Verdict: Manslaughter

Hazelton man convicted of killing friend

BY THERESA MARTHEY
For The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD — A Preston County jury found Justin Michael Fontaine, 29, of Hazelton, guilty of involuntary manslaughter Tuesday, after a four-day, circuit court trial.

The 12-person jury took only 90 minutes to come back with the guilty verdict.

Fontaine has been jailed since the Nov. 3, 2012, shooting of Jerame Adam Sines, 33, of Maryland, at the Fontaine home on Maryland Line Road.

Fontaine testified Monday that the shooting was an accident, and he hadn't meant to kill his best friend, just scare him.

In closing arguments Tuesday morning, Preston County public defender Randy Goodrich told the jury Fontaine was afraid because his home had been ransacked and he was defending himself and his home.

According to the defendant's testimony, Sines had broken into Fontaine's home the previous night after they had been partying and taking illegal drugs.

Fontaine was at his Maryland Line Road home when Sines returned and entered the home without permission. An argument ensued and the 12-gauge shotgun accidentally discharged, shooting the victim in the head.

Preston County Prosecutor Mel Snyder asked the jury for a verdict of first-degree murder and to also consider second-degree murder and voluntary manslaughter.

According to West Virginia State Code, involuntary manslaughter is a misdemeanor and carries a sentence of confinement not to exceed one year or a fine of $1,000, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Goodrich did not have any comments about whether the defendant will appeal the conviction at this time.

Sentencing is scheduled for March 11 in the courtroom of Judge Lawrance Miller.

Company performs hillside repair

BY TOM TERRAROSA
The Dominion Post

Hillside repair work that began in October on W.Va. 100 is expected to continue until May, according to Brent Walker, spokesman for the West Virginia Division of Highways.

The work, which was contracted to Alan Stone Co., a Williamstown-based company, is estimated to cost $1.3 million.

"It's a fairly big job," Walker said. "We are making extensive repairs to a hillside in that area."

The area of concern is on W.Va. 100, a two-lane roadway, in Maudsville.

There is a river on one side of the road and a hill on the other side, according to Walker.

Walker said Alan Stone crews have been on the site since early October, but the amount of work to be done could require several more months.

According to Walker, there is no designated traffic diversion from the roadway.

But he said that there could be periodic delays, and flaggers stopping traffic from one direction at a time is the most likely method.

Judge slams proposed privacy advocate

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. judiciary told Congress on Tuesday it opposes the idea of having an independent privacy advocate on the secret Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court (FISC). Members of Congress lauded the idea at a Capitol Hill hearing.

Speaking for the entire U.S. judiciary, U.S. District Judge John D. Bates sent a letter to the Senate Intelligence Committee saying that appointing an independent advocate to the secret surveillance court is unnecessary and possibly counterproductive. He slammed other key reforms as adding too heavy a caseload to the secret court's work. In current FISC hearings, judges only hear from the government seeking a spy warrant.

Members of the presidential task force that recommended such an advocate defended the proposal before the Senate Judiciary Committee, as did Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., during a hearing on the NSA's surveillance programs Tuesday.

Cass Sunstein, a member of the Review Group on Intelligence and Communications Technologies, said the secret court should not be making decisions on law or policy without an opposition voice.

"We don't think that's consistent with our legal traditions," Sunstein said. He also said that a public advocate would only be needed for a small number of cases because most FISA proceedings do not involve "issues of law or policy."

Those competing points of view are playing out as President Barack Obama decides which changes he'll back and unveil in a speech Friday to satisfy privacy, legal and civil liberties concerns about the NSA's surveillance practices.

Bates, the former FISA chief judge, also rejected the panel's recommendation that the government seek court approval every time it wants to obtain information in cases of national security, known as a national security letter. Roughly 20,000 such letters are issued every year. Bates said it would create too much work for the court, even if staff were added to handle the caseload.

Bates was speaking for the judiciary in his current role as the administrative judge of the United States courts. In his letter, Bates said a public advocate would not be able to provide an independent factual investigation because of the court's "operational security reasons." But he did not detail any constitutional impediments.

Rep. Adam Schiff, an advocate for FISA reform, said Tuesday that reformers aren't pushing for an independent advocate in all cases. "It would only be for the request to bless broad programs or for novel constitutional issues," the California Democrat said.

Spill victims adjust to life without water

Donations pour into distribution sites

39 PERCENT of water access restored. Page 2-A.

BY DAVID BEARD
The Dominion Post

CHARLESTON — A steady stream of cars is pouring into the parking lot adjoining the city of Nitro police and fire departments late Tuesday afternoon.

The city, situated by the Kanawha River just west of the state capital, is still under the Do Not Use water order following Thursday's chemical spill, and the lot is a water distribution site. About a dozen pallets of bottled water are situated along the sidewalk and as many volunteers — police, firefighters and just folks — are handing cases to those streaming through.

Nitro High School student Kip Brewer and five friends are among the volunteers. Brewer's gray hoodie is partly soaked from a good-natured water fight.

His household has had no water since Thursday, but he's in good spirits. The first day he, like so many others, made do bathing with wet wipes and bottled water, he said. But since then, he's been going to hotels and to the homes of friends that have water.

"It's not been fun," he said.

His friend Solomon Shamblin, from Cross Lanes, is also without water. But his household has family in Winfield, about 13 miles downstream along the Kanawha, which has service. They go there to shower, wash clothes, brush their teeth.

Woman offers beer, smokes as lost-dog reward

Associated Press

DAYTON, Ohio — A woman made fliers offering a case of beer and a pack of cigarettes as a reward for finding her lost dog — and it worked.

Abigail Miller, 23, offered the unusual reward after her dog escaped through an open gate.

Miller came up with the reward because she could afford it and figured it would attract attention.

She was right. The man who called and told Miller where to find her dog turned down the reward, but she said she's going to offer him some food from the sandwich shop where she works.

Access restored for 39 % of water customers

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — Downtown businesses and restaurants reopened Tuesday following last week's chemical spill, but many people waited yet another day for officials to tell them their tap water was safe.

So far, about 39 percent of West Virginia American Water's customers have been allowed to use their water again after a chemical spilled into the Elk River on Thursday, state officials said.

More than 200 restaurants have reopened where the ban has been lifted, said Amy Shuler Goodwin, a spokeswoman for Gov. Earl Ray Tomblin, and all hospitals but one had running water by Tuesday, Tomblin said. The exception was Boone Memorial Hospital in Madison, the governor said.

There were still some areas on the edges of the water system with chemical levels exceeding the acceptable amount, said West Virginia National Guard Adjutant Gen.

Freedom Industries under scrutiny

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — When state inspectors showed up unannounced at Freedom Industries to investigate a licorice odor wafting across West Virginia's capital city, company executive Dennis Farrell seemed to brush off any cause for concern.

But inspectors quickly found what was already contaminating the water for some 300,000 people: A chemical oozing from an above-ground tank and escaping through an old, cracked containment wall. A bag of absorbent material had been placed nearby and weighed down with a cinder block in a failed attempt to stop the flow.

James A. Hoyer.

Schools in all four counties in the affected areas were to remain closed today, Tomblin said. He did

"When they approached the tank, [Farrell] said they just discovered a leak," Jesse Adkins, the inspectors' supervisor, said.

The consequences from the spill — government investigations and lawsuits — mark the biggest crisis that Freedom Industries has faced in its nearly 22-year history since one of its founders went to prison on tax charges. The U.S. attorney has pledged to determine who is responsible, and numerous businesses have sued because they were forced to close and lost money until the water was safe again.

A spokesman for Freedom declined to comment Tuesday.

The terminal with the leak — which hadn't been inspected by state officials since 2001, when it was owned by a different company operating under more stringent rules — was bought by Freedom Industries last month, state officials said. It was previously owned by Etowah River Terminal LLC, which was formed years ago to purchase the former plant site for its chemical storage tanks, according to legal filings. The tanks there allowed Freedom to receive barge shipments of chemicals. Freedom Industries was the sole member of Etowah, and state records show Farrell was the manager. Etowah and Freedom officially merged at the end of December.

not provide a timeline for school to resume.

The emergency closed schools, restaurants and businesses because they, along with about 300,000 residents, were told not to drink, shower or even wash clothes with the contaminated water.

WATER

For food, they're making do with meals that don't require water for cooking or cleaning up. "We're living off pizza pretty much."

Nitro Police Patrolman H.R. Blake II said this supply of water is the seventh or eighth 53-foot trailer load since Saturday. "We've been handing out water nonstop since then."

The city also has an 1,100 gallon tank it fills at neighboring St. Albans for residents' water jugs, he said. It's drawing people from Poca, Cross Lanes and Institute. "It's going pretty smooth here, we think."

West Virginia American Water is lifting the Do Not Use restriction by zones, radiating out from the Capitol area, and Blake said they don't know when they'll have use of their water again. "We'll make do until that time. It's one of those situations where you have to adapt, overcome and just have a little bit of patience."

The state Joint Information Center said American Water isn't releasing a timeline for lifting the Do Not Use order. The chemical spill originally affected just more than 100,000 customers — about 300,000 people — and by early Tuesday evening, about 38,000 customers had the order lifted.

The Nitro Food Pantry also sits nearby, but was closed for the day. Mayor Dave Case-

Kroger sends water to spill victims

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Kroger has assisted residents of the Charleston region with clean water and sanitizers during the emergency ban on use of water.

On Sunday, two tankers of spring water were sent to Kroger stores in Charleston and Dunbar for free distribution to the public. In addition, Kroger sent six tractor trailers loaded with water to the Red Cross, the Union Mission Food Bank, and the National Guard for them to bolt was handing out water and also works with the pantry. He said the water crisis didn't appear to create any extra demand for food.

Asked about town morale, he said that at times, crisis can be good for a community. "It brings everybody together for one common cause. We're going through a lot of hardship, obviously, but everybody's coming together."

He said he hasn't paid for food for four days because residents have been bringing steady deliveries of entrees, salads and desserts to the water station volunteers.

At about 4 p.m. at the St. Albans West Side Volunteer distribute to residents.

At the request of the governor's office, Kroger donated 100 cases of hand sanitizer and 100 cases of sanitary wipes for hospitals in the nine-county area where the ban was in effect.

"We are thankful that we are in a position to be able to help residents who are going through an extremely difficult time," said Carl York, spokesperson for Kroger's Mid-Atlantic region. "It is a privilege to be part of a community where residents care so much for each other."

Kroger stores in the Mid-Atlantic region are changing over their coin collection boxes to raise money from customers for the people in the Charleston region.

Not only did Kroger donate water to the communities, the retailer also provided water to their associates affected in the area.

"Many of our associates in West Virginia, Virginia and Ohio spent their weekend making arrangements to help the residents in the Charleston region, and we are grateful for their efforts," York added.

Fire Department, across the Kanawha River, police cars with flashing blue lights blocked the entry to the parking lot. This is another official water distribution site, but officers said the supply had just run out and they didn't know when the next was coming.

The Kanawha County Emergency Operations Center said the order was in and the shipment could be going out as early as Tuesday night, but no later than early today.

Inside the fire station, half a dozen people were relaxing around a small table, and a couple grade school children were tooling around. Assistant Fire Chief Chris Schilling said they'd received and given out eight trailer loads so far: Three Saturday, three Sunday, two Monday and one Tuesday.

Each truck holds 20 pallets, volunteers said, with each pallet holding 750-800 bottles of water. One truck, though, had 24 pallets.

Schilling wasn't personally affected by the water problem because he's in a Public Service District that draws water from another source. Another volunteer has well water.

But one white-haired man, who requested anonymity, lives in St. Albans and was under the order. "I'm still using it, so it don't matter," he said. "I ain't glowed yet." He's not drinking it, but he and his household are showering and washing dishes with it."

Joey Eskridge, also of St. Albans, said, "I'm just living through it. ... We're using bottled water to wash our dishes" and all the rest. He has one young son, who's taking the situation well. "He likes it because there's no school."

Schilling summed up, "We're really kind of glad the public took it as well as they did. We've been thanked, everyone's been patient. It's been pretty good; it's been long days but we've been working through it."

Local residents help out

The residents of Monongalia County pitched in to help those without water in Charleston.

MECCA 911 Deputy Director Jim Smith said nearly 400 cases of water were collected at a donation held at the Coliseum Sunday. "We took the trailer shelter full of gallons of water and paper supplies and that was delivered down to Charleston," he said adding that a tractor-trailer load of water was collected at Giant Eagle.

Smith said the WVU Office of Student Affairs also organized a water collection on Monday and the collected water would be sent down in the shelter trailer Tuesday.

"It seemed like a competition to see who could bring the most. It's great to see that in the kids," Smith said. The WVU baseball team helped load the supplies bound for Charleston. Smith said totaling all the donations, about 800 cases of water were collected.

It's time we all answered the call

Request for 911 fee hike necessary, but such increases should come in increments

"Pay me now or pay me later."

That phrase once sold countless numbers of a certain oil filter, but it's driven many more decisions over the years.

The idea behind it is to spend a little more upfront to avoid a real emergency later.

These kinds of investments in time and resources can and do often prevent things going from bad to worse.

On Tuesday, the Monongalia Emergency Central Communication Agency's (MECCA) 911 Policy Board approved a request to raise 911 fees by about 235 percent.

That fee, currently $1.31 per month, has not been raised since our county 911 service was implemented, in the mid-1980s.

The board wants to raise the fee to about $4 a month on residential land-line phones.

Many, undoubtedly, will quibble with or decry this proposed increase. The Monongalia County Commission, which will inevitably decide whether or not to increase this fee, will certainly be getting an earful.

For the record, we support the 911 Policy Board's recommendation for an increase to nearly $4 per month.

However, like so many other proposals to raise public fees, it would be far easier to win public support for increasing fees if they came in smaller increments.

Incurring this $2.70 increase, for instance, during the nearly past 30 years could have meant being constantly short-changed, but for only for a few cents more a year. Few would have even noticed such an increase.

In recent years, other similar stiff increases locally have been passed on to the public by the Morgantown Utility Board, the Morgantown Fire Department and the Monongalia County assessor's office.

Most of us are more than willing to pay our fair share for the public good. It's the price of civilization, as a famous U.S. Supreme Court justice once opined.

