won't hear until much later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — When involved in a group activity, be sure to make the rounds instead of singling out one person for special attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Capricorns can be single-minded and standoffish or extremely outgoing when necessity demands.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — If at all possible, seek endeavors that will enable you to utilize your imagination and creativity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — It might look to others that you're likely to take things at face value, but actually you won't be easily deceived. ARIES (March 21-April 19) — There is no excuse for ducking an important decision just because you think it's overly tricky.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — It's important to realize that details can be just as important as major factors when rendering a decision. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  You'll get far more out of being with companions who are young in spirit than you will spending time with somber fellows.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) - It is so wonderful of you to be protective and cherishing of those you love, but you must take care to leave your dear ones some breathing space.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Your natural ability to read the character of others is exceptionally pronounced. However, keep your critical evaluations to yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You could have some real gems of information that'll save people money. Don't hold back.