However, these increases are easier to swallow if they are served up to us in smaller portions.

Sure, some will squawk about being nickel and dimed, but not as loudly.

In the future, if there's a need for such fee increases, we also urge they happen sooner, rather than later, to spare compounding these costs.

But bottom line: Spending a few dollars more to prepare for the worst-case scenarios is common sense.

It's also good business sense to regularly upgrade equipment rather than applying "quick fix" approaches.

These fee increases are not business as usual, though. Or just a headache, either.

Indeed, the dispatcher on the other end of that line and the technology that surrounds him or her is often the difference in life and death.

They respond when we call — immediately.

It's time we answered the call, too.

Let's learn a lesson from Elk River disaster

If we needed one more reason to be concerned about the proposed waste injection well in Masontown, we need look no farther than Charleston.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens in the Charleston area have suffered for long days with no — that's NO — water to use in their homes.

Why? Because thousands of gallons of a toxic chemical spilled into the Elk River barely a mile above the public water supply intake.

I shudder to think the very same thing could happen to Masontown and Morgantown if the proposed injection well for massive quantities of industrial waste were allowed in Masontown.

It would be virtually on Deckers Creek, and would be the dumping place for millions of gallons of toxic waste.

The ingredients of this waste are kept secret, though we know it contains toxic, carcinogenic and radioactive material.

An accident like the one in Charleston could do unparalleled damage to Deckers Creek, the Monongahela River and its surroundings, and to property values in Masontown.

This waste well is unnecessary. It could easily be located somewhere else — and is too dangerous for the proposed location in Masontown on Deckers Creek.

Let's learn a lesson from the Elk River disaster that we do not want to happen here.

our founders, especially Thomas Jefferson, believed that there must be a wall of separation between church and state.

While I don't oppose religion or those who wish to believe as they do, I wish to point out to Pastor Terry Hagedorn (DP-Dec. 5) that Christianity and science have been at odds for centuries. Religious intolerance and acceptance of others who may be of a different faith or religious belief is as much a part of the human experience as is religion itself. When it comes to science, religion refuses to accept scientific facts that question the Bible, even when the Bible has been proven to be wrong.

Beginning with the Spanish inquisitions in 1391, when the Spanish executed thousands of Jews because they wouldn't convert to Christianity, religious persecution has continued up to today between Christians, Muslims and Jews. This needs to stop.

Throughout history, religion has sought to suppress science and independent thought, and this continues today. Had the world's religious establishments not suppressed science and free thought for centuries, man might now be able to travel amongst the stars and may have eradicated disease, prejudice, war and hatred.

Those of us that Hagedorn would deny the right to think refuse to comply with his outdated version of religion and his history of the human race. Many of us who choose to think "aren't atheists." We choose to think and are sick and tired of having bigoted religious views injected into everything that happens in our world today. Hagedorn, "with all due respect," you're preaching to the choir.

And by the way, Easter often falls in the month of April. Do you wish to give away a month that often represents the most holy of all religious celebrations to atheists?

Is GOP waging 'war' against poverty or the poor?

SURPRISE. SOME OF THE IDEAS that Republican presidential hopefuls offer for a conservative "war on poverty" aren't bad, although too many of the rest sound like a war on the poor.

The good news is that this past week's 50th anniversary of President Lyndon B. Johnson's declaration of a "war on poverty" has encouraged both parties and President Barack Obama to revisit the P-word — not just the less politically volatile "economic inequality."

Democrats have little reason to be satisfied with Johnson's war, either. But without a vigorous competition from Republicans on the battleground of ideas, even bad programs limp along forever.

By that standard, Sen. Marco Rubio, R-Fla., offered some ideas worth further debate in his anti-poverty speech on the Jan. 8 anniversary of LBJ's declaration.

For example, he would lift the marriage penalties from safety net programs like Medicaid. These are penalties that, in effect, discourage marriage by counting a couple's combined income as if it were a single person's income. The lost revenue would be considerable, but lawmakers shouldn't hide from the issue.

He also offered some promising examples of states that tie benefits for the long-term unemployed to requirements that they take courses to upgrade their skills.

But the main thrust of his agenda was a troubling revival of President Ronald Reagan's "new federalism." Rubio would merge almost all of federal anti-poverty funds into a single "revenue-neutral Flex Fund" of block grants to be given to the states.

Rep. Paul Ryan, R-Wis., struck a similarly hopeful note in 2013 in a speech about how his Catholic teachings inspired his faith in "the principle of subsidiarity, which is really federalism, meaning government closest to the people governs best."

"Big government" he said, should not crowd out "a civil society" where "we advance the common good" through churches, charities and civic organizations "so that we can interact with each other, and take care of people who are down and out in our communities."

Sen. Rand Paul, R-Ky., also has called for more civic engagement outside government. He sounded hopeful last week that his idea for economic "freedom zones" to encourage jobs and businesses with tax breaks might be merged with President Obama's five newly designated economic "promise zones" to promote social mobility in deprived cities and rural areas.

Even Sen. Ted Cruz of Texas managed to tie an anti-poverty theme to his relentless calls for the repeal of the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare: "All of America needs to be a real 'Promise Zone,' " he said, with reduced barriers to small businesses creating private-sector jobs — "and we should start by repealing every word of Obamacare, building the Keystone pipeline, abolishing the IRS and rolling back abusive regulations."

Which brings me to what's troubling about the idea of giving anti-poverty funds to the states to do as they please. Unfortunately, some aren't going to do much, if anything.

Nobody knew this better than Johnson, a formerly segregationist Texas Democrat. Opposition from Southern lawmakers to his Economic Opportunity Act, a centerpiece of his War on Poverty, was almost as fierce as it was to his 1964 Civil Rights Act. To get around Southern governors who wanted the right to veto grants, Johnson's administration sent the money directly to local agencies and communities.

Those days are in the past, you might think. The list of states that have refused to expand Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act includes all those states of the old South, if you include Arkansas, which is doing a partial expansion.

Among them are states with the nation's highest numbers of uninsured. Yet, even though the federal government is picking up 90 to 100 percent of the cost, Republican lawmakers led the protests, at the expense of their uninsured and, in the long run, their taxpayers.

As one who is delighted to see Republicans compete for the votes of women, minorities and other persuadable groups in the marketplace of ideas, I applaud efforts to bring forth market-driven conservative alternatives to compete with government-oriented Democratic programs. But we should all be skeptical of anti-poverty efforts that only help lawmakers to ignore the poor.

H. Miller Barb

H. Miller Barb, 90, of Greensboro (Mapletown), PA, lifelong member of Mapletown United Methodist Church, died at 10:43 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 14, 2014, at Southwest Regional Medical Center, Waynesburg, PA.

He was born Jan. 30, 1923, in Mapletown, PA, a son of the late Charles Alexander and Lessie Nina (Minor) Barb.

Mr. Barb was a graduate of Mapletown High School, received his bachelor's degree in 1948 from Waynesburg College and earned his master's degree in guidance counseling from WVU. He served with the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II from February of 1943 until December of 1945, with the 2126th Army Air Force Base Unit as a gunnery instructor on B-17, B-24 and B-29 aircraft in the South Pacific.

Mr. Barb taught school for one year at LaFayette Junior High School in Uniontown, PA, and was a math teacher and guidance counselor at Mapletown High School, retiring in 1981. He served as a lay speaker, Sunday School superintendent and on various other committees at the Mapletown United Methodist Church.

Mr. Barb also served as an assistant scout master for Troop 1270 in Bobtown and Mapletown. He was a member of Valley Lodge No. 459, F&AM, Masontown, PA, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Gideons International — Greene County (PA) Camp, and the Cornerstone Genealogical Society.

For many years, Mr. Barb volunteered at the gift shop at the Greene County Memorial Hospital and delivered daffodils with his late wife, Dora, for the American Cancer Society.

As a lifelong resident of Mapletown, Mr. Barb served as the sexton for the Monongahela Hill Cemetery since 1962. On June 11, 1948, he married Dora L. Dusenberry, who died Sept. 10, 2013.

Surviving are two daughters, Holly B. Stevenson and her husband Gary, and Joy B. Born and her husband Robert, all of Greensboro, PA; seven grandchildren, Brian Stevenson, Sara Parker and her husband Bill, Erin Stevenson, Walter Born, Amanda Adkins and her husband Kris, Jeremy Born, and Dale Born; four great-grandchildren, Christopher, Brayden, Matthew and Kara; and nieces and nephews.

Deceased are a brother, Ewing Barb; and a half brother, Charles Barbe.

Family and friends are welcome in the Yoskovich Funeral Home (724-966-5500), Martin J. Yoskovich, funeral director, 300 South Vine St. (Route 88), Carmichaels, PA, from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, 2-4:30 and 6-8 p.m. Thursday, and at the Mapletown United Methodist Church, Greensboro, PA, from 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 17, until the 11 a.m. service at the church, with the Revs. John W. Hodge and Kenneth A. Haines officiating. Interment will follow at Monongahela Hill Cemetery, Mapletown, with military honors accorded by Cumberland American Legion Post 400, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3491, and the U.S. Air Force.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to either the Mapletown United Methodist Church, 926 Mapletown Road, Greensboro, PA 15338, or to Gideons International.

Samuel James Mercer

Samuel James Mercer, 69, of Morgantown, died Tuesday, Jan. 14, 2014, at home.

McCulla Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements, which are incomplete.

Kimberly Perry 'Kim' Groves

Kimberly Perry "Kim" Groves, 52, of Morgantown, passed away peacefully on Monday, Jan. 13, 2014, at her home surrounded by her loving family.

Kimberly Groves

She was born Aug. 19, 1961, in Morgantown, daughter to Mary K. Cook Perry of Morgantown and the late Everett E. Perry.

Kim was a graduate of Morgantown High School Class of '79. She worked the past 23 years for the CDC NIOSH as a purchasing agent until her health would no longer permit.

Some of Kim's fondest memories were of both her daughters' sports activities in softball, basketball, volleyball, football and also in cheerleading. Kim loved the life of dirt track racing while her husband was awarded many honors and trophies. This was then followed by attending and supporting her daughter, Deana, during her racing career.

Kim was probably one of the most loyal Mountaineers fans around, whether following the football team on road trips and bowl games, or supporting the basketball team in the holiday tournaments. She was a true fan, win or lose!!

She is survived by her husband of nearly 30 years, David L. Groves; two daughters, Deana Noel Groves of Morgantown, and Jordan Rachel Groves of Charlotte, NC; two sisters, Beverly A. Fragale, and Katherine Sue Westbrook and husband Mike, all of Morgantown; one brother, Everett Edward Perry Jr. and wife Joyce of Jacksonville, FL; mother-in-law, JoAnn Groves of Morgantown; brother-in-law, Tracy Groves and wife Tricia of Daytona Beach, FL; five nieces; four nephews; three great-nieces; seven great-nephews; and many loving friends.

In addition to her father, Kim was preceded in death by one brother, Gordon Dean Perry; and father-in-law, Melvin Leon Groves.

Friends may come to the Fred L. Jenkins Funeral Home from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, from 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Thursday, and from 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 17, until the 11 a.m. service, with Pastor Terry Hagedorn officiating. Burial will follow at the Beverly Hills Memorial Gardens.

In lieu of flowers, please make memorial donations to Kim's Krusade, National Brain Tumor Society, 55 Chapel St., Suite 200, Newton, MA 02458.

The family would like to express their heartfelt thanks to the staff of Mary Babb Randolph Cancer Center for the compassionate care and assistance over the past 18 months, and to Hospice Care Corporation for the assistance they provided during the last few weeks.

William Hanford

William Hanford, 77, of Westover, passed away Monday, Jan. 13, 2014, at Point Manor.

William Hanford

He was born Jan. 30, 1936, in Morgantown, a son of the late James and Jane Spedden Hanford.

Bill was retired as a production manager from Sterling Faucet and was later employed at Mylan Pharmaceuticals. Bill was a member of Kingdom Evangelical Methodist Church and was a U.S. Army Veteran. Bill was an avid Mountaineers fan and was a loving "pap pap" to his grandchildren.

Bill is survived by his wife, Nancy Hanford; his children, Cathy Gross of Morgantown, Janice Baxter of Omaha, NE, and David Hanford and wife Elaine of Rochester, NY; and five grandchildren, Tony Baxter, Olivia Gross, Lauren Gross, Lucas Hanford and Aidan Hanford.

Friends may call at the McCulla Funeral Home from 3-6 p.m. Wednesday, and from 10 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 16, until the 11 a.m. funeral service, with the Rev. Larry Morgan officiating. Burial will follow at Beverly Hills Cemetery with graveside military honors conferred by the WVANG military funeral honors and the Westover VFW Post No. 9916.

Josephine 'Jo' Stewart

Josephine "Jo" Stewart, 82, of Ravenswood, passed away after a brief illness on Monday, Jan. 13, 2014, at CAMC General Hospital in Charleston.

Josephine Stewart

She was born March 11, 1931, and raised in Morgantown, where she was the drum major in 1950 for the Morgantown High Marching Mohigans.

Jo was a member of First United Methodist Church in Ravenswood, where she enjoyed volunteering with her church family. She was a domestic goddess in every sense of the word. She loved to cook, spend time with her family and friends, and watch WVU men's basketball, but the one thing she loved the most, and was so proud of, were her beautiful grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Earl G. Stewart; son-in-law, Jennings L. "Jinky" Davis; brother-in-law, Herb Henry; parents, Homer D. and Mabel E. Livengood; and brother, Carleton Livengood and his wife Marcalee.

Jo is survived by her sister, Betty Henry, Ravenswood; one son, Carson "Buddy" Chenoweth and his wife Jamie of Millwood, WV; two daughters, Karen Davis of Ravenswood, and Kelly Teets and husband Mark of Albright; stepdaughter, Nancy Stewart of South Charleston; five grandchildren, Markie Parsons, Haley Chenoweth, Mattie Parsons, Corey Chenoweth and Colby Teets; and several nieces and nephews.

Friends may visit the family at Roush Funeral Home, Ravenswood, from 5-8 p.m. Wednesday, and at First United Methodist Church, Ravenswood, from noon Thursday, Jan. 16, until the 1 p.m. service, with the Rev. Shauna Hyde officiating. Burial will follow in Ravenswood Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the First United Methodist Church, 719 Flinn St., Ravenswood, WV 26164.

Defendant in one of Md.'s longest murder trials dies

Associated Press

JESSUP, Md. — A former Westminster businessman convicted in one of Maryland's longest murder trials is dead.

The Maryland Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services said Tuesday that Robert Lee Myers, 71, died Sunday, at a prison hospital in Jessup.

A newspaper reported that Myers' three children have always maintained their father was innocent in the 1979 shooting of their stepmother, Mary Ruth Myers.

Myers was convicted of first-degree murder in 1982 and sentenced to life in prison after a 72-day trial and three days of jury deliberations.

Angry dad wants to learn how to control emotions

DEAR ABBY: I'm a dad in my 30s, and I have a problem. I have been battling anger issues since I was a kid. I have been finding myself getting more and more worked up with my kids. When they misbehave, I lose it and yell at them.

I really want to break this habit. I don't want the only memories my children have of me to be images of my red face and bugged-out eyes hollering at them. Do you have any guidelines I can follow to get a better handle on my anger? — LOUD DAD IN WEST VIRGINIA

DEAR LOUD DAD: Yes, I do. And I'm glad you asked me because it's important that you find other ways of relieving your frustration than taking it out on your children. It is not only counterproductive, it is extremely destructive.

When a bigger person yells at a smaller person, the message is often lost because the smaller person simply shuts down out of fear that physical violence might follow.

You should not ignore your feelings when your children act up. Rather, you need to find another manner for expressing your emotions. My booklet "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It" offers suggestions on red-irecting angry feelings in a healthy way. It can be ordered by sending your name and mailing address, plus a check or money order for $7, to Dear Abby — Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price.

Sometimes when people are angry or frustrated about other things, they can lose control of their temper. In situations like these, it is important to evaluate the source of what might really be irritating you before misdirecting your anger at someone who is blameless.

There are healthy ways of dealing with anger and frustration. Developing the control to express emotions verbally without being abusive or calling names is one of them. Another is to say a prayer before opening your mouth. Leaving the room, or going for a walk or short run can be helpful.

Work begins on calendar

New state law: A 180-day year is mandatory

MONONGALIA COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD

out of a 200-day school calendar. "The important thing, when it talks 180 days, we're going to have to get in 180 days of instruction next year," Superintendent Frank Devono said.

As part of state code, there has to be a four-week break between years. Devono said they are looking at taking the entire month of July out of the calendar process.

Out of the 200-day calendar, the state Department of Education requires 14 days for various items, such as seven holidays, six scheduled employee vacation days and Election Day. That leaves six non-instructional days at a district's discretion, which could be used for school-opening preparation, parent-pupil-teacher conferences and other events.

But, under the new state code, nothing would be sacred. The district would have 48 weeks to meet the 180-day mandate. That

With the possibility of adding days to the end of the school year or eliminating breaks to meet a state instructional day mandate, Monongalia County Schools started formulating the 2014-'15 calendar and informing the public of the changes.

At its meeting Tuesday, the Board of Education held a public presentation and comment session regarding the calendar.

A bill adopted during the 2013 legislative session could mean major changes in the 2014-'15 school year. The new law makes the 180-day school year mandatory —

Board may cut some budget areas by 5%

BY ALEX LANG
The Dominion Post

As Monongalia County Schools tries to be proactive with its budget situation, Superintendent Frank Devono said they are looking at a 5 percent cut in some areas to help cover costs if there are larger cuts in coming years.

During Tuesday's Monongalia County Board of Education meeting, Devono discussed the district's budget situation.

Part of the issue is that the district could lose $4 million next year due to a new law. The law states that if a county's property assessments aren't at a certain percentage for market value, its school district would lose some funding.

The law is being discussed by the state legislature for possible changes.

Devono said there are also concerns about loss of funds as a result of the Longview Power Plant bankruptcy proceedings.

The district is looking at a 5 percent cut this year. Devono said board members have discussed the issue with the principals. The money would come from funds typically used for supplies, equipment, furniture and other costs.

"We're not trying to hurt the classroom," he said. "We're just not trying to spend money because we have it available to spend."

The move could save about $1 million for the district. That

WVU students on TV show

The Dominion Post

Political television came to Morgantown on Tuesday in the form of a bus sponsored by the C-SPAN channel.

The C-SPAN bus was on campus to provide WVU students information about the channel's programs and job opportunities. The students also had a chance to participate in the channel's morning show, "Washington Journal."

As part of the program, students asked questions of Rep. Nick Rahall, D-W.Va. One of the students who participated in the show was Student Government Association Vice President Benjamin Seebaugh.

"It was very cool," Seebaugh said. "This was my first time on national television."

Seebaugh said he asked Rahall about coal issues and what Congress could do to help regulate environmental safety in the field.

It was a bit nerve-racking appearing on national TV, Seebaugh said.

But there were other students who went before him, which made it a bit easier. He added it was interesting seeing the bus and he was excited and humbled to be participating.

According to a WVU news release, the bus is in its 21st year and is traveling to communities to inform people about the channel's First Ladies series, which airs at 9 p.m. Mondays through February.

The bus is doing a spring tour of Big 12 campuses.

MORGANTOWN UTILITY BOARD

Water rate hike is 'on your radar'

Ball says increase likely to be 'modest'

BY BEN CONLEY
The Dominion Post

Morgantown Utility Board (MUB) General Manager Tim Ball said the utility is in the early stages of putting together a rate law that would increase what it charges for water.

Ball made the announcement during Tuesday night's meeting of the utility's board, stating, "I just wanted to get that on your radar."

"We are taking a look now at the need to possibly adjust our water rates," Ball said, adding that he anticipates presenting a final proposal to the Board during the March 11 meeting and having it in front of Morgantown City Council at March's committee of the whole meeting.

"We're doing the financial analysis now to put a number on what that increase ought to be. It should be pretty modest," Ball said. "Probably no more than 10 or 11 percent or so."

The last time city council passed such a law — in 2009 — it was a combined 57 percent increase between water and sewer rates.

"Their advice to us then was that we should not wait so long between increases and then bring large increases in. We should not do that," Ball said. "We should bring smaller increases every two or three years."

Speaking of bills, MUB Comptroller Debbie Osborne said everyone's MUB bill will have a new look come Feb. 1.

"It's the first time we've had a change in [MUB's bill template] since we'd gone from a postcard to a printed bill. That happened in 1999," Osborne said. "We think the new bill will be easier to read, more descriptive and will give you the billing details."

Osborne said the bill will include a new usage display graph that will calculate the customer's usage per day.

Emergency services urge residents: Display addresses

BY CONOR GRIFFITH
The Dominion Post

The public safety departments of Monongalia County urge residents to properly display address numbers.

MECCA 911 Deputy Director Jim Smith said several houses throughout the county do not have addresses properly displayed.

He explained the issue at the Tuesday meeting of the MECCA

911 Policy Board. "We probably lose five hours a week running up and down the roads looking for these houses," board member Gary Renner said. "Half the mailboxes out there don't even have numbers on them."

County law requires all homes to have address numbers displayed in Arabic numerals at least 4 inches tall so they are visible from the public right-of-way. Residences along entrances are required to have the numbers displayed on mailboxes or the end of driveways.

Renner said he would like to start a public service ad campaign to inform residents of the importance of address display. Smith said law enforcement in Jefferson County started summoning people who don't have their addresses displayed. The ad campaign is intended to prevent that from happening in Mon County.

"Not only do we ask people to do it, it is a county ordinance and it is for the residents' safety," Smith said. "Every second counts in an emergency situation. The more clear that home is marked, the easier it is for emergency responders to find the residence."

BUDGET

money could be rolled over to next year and fund 15 to 20 employee positions, Devono said — though there is a possibility of no cut this year if the legislative issue is resolved.

BOE member Nancy Walker said that in the past they have asked for a 2 percent reduction and nobody complained about being hurt by that cut.

There are also cuts at the state Department of Education level, but Devono said the board is affected only with critical skills money and its personnel. The district stands to lose about $180,000 from that cut, but some of the money from the possible 5 percent cut could be used to cover those costs.

“Probably the biggest advantage is that the customer will be able to view their actual bill online,” Osborne said. “It will display it and it will look exactly like their bill.”

Osborne said customers can jump directly from their online bill to a pay window. She said MUB does between $450,000 and $500,000 worth of credit card payments each month, most of which are paid online.

In other news from Tuesday's meeting, Ball called the occurrences on McClane Avenue “truly an odd situation.”

Extremely hot water has rendered faucets nearly useless in a one- or two-block area near 8th Street and McLane Avenue.

Ball said in one case, even the cold water coming into a home was so hot “people cannot take a comfortable shower.” He also said the heat of the water has warped pipes inside people's homes, causing them to leak.

One MUB customer has gone so far as to file a West Virginia Public Service Commission complaint, Ball said.

“There's only one source of such excess heat in that area and that's the MEA [Morgantown Energy Associates] steam line,” Ball said. “MEA produces two products at its power plant, power and steam.”

Ball said he theorizes that there is a breach in the insulation of a steam pipe, heating the water lines.

“It's not steam that's escaping. Steam would be highly destructive ... This is simply excess temperature, excess heat,” Ball said. He added that after some digging, they can evaluate what could be done. MEA has hired a crew and is looking into the situation.

“We've appealed from the beginning to MEA,” Ball said. “This is obviously their problem, and we asked that they address it and fix it.”

means most non-instructional days can be converted to instructional days. The exemptions are that holidays, weekends and Election Day cannot be changed to instructional days.

“Any other day can be made up, even outside that 200-day window,” Devono said.

For example, if a spring break were scheduled and the district missed days, the board could turn those breaks into instructional days. The district could also decide to add days in June as makeup days, but it would extend the school year.

Devono said he plans to recommend first converting those scheduled employee vacation days — called Outside School Environment days — when days need to be made up.

But, to help calm fears about an extended school year, Devono said that during the past 30 years, the district averaged about 4.5 snow days a year.

BOE President Barbara Parsons said they would prefer using those scheduled employee vacation days first, so as to not intrude on summer activities, but they are required by law to meet the 180-day mandate.

As part of the meeting, members of the school community and public had an opportunity to voice their thoughts or ask questions. Public meetings regarding the calendar are required by code.

Chuck Lamb, president of Mon County West Virginia Education Association, was one of the speakers, but said he was speaking on his own behalf as an educator. As an Advanced Placement teacher, he encouraged the board to front-load as many days as possible so they can support the AP tests that students take seriously.

Mike Rogers, vice president of the Mon County chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, thanked the board for its transparency. He said he likes that people want to see a weeklong Thanksgiving break and, as a hunter, he plans to continue to take his children hunting. There are also people who live in the outlying area who use deer meat as a food source.

There also is a school calendar survey that locals can answer. The survey asks respondents which days they prefer for the start and end of classes, what events spring break should coincide with, and a few other topics.

During Tuesday's meeting, some initial survey results were presented. Of the 1,806 respondents, 47 percent prefer starting around Aug. 18, similar to when the district has traditionally started.

A second public meeting regarding the school calendar is scheduled for 6 p.m. Jan. 28, at South Middle School.

Today

Mortgage lending outlook?

Wall Street expects Bank of America's fourth-quarter earnings improved versus a year earlier. The nation's second-largest lender benefited in the previous quarter from growth in investments and interest charged on loans. The bank also has been cutting jobs, which has helped lower its expenses. Investors will be listening today for hints on how the lender's mortgage business is faring heading into the annual spring home-selling season.

Price-earnings ratio: 26 based on trailing 12 months' results
Dividend: $0.04 Div. yield: 0.2%

Eye on prices

The Department of Labor reports its latest data on wholesale prices today.

The producer price index, which measures prices before they reach the consumer, has declined in recent months. Cheaper gasoline and lower home heating oil costs have helped keep prices from rising. Economists anticipate that the producer price index edged higher in December.

Producer price index

Better quarter?

Major freight railroads like CSX have been struggling with weak coal demand over the past couple of years. The trend has hurt CSX's revenue, even as revenue from other major freight sectors, such as shipments of containers hauled from ports, have grown. CSX is expected to report flat earnings today and modest revenue growth for the fourth quarter.

Quotable

"If we're right in thinking that the underlying trend in jobs growth is still improving, households will continue to spend more freely in 2014."

Flying higher

Airline stocks continue to soar this year after rising sharply in 2013. Several carriers, including American Airlines Group, Delta Air Lines and Southwest Airlines are up more than 13 percent. Shares of United Continental have already climbed 23.6 percent.

Reports of a strong holiday travel season helped attract investor interest. American Airlines Group, which owns both American Airlines and US Airways since a merger last month, said traffic and a key revenue figure both increased sharply in December from the prior year. United reported that the same revenue figure rose more than expected due to strong passenger traffic and prices throughout December.

The key statistic — revenue for every seat flown one mile — rose about 12 percent at United, 14 percent to 15 percent at Southwest, and between 9 percent and 12 percent at American, US Airways and Delta.

What's more, investor confidence in the airline industry is more widespread as consolidation has reduced competition and given the airlines more pricing power. Also the price of oil has fallen nearly 6 percent since the start of the year. Airline stocks are highly sensitive to the price of oil because jet fuel is their largest single expense.

Airlines take off The Standard & Poor's 500 index is off to a rocky start this year, falling nearly 0.5 percent, while airline stocks continue to climb.

WORLD BRIEFS

Dozens arrested for being gay in north Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria — First the police targeted the gay men, then tortured them into naming dozens of others who now are being hunted down, human rights activists said Tuesday, warning that such persecution will rise under a new Nigerian law. The men's alleged crime? Belonging to a gay organization. The punishment? Up to 10 years in jail under the Same Sex Marriage Prohibition Act, which has elicited international condemnation for criminalizing gay marriage, gay organizations and anyone working with or promoting them.

There were varying accounts of how many arrests were made in Nigeria's Bauchi state, and a local law enforcement official denied that anyone was tortured. Nevertheless, the aggressive police action shows that Africa's most populous country is attempting to enforce anti-gay measures that are becoming increasingly common throughout the continent.

Israeli's comments spark spat with U.S.

JERUSALEM — An Israeli newspaper quoted the defense minister Tuesday as deriding U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry's Mideast peace efforts as naive and foolhardy. The comments triggered an angry response from Washington and rekindled simmering tensions with Israel's closest and most important ally.

In the comments published by the Yediot Ahronot daily, Defense Minister Moshe Yaalon called Kerry "obsessive" and "messianic," and dismissed Kerry's security plan as worthless.

The U.S. Embassy in Israel has complained about the reported comments to the Israeli government, said a senior State Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because she was not authorized to discuss the matter on the record.

200 South Sudan refugees die

JUBA, South Sudan — A boat carrying civilians desperately fleeing heavy violence in South Sudan sank while crossing the Nile River, killing 200 people, a military official said Tuesday. Fighting between rebels and government forces moved closer to the capital.

Warfare in the world's newest state has displaced more than 400,000 people since mid-December, with the front lines constantly shifting as loyalist troops and renegade forces gain and lose territory in battles often waged along ethnic lines.

Huge budget bill aims to show Congress' mettle

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A chastened Congress is putting aside the crisis-driven budget battles of the past three years, embracing a $1.1 trillion spending bill that restores or smooths the sharpest edges of the automatic cuts imposed as a result of its own dysfunction.

The huge election-year legislation preserves the downward trajectory on government spending demanded by Republicans. Yet the bipartisan measure steaming through Congress also preserves President Barack Obama's health care overhaul and stricter regulation of financial markets — and deflects the most significant attempts by Republicans to rewrite environmental rules and force other changes.

Lawmakers hope the compromise will show disgruntled voters before next fall's midterm election that Washington — especially its unpopular Congress — can perform its most basic function of responsibly funding the government. The bravado that prompted tea party Republicans to force a government shutdown in hopes of derailing "Obamacare" is long gone, replaced by an election-year desire to focus attention on the administration's troubled rollout of the health care law instead of lurching from crisis to crisis.

"The average American looking at this, it looks pretty dysfunctional for the last couple of years," said Rep. Tom Cole, R-Okla. "We need to rack up some achievements here — not just for Republicans but for incumbents in general and for the institution."

There could still be bumps in the road. Congress needs to raise the government's borrowing cap by the end of February or early March, and it's unclear how big of a battle that will be.

As for the compromise spending bill, the massive measure funds the operations of virtually every federal agency, making cuts and additions reflecting the trade-offs of divided government. While delivering relief from painful budget cuts and caps known as sequestration, it still imposes a 3 percent cut on agency budgets relative to those approved last year before automatic reductions lopped about $60 billion from them.

2 wounded in school shooting

N.M. boy opens fire with shotgun

Associated Press

ROSWELL, N.M. — A 12-year-old New Mexico boy drew a shotgun from a band-instrument case and shot and wounded two classmates at his middle school Tuesday morning. A teacher talked him into dropping the weapon and he was taken into custody, officials and witnesses said.

Gov. Susana Martinez said a boy was critically injured and a girl was in serious condition following the shooting at Berrendo Middle School, in Roswell.

The students were in the gym, where she said they typically hang out before classes start during cold and inclement weather. The 12-year-old pulled a shotgun and opened fire there at about 8 a.m.

But he was "quickly stopped by one staff member who walked right up to him and asked him to set down the firearm, which he did," Martinez said.

Officials at University Medical Center in Lubbock, Texas, said an 11-year-old boy was flown there in critical condition and a 13-year-old girl was en route in serious condition. Information from nurses treating the boy indicates he was the shooter's target, hospital spokesman Eric Finley said. There was some confusion about the boy's age, but Finley said his parents told the hospital he is 11.

The governor said a staff member received very minor injuries but declined medical care because he wanted to stay and help.

Odiee Carranza, an eighth grader at Berrendo, said she was walking to the school gym when the suspect bumped into her as he rushed past. She told him to be careful, and he apologized and continued on. The boy ran to the gym, where he pulled a gun out of a band instrument case and fired at the students.

"Then he shot up in the sky, then dropped the gun, and then some teacher grabbed the kid that had the gun," Carranza said.

Carranza described the shooter as a "smart kid and a nice kid."

Court sets aside Internet neutrality rules

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a decision that could reshape consumers' access to online content, a federal appeals court Tuesday set aside Federal Communications Commission (FCC) rules designed to ensure that transmission of all Internet content be treated equally.

The anti-discrimination and anti-blocking rules have barred broadband providers from prioritizing some types of Internet traffic over others.

A three-judge panel said that the FCC has the authority to regulate broadband providers' treatment of Internet traffic. However, the judges concluded that the FCC failed to establish that its regulations don't overreach.

"Even though the commission has general authority to regulate in this arena, it may not impose requirements" that violate statutory mandates, appeals judge David Tatel wrote.

The judges said the FCC's rule in effect treated all Internet service providers as common carriers — transporters of people or goods for the general public on regular routes at set rates. Examples of common carriers include airlines, railroads, trucking companies and utilities.

But the court said the commission itself already had classified broadband providers as exempt from treatment as common carriers, which set up a legal contradiction. The FCC failed to establish that its regulations do not impose common carrier obligations on the Internet companies, the judges ruled in a setback for the Obama administration's goal of Internet openness.

The decision empowers leading Internet providers to decide which Internet services — such as Netflix movies, YouTube videos, news stories and more — they would allow to be transmitted to consumers over their networks.

In some cases, Internet providers such as Verizon, AT&T and cable companies can demand that Google, for example, pay them to ensure that YouTube videos are accessible to all their consumers, or Google could pay extra to ensure that YouTube videos are delivered faster.

The court said it was aware of concerns expressed by supporters of the FCC policy about what might happen if the rules were overturned.

Discounts, online shopping boost holiday sales figures

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Holiday shoppers were more than willing to spend during the holiday season, if they saw big discounts or were shopping online.

Sales rose 3.8 percent from last year for November and December combined, according to the National Retail Federation's analysis of federal figures. That was a healthy gain in a season that kept merchants worried right up until Christmas as people held off on spending.

That caution and increased online shopping made the holiday less festive at the mall. Shoppers stayed away from many traditional destinations like department stores and electronics stores.

The sales increase came in just shy of the trade group's forecast of a 3.9 percent gain. It was better than the 3.5 percent increase in 2012 and the 3.3 percent average for the past 10 years.

"It was a knock-down, drag-out battle between retailers to see who could discount the most to generate the most traffic," said Ken Perkins, president of Retail Metrics LLC, a research firm.

For retailers, those discounts came straight out of their profits.

Agreement elusive on jobless bill

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Compromise talks on a new program of long-term jobless benefits ran aground in the Senate on Tuesday, leaving the fate of the measure in extreme doubt while Republicans and Democrats vied for political advantage in the wreckage.

"This is a dispiriting moment for millions of Americans," said Sen. Jack Reed, D-R.I., whose state's unemployment is measured at 9 percent.

At issue was a struggle over the possible resurrection of a program that expired Dec. 28, immediately cutting off support for more than 1.3 million unemployed workers who have exhausted state-paid benefits that generally run for 26 weeks.

The legislation is the first of the year in the Senate, and an early preview of a competition between the two parties for support in this year's election from economically squeezed voters.

After more than a week of negotiations, though, the Senate blocked a pair of Democratic-drafted proposals from advancing, after first denying Republicans a chance to change the legislation — all on near party-line votes.

Are your cards in the right place?

By Phillip Alder

When an average golfer gets a birdie (one under par), it is anticipated that he will make a mess of the next hole. But not a pro. However, what do you think is the worst score by a pro immediately after making a hole in one?

In golf, you try to place your ball well for your next shot. This also applies in bridge. Are your cards meshing well or badly with partner's hand?

Look only at the North hand. South opens one heart, North raises to two hearts, and South rebids two spades. What should North do now?

Before you answer that question, what does South's two-spade rebid show? It indicates a hand too strong to pass out two hearts, but too weak to jump to four hearts. He is showing four spades and a hand with six losers (there, one spade, one heart, three diamonds and one club). South is asking North to look in particular at his holdings in the majors.

North has a useful spade queen, four trumps (a nine-card fit is much better than an eight-carder) and an ace. Yes, he has only seven high-card points and 4-3-3-3 distribution, but since his hand has those three pluses, he should jump to four hearts.

Agreed, on a bad day, declarer will lose three diamonds and one heart, but the odds make this game worth bidding, and it succeeds here.

Late last year in Australia, at a European tour event (yes, in Australia), one golfer had a hole in one. On the next hole, a par four with no water, he had an 11.

More pain to endure before future arrives

BOB HUGGINS circled his players around him inside the WVU Coliseum locker room Monday night.

As the eyes of the young men who had just been involved in their worst game of the season began to focus onto their coach, Huggins simply left them with two options moving forward:

"He said either we're going to get up and go or we're going to lay down," WVU guard Eron Harris said after his team's 80-69 loss to Texas. "If somebody out there believes this is the end of the world for us, they're wrong."

Huggins, too, faced two options this summer when it came time to decide how to move forward with the WVU roster.

In essence, the veteran coach had to choose between pain and suffering; root canal or having his fingernails ripped out.

He was damned either way. Huggins could have kept the roster intact. It would have been more talented, more experienced and had more bodies eligible to play.

That roster had just finished 13-19 in its first season in the Big 12, but obviously would have had big man Aaric Murray (now averaging 23.4 points per game at Texas Southern) to help out down low.

It would have had more guard depth with Jabarie Hinds and another defender with Keaton Miles.

Youth and inexperience would have been the least of Huggins' concerns with that roster.

Instead, the worries would have been bad chemistry, bad work ethic and probably a season's worth of practices that would have felt like a punch to the gut.

Huggins, who spent much of this past season saying he would fix the problems, chose youth and inexperience.

WVU has crossed the halfway point to the 2013-14 season with a 10-7 record, and the possibility exists that this team will finish with another losing record.

With 14 regular-season games remaining, nine will be against top 25-ranked opponents.

WVU hasn't beaten a top 25 team in more than two years and has dropped 15 straight games to ranked teams.

With that said, this team plays with more heart and effort. These Mountaineers are finding more ways to score, even though they are also finding ways to give up more points.

"You can't say they don't care," Huggins has said throughout this season. "You can't say they gave up, because they didn't."

Had Huggins gone the other route — and found a way to keep Murray, Hinds, Aaron Brown and Miles in the program — maybe that team would have won a few more games based on its talent level.

Virginia Tech probably would have been a victory. The Wisconsin game — especially with the way Harris shot the ball that night — would have been interesting.

In this situation, though, there was no right answer.

No matter what Huggins would have chosen, nothing was going to get "fixed" this season.

If he had kept his original group, there was no guarantee Harris and Terry Henderson would have developed as players and no guarantee Juwan Staten would have become one of the top points guards in the country.

Going with youth, at the very least, provides some hope for the future.

Until that future arrives, though, more pain and suffering appear to be on the way.

Pikewood one of world's top 100 courses

SEE THE DOMINION POST and TheDPost.com on Sunday for more on Pikewood National Golf Club.

The Dominion Post

Pikewood National Golf Club has been named one of the world's top 100 courses by Golf Digest.

Pikewood National, a private course located in Morgantown, was one of 40 American courses to make the list.

Greer Industries executives John Raese and Bob Gwynne designed the 7,588-yard, par 72 golf course, which checked in at No.

74 on the magazine's rankings.

Golf Digest's rankings can be found online at golfdigest.com and in the magazine's February publication. It's the first time Golf Digest has generated world rankings.

The magazine wrote on its website that there are an estimated 34,000 golf courses globally and the rankings "span 18 countries."

Pine Valley Golf Course, in Pine Valley, N.J., earned the magazine's top ranking.

WVU defense takes step back

Bob Gay/The Dominion Post

WVU's Devin Williams fouls Texas' Cameron Ridley under the basket during Monday's Big 12 Conference game, at the Coliseum. WVU lost, 80-69.

Players not in right spots against Texas

BY JUSTIN JACKSON
The Dominion Post

There has been an underlying concern that has surrounded each WVU men's basketball game this season.

The Mountaineers have thrived on shooting the basketball, yet want to become a team that survives on defense and rebounding.

"The coaches are constantly on us about guarding the ball, helping each other on defense and rebounding," WVU point guard Juwan Staten said. "They've definitely let us know there were going to be games where we didn't shoot the ball well."

What would happen to the Mountaineers if they found themselves not being able to make any shots?

Texas' 80-69 victory Monday, at the WVU Coliseum was a good indicator.

"This was a major step back," WVU guard Terry Henderson said. "We really need to watch ourselves on film. We need to find out why we weren't in the right spot or why we didn't give enough effort."

WVU (10-7, 2-2 Big 12) did not like its shooting woes against the Longhorns.

The Mountaineers nearly went 30 minutes of game time between their first and second 3-pointers, and WVU was held to 37.7 percent (26-of-69) from the field.

WVU has only shot the ball worse from the field twice this season, in losses to Gonzaga and Virginia Tech.

What hurt WVU players is, they did not respond by trying to make life difficult for Texas.

The Longhorns shot nearly 53 percent (29-of-55) from the field and only were forced to attempt nine shots from 3-point range.

"They pretty much drove the ball wherever they wanted to," Staten said. "They got the shots they wanted."

There was little resistance offered to Texas players driving the lane, and the Longhorns had a career rebounding day.

Leary gives WVU lift off bench

Junior forward kept team in its Big 12 game vs. Texas

BY DREW RUBENSTEIN
The Dominion Post

On Sunday afternoon, WVU women's basketball coach Mike Carey signaled 6-foot-2 Crystal Leary to run beneath the hoop to defend Texas' 6-7 center, Imani McGee-Stafford.

"Tonight, it won't be out of the realm of possibility for Leary to find herself on the perimeter defending one of Iowa State's top-shooting and quick guards."

That's the role WVU's junior forward has been asked to fill, and it's one she's happy to play.

"I take pride in defense," Leary said. "I am quick on my feet, so I can guard a guard, but I am also physical to where I can guard someone bigger or stronger than me. I guess that's why I take defense so seriously."

And Carey is thankful about that. He's not so sure his Mountaineers (14-2, 3-1 Big 12) would enter today's 8 p.m. game, at No. 13 Iowa State (14-1, 3-1), off a win, if not for Leary. The Mountaineers overcame a late eight-point deficit in defeating Texas, 56-49, in overtime Sunday. One of the biggest keys to the game, in Carey's mind, was Leary's first-half defensive performance.

WVU starting center Asya Bussie was whistled for her second foul with 11:43 remaining and sat the bench for the remainder of the half.

The undersized Leary took her place. Carey sensed Texas, which led, 11-8, at the time, thought its time to take control of the game arrived.

"They saw Asya out, and they saw Crystal Leary come in at center and thought they could force the ball in to the 6-7 girl, but they didn't realize Crystal is going to play hard and she's going to fight and play hard," Carey said. "We were able to get a bunch of turnovers and that stuff because they were forcing the ball when Crystal came in."

Although its top scorer and rebounder (Bussie) sat out most of the first half, WVU escaped the half down one, 21-20. That allowed the Mountaineers to hang around long enough to make their second-half run.

Childress not enrolled for the spring semester

Tuesday was the final day to register for class

BY ED OWENS
The Dominion Post

Sophomore quarterback Ford Childress is not enrolled for classes during the spring semester, WVU's registrar's office confirmed to The Dominion Post on Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday was the last day for students to register and add or drop courses for the standard 16-week semester.

This past week, a source told The Dominion Post that Childress, who started two games for WVU before suffering a season-ending injury in September, did not return to WVU at the conclusion of winter break and missed the team's first meeting. The source, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said Childress, a Houston native, was considering his options, which include transferring to a ju-

Trickett shoulder surgery successful, source says

WVU quarterback to be sidelined for 2-3 months

Clint Trickett underwent successful shoulder surgery and WVU's senior quarterback is expected to be sidelined two to three months, a source with knowledge of the situation told The Dominion Post on Tuesday.

According to the source, who spoke on the condition of

It was known going into the procedure that Trickett had suffered a Grade 2 sprain of his AC joint and a torn labrum in his throwing shoulder during his

Maryland files $157M counterclaim vs. ACC

BRIEFS

Associated Press

The University of Maryland filed a $157 million counterclaim against the Atlantic Coast Conference, alleging the league tried to recruit two Big Ten schools after Maryland announced its intention to leave for the Big Ten. The 53-page document was filed late Monday in Raleigh, N.C. "Our lawsuit calls the ACC's 'exit fee' what it really is — an antitrust violation and an illegal activity," Maryland Attorney General Douglas Gansler said in a statement. "Our motion in North Carolina will ensure that a Maryland court will rule on the case." The counterclaim contends that representatives from Wake Forest and Pittsburgh "each contacted a Big Ten university in an attempt by the ACC to recruit at least two Big Ten schools." The document does not name the two schools allegedly targeted by the ACC. Included in the $157 million sought by Maryland is $16 million the school said has been improperly withheld since November 2012, when Maryland announced it was leaving for the Big Ten.

College football

The University of Massachusetts hired Mark Whipple as its football coach. He returns to the school he coached from 1998 through 2003 and led to the Division I-AA national championship in his first season. UMass moved to the top level of college football when it joined the Football Bowl Subdivision in 2012. But the Minutemen went 1-11 in each of their two seasons under Charley Molnar. He was fired Dec. 26. Whipple, 56, did not coach last year.

Robert Shelton resigned as executive director of the Fiesta Bowl, 2 1/2 years after he took the job amid a scandal that rocked the foundation of one of college football's major events. Shelton said his leaving was a mutual decision by him and the bowl's board of directors. Shelton left his post as president of the University of Arizona to take over at the Fiesta Bowl on June 13, 2011. He replaced John Junker, who resigned following a scathing internal report outlining lavish spending and a scheme in which bowl employees were required to make donations to certain political candidates and have the money reimbursed by the bowl.

Track and field

Former 100-meter world record holder Asafa Powell told a Jamaican disciplinary panel on Tuesday that he didn't tell a doping control officer about most of the supplements he was taking because the products were new to him and he couldn't recall their names. Powell, 31, one of Jamaica's outstanding athletes after lowering the world record in the 100 to 9.74 in 2008, made the comments in testimony before a three-member panel of the Jamaica Anti-Doping Commission. Over two days of hearings, at least, Powell and his attorneys will try to explain why he tested positive for the banned stimulant oxilofrone.

Baseball

The Chicago Cubs' newly minted mascot made his debut at a Pediatric Developmental Center of a hospital near Wrigley Field. Clark, a young bear wearing a Cubs jersey and backward blue baseball cap, was accompanied Monday at Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center by a dozen team prospects. The mascot is named after the North Side Chicago street on which Wrigley Field is located. Team officials said they held focus groups before deciding on Clark, and fans told them they wanted a more family-friendly atmosphere at Wrigley Field.

Brian Roberts and the New York Yankees completed their $2 million, one-year contract, a deal that allows the second baseman to earn $4.6 million if he becomes a regular starter. The contract was agreed to on Dec. 17 and finalized Tuesday, three days after a spot on the 40-man roster opened when Alex Rodriguez was suspended for the season for violations of baseball's drug agreement and labor contract.

College basketball

Former University of Kentucky basketball star Richie Farmer was sentenced Tuesday to more than two years in prison for abusing his power as the state's agriculture commissioner. Farmer hired his friends and had them do little to no work, and used state employees to run errands, including having them to build a basketball court at his home, prosecutors said. He was sentenced to 27 months in federal prison and ordered to pay $120,500 in restitution.

Pro basketball

President Barack Obama congratulated the NBA champion Miami Heat for showing the "heart and determination" it takes to sit atop the league. It was a return visit to the White House for the team on Tuesday, in honor of its second straight NBA title. During an East Room ceremony, Obama also praised the team's off-court actions. Before arriving at the White House, the players visited with wounded service members recuperating at an area military hospital. Obama says it's an example of the charitable work the players do year-round.

TOP 25

Associated Press

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Cameron Clark hasn't faced much difficulty in carrying a potent Oklahoma offense this season. After all, he had been averaging better than 18 points per game.

He ran into plenty of trouble against the Big 12's best defense on Tuesday night.

Marcus Foster scored 18 points, Nino Williams made four clinching free throws in the closing seconds and Kansas State held on to beat No. 25 Oklahoma 72-66.

Clark was held to just two points on 1-for-9 shooting, and was stripped of the ball with 24.5 seconds left and the Sooners trailing 67-64, allowing the Wildcats to hold on from the free throw line down the stretch.

Indiana 75

(3) Wisconsin 72

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Kevin "Yogi" Ferrell scored 25 points, leading Indiana to a stunning upset against previously unbeaten Wisconsin.

The third-ranked Badgers (16-1, 3-1 Big Ten) were trying to become the first team ever to win 13 straight games over the Hoosiers (12-5, 2-2).

Wisconsin started the night as one of Division I's four remaining unbeaten teams and it looked like it would stay that way when the Badgers took a 10-point lead with 13:27 to play. But the Hoosiers, playing their best game of the season, answered with 12 straight points to take a 54-52 lead with 9 minutes left.

(22) Pittsburgh 81

Georgia Tech 74

ATLANTA — Talib Zanna scored 22 points, James Robinson added 16 and Pittsburgh pulled away in the second half, remaining perfect in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a win against Georgia Tech.

The Panthers (16-1, 4-0) trailed 35-32 at halftime but quickly seized control after the break for their sixth straight win. Georgia Tech (10-7, 1-3) called a couple of quick timeouts, trying to stem the onslaught, but the Yellow Jackets were overpowered in the lane and couldn't prevent another victory by the conference newcomer.

Women

Memphis 74

(23) Rutgers 73 OT

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Ariel Hearn scored 18 points Tuesday night and Asianna Fuqua-Bey sank two game-winning free throws in overtime as Memphis rallied to upset Rutgers.

Pa'Sonna Hope scored 16 and grabbed 10 rebounds, Breigha Wilder-Cochran scored 12 and Fuqua-Bey finished with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

(11) Oklahoma State 65 TCU 53

STILLWATER, Okla. — Tiffany Bias scored 23 points and Oklahoma State spurred away to a 12-0 lead and then held off a pair of second-half surges to defeat TCU.

Bias hit 6 of 14 shots, including going 5-for-8 from 3-point range, with four assists for the Cowgirls (15-1, 4-1 Big 12), who this week reclaimed the No. 11 spot in the rankings after handing Iowa State its first loss.

MHS girls roll past league-rival John Marshall, 65-37

PREP ROUNDUP

The Dominion Post

LENDALE — Morgantown High girls' basketball coach Jason White warned his players that their game against Ohio Valley Conference rival John Marshall was a big one Tuesday night.

"Our girls responded," White said.

Sammie Parks scored 15 points and Katie Ferrebee added 10, as the Mohigans rolled to a 65-37 road victory.

The Mohigans (8-4) bolted out to a 19-8 first-quarter lead and never looked back.

"We were able to score in transition early and that fueled our defense," White said. "From the beginning, it was fantastic. We held their leading scorer, Torie Derrow, to 10 points."

Bailey Silven and Emily Winters scored 10 points apiece for John Marshall (8-5).

Sydney Holloway added eight points and a team-high six rebounds for MHS, which returns to action at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, hosting Martinsburg.

Preston 40, Grafton 36

GRAFTON — Preston wasn't very good in its game against Grafton — until it counted.

After a lackluster three quarters, the Knights outscored Grafton, 14-7, in the fourth quarter to pull out a four-point road victory against the 10th-ranked team in Class AA.

Preston (7-4) went 4-for-5 from the line down the stretch after missing 10 of its first 15 free throws.

"We made them when it counted," PHS coach Brian Miller said. "It was one of those things where you have to keep grinding on defense until something goes right."

"We did a very good job of not losing patience and getting frustrated. Some wins are pretty, and some wins you have to grind out. This was one we had to grind out."

Emma McClelland led PHS with 14 points. Alexis Schoolcraft scored 10.

Hannah Griffith paced Grafton with 19 points. PHS plays again today, at Northern Garrett, in Accident, Md.

Swimming

University High's boys finished first and the girls took second in a meet at Uniontown, Pa.

UHS's first-place boys' finishers included Heston Smith (100 butterfly, 59.90; 200 individual medley, 2:18.05), Ross Koch (100 freestyle, 53.99; 50 freestyle, 24.03), Chase Bowen (500 freestyle, 6:14.11), Logan Phillips (1-meter diving, 164.40) and Jacob Thomas (200 freestyle, 2:15.68).

UHS's 200 medley relay team placed first, in 2:05.62. The team included Bowen, Phillips, Jonathan Sharp and Braden Careil.

UHS's 400 freestyle relay also finished first, in 3:55.52. That team included Smith, Thomas, Koch and Kyle Seese.

UHS's first-place girls' finishers included Elizabeth Klingensmith (200 freestyle, 2:11.84; 100 butterfly, 1:05.27), Jennifer Chmiel (200 individual medley, 2:30.79), Haleigh Felton (50 freestyle, 28.41), Aspen Phillips (1-meter diving, 110.80), Alexandra Meadows (100 freestyle, 1:02.00) and Rachel Van Nosdein (500 freestyle, 6:21.01).

UHS's 200-yard medley relay team placed first in 2:08.20. The team included Klingensmith, Alexandra Meadows, Sera Meadows and Christina Homer.

The Hawks' 200-yard freestyle relay also won, in 1:57.50. The team included Homer, Van Nosdein, Sera Meadows and Torie Miller.

nior-college program.

WVU head coach Dana Holgorsen declined to comment, and attempts to reach Childress and his family were unsuccessful. Childress is still listed on the Mountaineers' online roster and the university's online student directory.

Childress was one of three quarterbacks to start for the Mountaineers this season. He took over the starting job in the third game, against Georgia State, and threw for 359 yards, three touchdowns and one interception in his debut. The following week, against Maryland, Childress suffered a torn pectoral muscle and missed WVU's final eight games.

Seniors Clint Trickett and Paul Millard split time under center the rest of the way, with Trickett starting seven games.

All three quarterbacks were expected to compete for the starting job when WVU opens spring practice, along with junior college transfer Skyler Howard, who passed for 3,153 yards and 33 touchdowns at Riverside (Calif.) City College in 2013.

Four-star recruit William Crest, out of Dunbar High School, in Baltimore, is expected to sign with WVU in February.

Muldrow enrolls

Director of Football Communications Mike Montoro confirmed that junior college transfer Edward Muldrow has enrolled at WVU.

Muldrow, a linebacker from Copiah-Lincoln Community College, in Mississippi, signed with the Mountaineers in December, along with Howard, offensive lineman Sylvester Townes and cornerback Keishawn Richardson.

Townes, Richardson and Howard enrolled last week. Muldrow signed with South Carolina out of high school and spent his redshirt freshman season with the Gamecocks. He recorded 56 tackles, 4.5 sacks, 7.5 tackles for loss, an interception and a forced fumble for Copiah-Lincoln this past season.

Tonight, WVU faces a much different test in the Big 12's top 3-point shooting team. The Cyclones are connecting on 37.6 percent of their 3s and have hit 149 shots behind the arc (44 more than the second-best team, Oklahoma, in the Big 12) this season. The Mountaineers, though, have no reservations about asking Leary to switch every

BLACKSVILLE — Cannon Brummage ripped down the defensive rebound and fired a quick outlet pass, and the Clay-Battelle boys' basketball team raced down the court, trailing Cameron, 46-44, with 21.1 seconds remaining.

C-B head coach Josh Kisner could've stopped the action, called a timeout and set up a play.

But Kisner, who has the luxury of a veteran squad, knew better Tuesday night at the Statler Wilson Gymnasium.

"Two years ago, when we played Notre Dame here, I made a mistake," Kisner recalled with a laugh. "We came down and I called timeout to set something up, and we hit the game-winning shot, but I had already called timeout. So they always tease me. With this group of boys, they focus pretty well. I didn't feel like I needed to stop them."

This time, the Cee-Bees (5-4) patiently worked the ball around the perimeter for about eight seconds, until it was back in the hands of senior point guard Tristan Haught at the top of the key.

Haught sliced to the basket, was hacked on his laptop, and was sent to the line for two must-have freebies with 10 seconds to play.

Haught drained the first shot and had to suffer through a Cameron timeout before the C-B faithful erupted in cheers.

"At that point, it made my blood pressure shoot up a little bit, but I still felt good about it," Haught said. "I told coach, 'I got this, let's just get back and set up defense.'"

The second shot was nothing but net, tying the game at 46-46.

The Dragons (5-4) had one more chance to win it, but never got a shot off. The C-B defensive pressure was stifling. Haught dove for a loose ball and was tied up on the floor when the buzzer sounded to force overtime.

Haught went on to drain 7 of 10 foul shots in the fourth quarter and overtime, to lead the Cee-Bees to a 53-48 Mason Dixon Conference come-from-behind victory.

"He was clutch in the end," Kisner said.

The Cee-Bees leapt to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, but saw it evaporate in the second quarter when Cameron guard Zach Hall got hot. He poured in 15 of his game-high 19 points to lead Cameron on a 24-12 run and the Dragons held a 26-25 lead at halftime.

"I think we just got relaxed a little bit," Kisner said. "Cameron didn't score their first bucket till under a minute left in the first quarter, we did a nice job defensively the first quarter, but the second quarter shots weren't falling and nothing was working for us."

After a back-and-forth third quarter, C-B switched to a man-to-man defense, picked up the intensity and got a boost from senior forward Zach Chisler.

He netted nine of his team-leading 15 points in the fourth quarter, to lead C-B back from a 36-31 deficit.

"He is always a threat underneath and he is one of the leaders of this team," Kisner said. "Other boys kind of feed off him a little bit and feed off of Tristan. When those two get on the same page, anything can happen."

Chisler also grabbed nine rebounds and made four blocks. Haught finished with 12 points and three steals, while Brummage tallied 13 points and 10 rebounds. Jarret Hockenberry added four points and eight rebounds.

Chisler drove for a layup, Cameron turned the ball over on its next possession, and Chisler converted a three-point play on an assist from Haught.

Cameron's Ryan Clutter made one free-throw to set up C-B's tying possession.

The comeback gave C-B plenty of momentum heading into overtime. Haught was fouled while driving for a layup on the first possession. He made one free-throw, and the Cee-Bees held control from there.

SURGERY

first start of the season against Oklahoma State, on Sept. 28. The rotator cuff damage was not discovered until Andrews began the operation but, the source said, the broader scope of the surgery is not expected to affect Trickett's recovery time.

WVU Director of Football Communications Mike Montoro said the university had no updates on Trickett's status Tuesday. Messages left for Trickett were not returned.

Despite his injuries

Trickett still started a team-high seven games for WVU and saved his best performance for last, throwing for 356 yards and two touchdowns in the Mountaineers' season-ending loss, against Iowa State.

Trickett led the team in passing yards (1,605) and touchdowns (seven) this season and was expected to compete for the starting job again this spring.

"It's not that we end up doing too much more with the quarterbacks during the offseason than we do [during the regular season]: It's just repetition of plays," WVU offensive coordinator Shannon Dawson said following the Mountaineers' loss to Iowa State, in late November. "That experience is key. You just have to keep repping plays and keep competing. I think the biggest thing is building chemistry with the people around you."

That chemistry could take a hit as Trickett recovers, though.

It's unlikely that Trickett will be cleared by the time WVU begins spring practice, on March 2 and even the quickest timetable for Trickett's recovery would have him returning mid-March, roughly two weeks into drills. If he requires a full three months of rehabilitation, Trickett would be in jeopardy of missing all of spring practice.

According to Montoro, the Gold-Blue spring game will be played April 12.

Trickett's recovery and redshirt sophomore Ford Childress' departure from the Mountaineers' program leave WVU with two healthy quarterbacks: senior Paul Millard and junior-college transfer Skyler Howard, who signed with the team in December.

Millard appeared in seven games this season, making three starts, and finished the year with 1,122 passing yards, six touchdowns and six interceptions.

Howard passed for 3,153 yards and 33 touchdowns at Riverside (Calif.) City College last year and has three years of eligibility remaining. Four-star recruit William Crest, from Dunbar (Baltimore) High School, is expected to sign with WVU in February.

screen and defend a guard for long stretches this time around.

Leary, who averages 4.7 points and 5.1 rebounds per game coming off the bench, enjoys that challenge.

"I feel like my role is for defense," Leary said. "I am not really an offensive scorer, so when I get on the court, I try to stop my man from scoring and play the best defense I can for the team."

Teammates rave about

Leary's unusual ability to play a lot of positions. Senior guard Christal Caldwell said Leary is simply quicker than most opposing players she faces.

"She can get to the ball easier. It takes the other player out of their comfort zone," Caldwell said. "She's a great defender, and she works so hard, and we need that from her."

The Cyclones dropped their first game of the season this weekend, to No. 15

Oklahoma State. ISU hit just 3-of-17 from 3-point range in the 69-62 defeat. To pull off the upset tonight, WVU, which won at No. 24 Iowa State, 68-66, last season, knows it must disrupt the Cyclones' shooters in similar fashion.

ISU is led by forward Hallie Christofferson, who is second in the Big 12 averaging 21 points per game, and Jadda Buckley, who is tops in the Big 12 in 3-point shooting percentage (56.8).

"We have to stop their point guard from penetrating because she likes to penetrate so that the other defender on the wing will help, and she can kick it out to teammates to shoot a lot of 3s," Caldwell said. "And they hit them, too, so we have to keep [the point guard] out of the paint."

Judge: $765M might not cover NFL concussion claims

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — A federal judge is slowing down the proposed $765 million settlement of NFL concussion claims, questioning if there's enough money to cover 20,000 retired players. U.S. District Judge Anita B. Brody denied preliminary approval of the plan Tuesday because she's worried the money could run out sooner than expected. She also raised concerns that anyone who gets concussion damages from the NFL would be barred from suing the NCAA or other amateur football leagues.

"I am primarily concerned that not all retired NFL football players who ultimately receive a qualifying diagnosis or their [families] ... will be paid," Brody wrote in a 12-page opinion issued Tuesday. The proposed settlement, negotiated over several months, is designed to last at least 65 years. The awards would vary based on an ex-player's age and diagnosis. A younger retiree with Lou Gehrig's disease would get $5 million, those with serious dementia cases would get $3 million and an 80-year-old with early dementia would get $25,000. Retirees without symptoms would get baseline screening, and follow-up care if needed. "Even if only 10 percent of retired NFL football players eventually receive a qualifying diagnosis, it is difficult to see how the Monetary Award Fund would have the funds available over its lifespan to pay all claimants at these significant award levels," Brody wrote. She asked for more raw financial data before scheduling a fairness hearing this year, when objectors can question or opt out of the plan. Some critics believe the NFL, with more than $9 billion in annual revenues, was getting away lightly. But the players' lawyers said they will face huge challenges just to get the case to trial. They would have to prove the injuries were linked to the players' NFL service and should not be handled through league arbitration. Sol Weiss, a lead lawyer for the ex-players, remained confident the class-action settlement will ultimately be approved. "I am very confident that the (actuarial) people we used are right, and that there will be enough money to cover these claims for 65 years," Weiss said. Greg Aiello, an NFL spokesman, said the league was "confident that the settlement is fair and adequate, and look forward to demonstrating that to the court." More than 4,500 former players have filed suit, some accusing the league of fraud for its handling of concussions. They include former Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett and Super Bowl-winning quarterback Jim McMahon, who suffers from dementia.

Brody's hand-picked mediator, former federal judge Layn R. Phillips, led several months of negotiations last year and has called the deal fair to both sides. The settlement would include $675 million for compensatory claims for players with neurological symptoms; $75 million for baseline testing for asymptomatic men; and $10 million for medical research and education. The NFL also would pay an additional $112 million to the players' lawyers for their fees and expenses, for a total payout of nearly $900 million.

Detroit hires Caldwell

He once led Colts to the Super Bowl

Associated Press

ALLEN PARK, Mich. — The Detroit Lions wanted to replace Jim Schwartz with someone with experience as a head coach. The Lions landed one, though he appears to be Plan B. The team said Tuesday that Jim Caldwell has been hired as the new coach and will be introduced at a news conference today. San Diego Chargers assistant and former Arizona Cardinals coach Ken Whisenhunt was seemingly Detroit's top choice, but he chose to take the head coaching job at Tennessee on Monday night. The Lions are giving Caldwell another chance to be an NFL head coach. He helped the Indianapolis Colts reach the Super Bowl after his debut season, in 2009, but was fired two years later, after a 2-14 season while Peyton Manning was injured, dropping his three-year mark to 26-22. "We believe Jim is the right man to lead our team and deliver a championship to our fans," Lions owner William Clay Ford said in a statement. Caldwell was hired by Baltimore two years ago to be the quarterbacks coach and was promoted to offensive coordinator late in the 2012 season. The Ravens went on to win the most recent Super Bowl. "I'm excited because he has worked with some good coaches and he did a good job with the Colts," Lions offensive guard Rob Sims said in a telephone interview. "Players seem to like him, so I'm looking forward to being a part of the next chapter of Detroit Lions football with him leading us." The Ravens, though, struggled on offense in 2013 and might've replaced Caldwell if he didn't get another job. Baltimore ranked 29th on offense overall — 30th rushing and 18th passing — last season with Super Bowl-winning quarterback

Joe Flacco and running back Ray Rice. Caldwell's body of work was enough to also make him a candidate to lead the Washington Redskins and Titans. Former Tennessee coach Mike Munchak and ex-Houston Texans coach Gary Kubiak were also considered by the Lions. Caldwell won his first 14 games with the Colts in 2009 before losing the final two games of the regular season while resting Manning and most of the other starters. The Colts lost to the New Orleans Saints in the Super Bowl. Indy was 10-6 the following season and won another AFC South title, then lost to the New York Jets in a wild-card game. With Manning out for all of Caldwell's third season, the Colts lost 14 games and Caldwell lost his job. In Baltimore, Caldwell replaced offensive coordinator Cam Cameron toward the end of the 2012 regular season. He seemed to give the offense a boost as it went on to win the Super Bowl, against San Francisco.

Fired-up Harbaugh sparks team

49ers coach insists behavior is 'irrelevant'

Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Jim Harbaugh pirouetted in frustration following a personal foul on Dan Skuta. He got hit with his own unsportsmanlike conduct penalty for arguing following a catch by Vernon Davis that went to review before being ruled a touchdown. And that was just Sunday. Harbaugh has been at his emotional best — or, to some, worst — with his cartoon-like faces and quirky sideline antics in leading San Francisco back to the NFC championship game for the third time in as many years since taking over as 49ers head coach, in January 2011. On Davis' TD during Sunday's 23-10 win, at Carolina, Harbaugh ran well onto the field during the play.

Harbaugh should be as charged up as ever come Sunday, when he faces off once more against the rival Seattle Seahawks, in an NFC championship game featuring that familiar coaching sideshow with Pete Carroll. This time, there's a Super Bowl berth on the line. But if you ask Harbaugh, "What's your deal?" is so five years ago. Enough already, he insists, keep it about the players. "That might have been something four or five years ago," Harbaugh said. "But, I haven't seen it as of late. And, it would be as irrelevant now as it would have been then when people made a bigger deal out of it. So, irrelevant, irrelevant." Sorry, not this week. There's no avoiding such chatter: Harbaugh has to expect that infamous phrase to come up often. In 2009, Harbaugh and No. 25 Stanford ran up the score on 11th-ranked USC in a surprising 55-21 rout — prompting Carroll's infamous "What's your deal?" when they met afterward at midfield.

Patriots' secondary braces for Manning, Broncos

New England expects QB to come out firing

Associated Press

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — The Denver Broncos tried to beat the New England Patriots less than two months ago by running the ball. It didn't work. With a Super Bowl berth at stake in Sunday's rematch, Peyton Manning figures to have a better day. "We'll have to be on top of our game," Patriots safety Steve Gregory said. Their pass defense has been pretty close to that lately. The Patriots intercepted Andrew Luck four times Saturday night in their 43-22 divisional-round win against the Indianapolis Colts. And in their next to last regular-season game, they picked off Super Bowl MVP Joe Flacco three times

Denver quarterback Peyton Manning passes under pressure from San Diego's Melvin Ingram (54) in Sunday's playoff game. in a 41-7 rout at Baltimore. They're traveling again this week, to Denver for the AFC championship game, with a deep, experienced secondary. And though Flacco and Luck are impressive quarterbacks, Manning appears to be on a different level — regardless of how he did last time out versus New England. "What you are always trying to strive for is consistency," Patriots defensive coordinator Matt Patricia said Tuesday, "certainly in a position like the defensive backs where there is a lot of communication."

In their first meeting with the Broncos, the Patriots won, 34-31 in overtime, after trailing, 24-0, at halftime. Manning had season lows of 19 completions, 150 yards passing, a 52.8 completion percentage and a 70.2 passer rating. With the wind whipping, and the running game rolling behind Knowshon Moreno's 224 yards, Manning threw 36 passes, five below his average. His longest completion gained 17 yards, although tight end Julius Thomas sat out with a knee injury. New England struggled against the long ball early last season. That changed after it acquired cornerback Aqib Talib in a trade with Tampa Bay, after the eighth game. He sat out the next game to complete a four-game suspension for violating the NFL's policy on performance-enhancing substances. He said it was Adderall. In his first game with the Patriots, he returned an interception for a touchdown against Luck. Talib's arrival solidified the move of Devin McCourty from cornerback to safety, made after the sixth game. With Gregory at safety and Alfonzo Denard at cornerback, the Patriots had the starting secondary they continued using this season. "It's been a huge plus for us that we've been able to essentially keep those same players back there," coach Bill Belichick said. "Then (there's) some degree of flexibility because both Steve Gregory and Devin have both played corner." Injuries on defense sidelined tackles Vince Wilfork and Tommy Kelly and linebacker Jerod Mayo for most of the season and linebacker Brandon Spikes for the postseason.

DEFENSE

"The biggest thing was their second-chance points," WVU guard Eron Harris said. "At the end of the day, people have bad shooting days. We've got to be able to rebound our misses and we didn't. We didn't rebound our misses or there misses, so they won." Texas' 49-30 rebounding edge was the largest deficit on the boards by WVU this season. "You can always guard the ball," Staten said. "You can always give great effort on the glass and that's something we didn't do." WVU coach Bob Huggins said Texas' front court of Cameron Ridley (6-foot-9, 285 pounds), Connor Lammert (6-9, 235) and Prince Ibeh (6-10, 250) was too much for his smaller players to handle.

"I got Nate Adrian, who is about 210, 215 pounds," Huggins said. "Remi (Dibo) is 210. Brandon (Watkins) is a stick. If I don't have Devin (Williams) to put on a big body, I don't have anyone. Devin is the only big body we have. We got out-manned." Some WVU players did not want to use Texas' size advantage as an excuse. "It's a matter of taking pride in not letting your man getting the rebound," Henderson said. "Once we get there, we'll be fine." The Mountaineers did show a 1-3-1 zone in the second half that helped to cut into a 21-point deficit. The Mountaineers finished the game on a 14-5 run. "We're making progress," Huggins said. "They didn't quit. We turned them over 18 times. That, in itself, is a start. They're going to keep playing."

REAL FLAVOR

All-season Indonesian gado-gado

AMONG THE TREASURES we brought home with us from our years in Indonesia was the all-season dish called gado-gado. Timor, the island where we lived, was somewhat barren, hardly a tropical paradise, yet a stroll through the marketplace at any time was sure to yield enough vegetables for that gastronomic still-life.

These days, gardening in West Virginia, we find that at almost any season of the year, a treasure-hunt through the garden yields a collage of vegetables to serve with a spicy peanut sauce.

I think late-summer gado-gado is my favorite, since vine-ripe tomatoes and crunchy cucumbers complement the peanut sauce so well. But practically any season has its delights. Bean sprouts are the true all-season vegetable, and the fall garden yields Chinese cabbage, daikon, and many kinds of greens. In the winter, stored carrots, potatoes and cabbage make a dish that is perfectly authentic.

In spring, assemble the best of the early: Spinach, snow peas, new potatoes and radishes. In summer, the dish comes into its tropical splendor with green beans and maybe cauliflower and vine-ripened tomatoes.

It looks like a big production, but actually it's quite simple and versatile. The sauce can be made ahead, to wait patiently at room temperature. Indonesians serve the dish at room temperature, simplifying last minute preparation. Furthermore, with eggs, peanuts — and tofu if you like — the dish is satisfyingly high in protein. It's easy to prepare in large quantities for a spectacular party, or to put together a small platter in a hurry for a simple supper.

I have a memory of traveling with an Indonesian garden club to a mountain village, where at such an elevation watercress was available. I looked forward to the gado-gado they were making, but was surprised to find the watercress boiled. Given the parasite level of the watery beds, I suppose boiling was a good idea.

Here is the basic recipe, which you can add to or subtract from.

INDONESIAN GADO-GADO

- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 1/2 cups of chunky peanut butter
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- Juice of half a lemon
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 cups hot water or vegetable stock
- 1 teaspoon grated ginger
- Hot pepper flakes, to taste

To prepare the sauce:
In a heavy medium saucepan, sauté finely chopped onion and garlic and two tablespoons oil. When they begin to brown, add and sauté briefly hot pepper flakes to your liking and two bay leaves. Then stir in peanut butter, brown sugar, lemon juice, stock/water and ginger.

Throw the lemon rind into the pot with the sauce, simmer for a few minutes, and salt the mixture to taste. Allow the sauce to sit and develop flavor. At serving time, take out the lemon rind and bay leaves, stir and thin if necessary.

To prepare and arrange the vegetables:

This is the artsy part. Select and prepare vegetables with an eye to color: Harder vegetables such as carrots and potatoes should be cut to desired size and shape and steamed. A nice combination could be this one: Shredded cabbage, cut green beans, carrots, cauliflower pieces, cucumbers, tomatoes, sprouts, and greens of any kind. Garnish with hard-boiled eggs, crisp-fried julienne potatoes, or crisp-fried onion rings. Serve rice on the side. Pass the bowl of peanut sauce to ladle over each serving. And now you have a truly authentic, healthy, gorgeous Indonesian meal.

Meet the new panel

The Dominion Post

A new year, 12 new takes on food. That's right, readers: It's time to meet the 2014 Food Panel. Here you'll get an introduction to each new member, including how he or she feels about food and cooking, and the role it plays in our lives. So, without further delay, here are the faces you'll be seeing above columns, and the folks whose opinions and recipes you'll be reading throughout the year.

Meredith Gompertz

Gompertz said she enjoys "anything to do with food and cooking or baking" and that she'll try just about anything once. Her adventurous spirit has also led her children to try such dishes as escargot and sushi "long before they knew what they were eating."

Andrew Meek

Meek said he loves trying new foods, new restaurants and new kitchen gadgets. He also likes to get experimental in the kitchen, developing his own "delicious, yet somewhat healthy" recipes.

Tim Neal

An "avid eater and lover of all things food," Neal is also an avid reader of The Dominion Post Food & Fodder section, where he said he has found many now-favorite recipes through the years. His travels across the country have also contributed to his becoming a self-proclaimed expert in regional hot dog trends.

Mary Angel Blount

Blount doesn't fancy herself a foodie. Instead, she said, she's an "eatie" — a person who may not be the biggest whiz in the kitchen, but who appreciates a good meal, whether it's in a hoity-toity restaurant or a comfort food dish cooked at home.

Chris Lee

A husband and father who cooks for his family most nights and does most of the grocery shopping, Lee is also a hunter and fisherman who enjoys using "nature's bounty, in ways that are both exciting and delicious." The spoils of his hunts serve as the perfect complement to the fruits of his wife's labor in the garden.

Elizabeth Cohen

Cohen said her family often teases her about her extra-sensitive sense of smell, but she believes it has helped her develop "a very particular and exacting palate." She also is committed to eating as much locally sourced food as possible.

Connie Graham

Graham said she remembers fondly "growing up in an era and with family that actually cooked every meal, from scratch no less." She often tells her children that when she was growing up, "eating out meant a loaf of bread and a pack of bologna either in the car at a pull-off spot or picnic-style by the river while we fished."

Linda Yoder

Yoder grows fruit, vegetables and herbs at her country home. She considers herself "an experimenter, a sharer and a lover of good food." She also loves to talk about food, which she believes might get a bit old after a while around less food-obsessed family and friends.

Amy Schiller

Schiller has a degree from University of Delaware in nutritional sciences, and is working on a master's in forensic science at WVU, though she has "yet to find a way to combine the two into a career." She said she loves to bake, partly because of the chemistry involved.

Cody Sheppard

Sheppard is a local chef and West Virginia native. He said he is passionate about food — and passionate about sharing that passion. He particularly enjoys taking traditional dishes, such as classic Thanksgiving sides, and elevating them to the next level.

Jean-Manuel Guillot

Guillot is the chef and innkeeper at Preston County Inn and has worked in the food service industry for many years. He believes this experience, as well as his status as a Preston County resident, will be beneficial to the panel, and to our readers.

Ellen Minter

Minter may not be a food connoisseur, but she said she believes that's exactly what makes her an ideal panelist. "I would be identified with the average person who reads the newspaper and contributes to the Morgantown food-area experience," she said. As a teacher, she is also versed in kids' food likes and dislikes.

Rethinking a fatty dip to have a healthier side

BY SARA MOULTON
Associated Press

Is there a chip dip in the world that isn't wonderful? No matter what the flavor, at heart most are tubs of sour cream or melted cheese. Few foods are more satisfying.

Of course, most dips also are notoriously heavy with fat and calories. Indeed, that's why we love them. Still, I figured there must be ways to lighten them up while retaining their luxurious texture.

MEATLESS ON THE MENU

I started by bulking up on the vegetables — in this case, artichokes and spinach. Artichokes happen to contain

Short Tip

Mushroom cap trick

campbellskitchen.com

Roast mushroom caps before stuffing to prevent them from turning soggy. Sprinkle the cavities with salt and roast, cavity side up, at 400 degrees, for 10 minutes. Turn the caps over and roast another 5 minutes before stuffing.

RECIPE BOX

SQUASH GALETTE

Prep: 20 minutes. Cook: 30 to 35 minutes. Makes: 4 servings.

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 onion, sliced in thick half-moons
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- About 1 package (10 or 12 ounces) cooked frozen butternut squash puree
- 1 refrigerated pie crust for a 9-inch pie (or equivalent homemade crust)
- 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
- 5 fresh sage leaves, chopped, or 1 teaspoon dried rubbed sage
- Freshly ground pepper

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Heat the olive oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat; add the onion and season with a little salt. Cook, stirring occasionally, until softened, 10 minutes. Meanwhile, thaw the squash in the microwave according to package directions. Mix the squash and cooked onions together right in the skillet. Season with 1/4 teaspoon salt or more to taste.

Place the crust on a parchment-lined baking sheet; spread with the squash mixture, leaving a border about 1 1/2 inches wide. Sprinkle with the blue cheese and sage. Season with plenty of pepper. Fold the border of the crust over the edge of the filling. It will cover about 1 inch of the filling, leaving the middle exposed.

Bake until the crust is golden brown, 30-35 minutes. Serve warm, sliced into wedges like a pie and accompanied by a green salad.

DIP

many nutrients and a ton of fiber. I chose canned artichokes rather than frozen because the canned are packed in citric acid, which gives them a lemony kick. But if you prefer frozen, you'll need 2 cups thawed.

But why frozen spinach instead of fresh? Because you'd need to cook down a bathtub full of fresh spinach — or pretty darn near it — to end up with the equivalent of a cupful of frozen spinach. No one wants to do all that work before even starting to mix the dip. Also, a cup of frozen spinach boasts more than four times the nutrients of a cup of fresh spinach. It's kind of hard to beat. And all I had to do was defrost it and squeeze it out. Easy.

Now, how to conjure up that rich, cheesy texture without employing a boatload of cheese? I started with Neufchatel, a French cream cheese that has one-third less fat than the full-fat version, but more flavor than the no-fat version. Then I added some low-fat sour cream for tang and a tiny bit of low-fat mayonnaise for the oil. You're welcome to substitute extra-virgin olive oil if you'd like.

Finally, there's some Parmigiano-Reggiano, which bristles with so much flavor and salt that just a little bit of it — an ounce in this case — will do the trick. The full-fat version of this dip usually includes mozzarella, but I didn't miss it, so I didn't use it.

All these veggies and cheese cried out for some heat. I ended up using red pepper flakes and Peppadews. Peppadews are pickled red peppers from South Africa, hot and sweet and about the size of cherry tomatoes. If you don't find them in the market, you can swap in pickled cherry peppers or even roasted red peppers. As an added bonus, any of these red peppers will brighten up the dip's complexion.

The finishing touches? Caramelized onions and garlic. Please take the time to cook the onions slowly, which brings out their natural sugar. It adds a nice depth of flavor to the mix.

Serve this dip with a healthy cracker (just read the label) or make your own pita crisps. To do so, just separate some two-layered pita bread pockets into single layers, spray them lightly with oil, cut them into triangles, and bake them at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes, or until crisp. Then go ahead and indulge yourself.

HOT AND SPICY ARTICHOKE SPINACH DIP

Start to finish: 55 minutes (35 active). Makes about 4 cups.

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 1/2 cups finely chopped yellow onion
- 1 tablespoon minced garlic
- 13.75-ounce can artichoke hearts, drained
- 10-ounce box frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
- 4 ounces Neufchatel (low-fat cream cheese)
- 1/2 cup low-fat sour cream
- 2 tablespoons low-fat mayonnaise
- 1 ounce freshly grated Parmigiano-Reggiano (about 3/4 cup grated using a wand-style grater)
- 1/2 cup medium chopped mild Peppadew peppers (about 2 ounces), or medium chopped roasted red peppers
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon red pepper flakes, or to taste
- Kosher salt
- Crackers or low-fat pita crisps, to serve

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Coat an 8-inch square baking pan with cooking spray.

In a medium skillet over medium-low, heat the oil. Add the onion and saute, covered, stirring occasionally, for 8 minutes. Uncover the pan and continue cooking, stirring occasionally, until the onions are golden brown, about another 5 minutes. Add the garlic and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Remove the pan from the heat and set aside.

In a food processor, pulse the artichokes until they are medium chopped, then transfer them to the skillet.

In the food processor combine the spinach, cream cheese, sour cream, mayonnaise and half of the Parmigiano-Reggiano, then process until mixed. Add the mixture to the skillet, along with the peppers and pepper flakes. Stir well, then season with salt.

Transfer the mixture to the prepared pan, sprinkle the remaining cheese over the top and bake on the oven's middle shelf for 15 to 20 minutes, or until it is bubbling at the edges. Serve immediately with crackers or low fat pita crisps.

Cured salmon makes good party dish

BY SUSAN SELASKY

Detroit Free Press (MCT)

Ultra-thin slices of salmon are a mainstay on many party tables.

You'll see those slices dressed up with shaved red onion, salty capers and even some cream cheese.

Most of us refer to all that brilliant orange salmon as smoked salmon. And that would be wrong.

Take gravlax, for example. A delicious delicacy, it looks much like smoked salmon and lox, but it's a cured fish, not smoked.

And, absurdly easy to make, this Swedish specialty is simply raw salmon cured in a salt-sugar-dill mixture, according to the "Food Lover's Companion" by Sharon Tyler Herbst (Barron's $14.95).

While the thought of sprinkling raw fish with some seasonings, refrigerating it and calling it good to eat in a few days might make you squeamish, keep an open mind. It's that age-old curing practice that makes this recipe quite tasty. History has it that fishermen used to salt salmon and cure it by burying it in the sand above the high-tide level. In fact, the word "gravlax" means buried salmon.

All that's required for gravlax is salt, sugar, lots of fresh dill and perhaps a splash or two of Aquavit (caraway-flavored vodka) or Cognac. And don't worry about using too much dill because you can't overdo it with this.

Here's the absurdly easy part. The salmon is cured through the process of osmosis. You start out seasoning the salmon, laying it on a thick bed of dill and drizzling it with the cognac. Wrap it in plastic wrap, place it in a glass baking dish, weigh it down and refrigerate for 24-48 hours. Weighing it down forces the seasonings into the fish and the moisture out, thus creating a super-concentrated brine.

After a few days, you end up with this deep orange, silky and tender cured salmon. Give it a rinse of all the dill, slice it thin on an angle (make sure your knife is sharp) and arrange it on a platter. Serve it with some capers or a traditional mustard sauce.

GRAVLAX WITH CAPERS AND CHOPPED RED ONION

Serves: 10. Preparation time: 10 minutes (plus curing time). Total time: 30 minutes (plus curing time).

- GRAVLAX
- 3 tablespoons white or brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons sea salt
- 1 tablespoon cracked coriander seed, optional
- 2 teaspoons freshly ground peppercorn medley (mix of black, white and pink peppercorns)
- 1 1/4 pounds good-quality, center-cut salmon fillet, pin bones removed
- 1 1/2 cups chopped dill
- 1/4 cup cognac FOR SERVING
- Chopped capers
- Thinly sliced red onion
- Dill sprigs
- Rye crisps or crostini
- Spreadable cream cheese
- Mustard sauce (see note)

For the gravlax: In a small bowl combine sugar, salt, coriander seed, black and pink peppercorns. Rinse salmon and pat it dry.

Line a glass baking dish large enough to hold salmon with plastic wrap. Place a good bed of dill on the plastic wrap. Sprinkle the flesh-side of salmon with half of the sugar mixture and then rub it all over with the cognac. Place flesh down on top of dill. Sprinkle skin-side of salmon with remaining sugar mixture and top with remaining dill. Wrap up in the plastic wrap — tightly.

Place a heavyweight can on top or whatever you have. (I placed a glass loaf pan with a bottled water inside on top.) Refrigerate for 24 hours. Turn salmon over, baste with any juices and continue to cure in refrigerator for another 12 hours or longer.

To serve, unwrap salmon and discard liquid. Quickly rinse off the dill and season or wipe it off with a paper towel. Using a sharp knife, thinly slice on an angle. Garnish with capers, red onion and dill. Serve with cream cheese or mustard sauce if desired.

Cook's note: To make the mustard sauce, in a small bowl combine 1/4 cup Dijon mustard, 1 teaspoon ground dry mustard, 3 tablespoons sugar (or to taste), 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar and red hot pepper sauce to taste. Whisk in 1/3 cup olive oil and 2 tablespoons heavy whipping cream. Stir in 2-3 tablespoons chopped fresh dill if desired.

Pizza Hut to offer 'by the slice' amid competition

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pizza Hut plans to start offering pizza by the slice for the first time in two locations this week, part of a test to refashion its image and court diners in their 20s and 30s.

The chain says the two locations — one in York, Neb. and Pawtucket, R.I. — will open soon.

A slice will cost between $2 and $3 and take three to four minutes to heat up. They'll be made with new recipes more in line with the thinner pies sold in the Northeast.

The tests reflect how established restaurant chains are scrambling to keep pace with a rapidly changing industry. Diners are increasingly flocking to places such as Chipotle, where they feel they can get restaurant-quality food for just a little more than they would pay at fast-food chains such as Burger King.

In fact, Chipotle recently announced plans to move into the pizza business with Pizzeria Locale. Customers walk up to a counter and can watch as their pizza is built; the pie is then placed in an oven that cooks it in about 2 minutes. Other pizza chains feature similar fast-cooking, make-your-own concepts, including Blaze Pizza, based in Pasadena, Calif., and Pizza

Pizza Hut announced Monday it plans to start offering pizza by the slice for the first time in two test locations this week, as the chain looks to keep pace with trendy competitors offering quick, made-to-order pies.

Studio, based in Los Angeles.

For its part, Pizza Hut has been focusing on developing its smaller format carry-out stores rather than its dine-in restaurants in recent years as its sales have been choppy. In each of the first three quarters of 2013, sales fell slightly at locations open at least a year.

"We're seeing the trends for quick and ready products," noted Carrie Walsh, Pizza Hut's chief marketing officer.

Rival Domino's has also been selling pizza by the slice at some of its newly designed stores, according to a spokesman. Pizza Hut's parent company, Yum Brands Inc., is also testing a more upmarket concept with its KFC chain called "KFC eleven." And McDonald's, the world's biggest hamburger chain, is testing a "build-your-own burger" concept in Laguna Niguel, Calif.

Some chains aren't currently built to deliver the type of dining experience being popularized by the likes of Chipotle. Pizza Hut's traditional ovens, for instance, take about 7 to 10 minutes to cook pies, according to Al Litchenburg, the chain's chief development officer. By comparison, the upstart pizza chains such as Blaze Pizza promise cooking times of just two to three minutes.

Litchenburg says the Pizza Hut test locations will be equipped with new ovens to heat up the slices, but they'll also have the traditional ovens to cook other pies.

Some New Jersey options for those Super Bowl foodies

GO FOR THE FOOD

BY DAVID PORTER
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Buffalo wings and chicken fingers, take a breather. Crab dip and curly fries, sit this one out. For Super Bowl foodies, New Jersey offers a mash-up of delicacies representing just about every culture on the planet.

Those fortunate enough to have tickets to the game at MetLife Stadium will be able to gorge on American, Mexican, Asian and Italian specialties, done with a local flair, in the "Home Food Advantage" food court. Club seat ticketholders will get an even more varied menu including sushi, sliced beef tenderloin and garlic shrimp with peppercorn demi-glace, blue crab cake with pickled baby bok choy and lemon aioli, to name a few of a host of offerings.

The food court dishes have local roots, such as Nonna Fusco's homemade meatballs, inspired by stadium chef Eric Borgia's grandmother (based on some diligent first-person research, they are the real deal).

For everyone else, a 20-minute drive in any direction from the stadium will land you in the middle of any of a number of ethnic enclaves brimming with culinary treats. And you won't even have to pay a bridge or tunnel toll.

Borgia, who worked as executive chef for baseball's San Diego Padres before coming to work for Delaware North Companies when the stadium opened in 2010, wanted to create a local-themed food court that brought to mind a New York/New Jersey street fair, minus the funnel cakes and $1.99 three-packs of tube socks. Ideas came during several days of food touring around the area, Borgia said.

"We drove around to food trucks and little holes-in-the-wall where people eat lunch," he said. "We wanted to do street food, but we wanted to make sure it was authentic."

On the ground floor of the stadium, it is a street you'll wish you lived on. It's comfort food gone rogue, starting with a stand where you can score a linebaker-sized grilled cheese sandwich featuring two varieties of New York State cheddar pinned between thick slices of Texas toast. Add a slab of bacon on a stick dipped in jalapeno-infused maple syrup and make sure your cardiologist is on speed dial. Next door, Lucky's serves Asian dishes, including noodle soup and pork-and-chicken steamed buns with pickled slaw and Sriracha aioli.

For meat lovers, there's Liberty Sausage and its "kitchen sink" sandwich, combining grilled chicken sausage and hot dog with potatoes, peppers and sauce, or a pork sausage sandwich with fresh spinach and roasted garlic. Nonna's, in addition to its heavenly meatballs, serves pasta and antipasti and is adding a roast pork and broccoli raab sandwich for the Super Bowl. Tacos Raqueros' burritos and tacos should provide enough heat to take your mind off the fact that it is February and you are outside.

Coupon organizer saves time

BY SUSAN SELASKY
Detroit Free Press (MCT)

If your new year's resolutions include clipping coupons, make sure you organize them. If your coupons aren't organized before you shop, you'll waste time (and money) sifting through them at the store.

Coupon organizers range from checkbook-size to large three-ring binders. And their price varies as well, from just a couple dollars to more than $15.

If you use lots of coupons, opt for a ring binder with plastic-sheet inserts (the size used for baseball cards works well). Organize coupons first by category — meats, dairy, frozen foods, etc. — and then by product. This way, you can see the coupons. For example, group all your cereal coupons (by brand if you like) together. Look for coupon organizers at stores such as Target, Meijer and Walmart and online at amazon.com.

Diet Detective's tips to staying on that diet

DEAR CURRENT OR FUTURE DIETER,

First of all, I want wish everyone a happy and healthy year.

Most, if not all of us, have fallen for the allure of a "quick-fix" diet at one time or another. How many times have you made the decision to finally lose weight and get in shape? You're all excited. You promise yourself this is it the last time. You pick the diet du jour, and you do it. You starve, suffer and sacrifice. You make it happen. You have willpower, you're strong. The needle on the scale is moving down, so everything else is acceptable. As long as the pounds are dropping off, you can endure the suffering. The hope is that this time you'll lose that extra weight, and when it's all over you will never have to diet again.

Unfortunately, the quick-fix diet is like a dream lover — the hero or heroine who suddenly appears in our life and promises to meet all our needs, solve all our problems. But the romance of the dream diet is just as elusive and disappointing as that imaginary dream lover. At some point, we're bound to wake up to reality and the fact that we've fallen off our plan, our hopes have not come true, and we're back where we started: Overweight.

CHARLES STUART PLATKIN

So why do we do it to ourselves? Because, at least for a while, these diets do actually work. Dieting and overhauling your entire life does help you to lose weight. In fact, the National Weight Control Registry (nwcw.org) which tracks people who, on average, have successfully lost at least 66 pounds and maintained the loss for at least 5 1/2 years has demonstrated that successful losers use a variety of dieting methods to shed their pounds.

But if any number of diets will help you lose weight, why not simply pick one at random and just go for it?

Because the trick is that most of these diets are designed to work primarily in the short term, but not necessarily forever. In fact, it is a generally accepted principle in the diet industry that the amount of weight you lose in the first four weeks of any diet will determine whether you continue on the program. A significant initial weight loss, in other words, can be a powerful motivation for continuing. In fact, if you don't lose enough weight in those first four weeks, you will probably move on to another diet.

But ironically (and sadly), according to research reported in the Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology, one predictor of your potential to regain weight is how fast you lose it — meaning the faster you lose the weight, the more likely you will be to gain it back. But the good news, according to research reported in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, is that if you maintain your weight loss for at least two years, you reduce your risk of subsequently gaining it back by almost 50 percent. Yes, I know, hearing that you need to be on a diet for at least two years can be discouraging. But look at it this way: If you pick the "right" diet, two years is nothing. You should be happy to be on this "diet" for the next two years. (Hint: Pick a livable diet. See: <http://www.dietdetective.com/weekly-column/diet-detectives-report-creating-livable-diet>.)

Another major problem with some quick weight-loss diets is that you're not losing only fat; many times you're losing water and lean muscle mass. And when people lose muscle, their metabolism slows down. Muscle mass is the body's most efficient furnace. The more muscle you have, the more calories your body burns, whether you're sitting reading a book or working out in the gym. So the more muscle you lose, the harder it will become to lose weight. But does that mean every quick diet is going to cause you to lose muscle mass and water? And why would anyone continue on these types of diets given all the negative consequences, especially with their dismal success rates?

The answer is that, in the end, diets can be good and bad, and some are healthier than others. The healthier ones typically don't involve quick weight loss (on a healthy diet you should lose about half a pound to 2 pounds per week), they generally help you make healthy food choices, and they put you on a track that helps to create permanent weight control.

So you need to understand what a quickie diet will and will not do for you; you need to be an educated consumer. Also, never forget that to sustain weight loss you need to exercise. In fact, when you diet your basal metabolic rate changes. It goes down, and your overall caloric needs are lower. Basically, you start burning fewer calories than you did before, which makes sense because you're lighter, and you're moving less mass (because you've lost weight). However, that's not the full picture. There is also a process known as "adaptive thermogenesis," whereby your body is adapting and creating a new caloric burn rate. Not good! (Read more about this here: <http://goo.gl/aL0f8o>.) To overcome this phenomenon, when you diet you also need to exercise. Read my fitness starter plan right here: <http://bit.ly/1gmtUpE>.

No matter what diet you're on, I have created a free book, the "Diet Detective's Diet Starter Kit," that's available on Amazon.com, no strings attached. See <http://amzn.to/18wvYpb>. This is the book I send to friends and family when they ask what they should do before starting a diet. It works with any diet and will help to put you in the right state of mind to lose weight forever.

Hands-On Science Area open at museum

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Visit the Children's Discovery Museum of West Virginia to explore the Museum's new Hands-On Science Area for children 5 years old and up and their caregivers.

The Hands-On Science Area will inspire visitors to discover physics, engineering, math and logic through interactive activities. The exhibit includes materials to explore magnetism, robotics, circuits, gravity and more. Support for the Hands-On Science Center was provided in part by the LEGO Children's Fund.

The Hands-On Science Area is open on scheduled Saturdays and school holidays throughout the year. Visitors can explore this new exhibit Saturday and Feb. 15. Exhibit materials will be rotated, so return visitors can enjoy new materials and challenges. Please visit the museum's website at cdmw.org and Facebook page for more information.

Visitors to the Hands-On Science Area are also welcome to explore the museum's permanent exhibits including the Mary McIntosh Davis Imagination Station; Eat, Play Grow!; and the Eureka Science Center; the museum's permanent science exhibit available to visitors of all ages.

Regular admission of $4 per child, free for adults and children under 12 months applies. Museum hours are 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday. The museum is in the Mountaineer Mall at 5000 Green Bag Road. Park near the Woman's Fitness Center sign and enter through the doors under the museum's banner. There is no need to enter the mall. Children must be accompanied by an adult. Children under 5 years old will not be allowed in the Hands-On Science Area.

Pick up forms for upcoming book challenge

THE MORGANTOWN PUBLIC LIBRARY and the Shelley A. Marshall Foundation are pleased to announce the return of the Family Fireside Reading Challenge. The reading challenge will begin Tuesday and run for four weeks through Feb. 15.

Each week there will be a different reading log for the participants to pick up at the Morgantown Public Library or the Arnettsville Public Library. Children must read (or have read to them) 10 books each week. Older children may read 10 chapters from a chapter book. Participants then return their completed reading log the next week to receive a prize and an entry slip for the weekly grand prize, and to pick up their logs for the new week. Completed reading logs will be displayed at the library.

Weekly grand prizes will be on display at the Morgantown Public Library. Week one's grand prize package is "Monsters University"-themed, and includes the Disney movie and books. Week two is themed "Chilling with Crafts" and includes a bracelet loom and many crafting kits to keep kids busy during the winter on those snow days. Week three is a "2 Movie Treat" package with "Smurfs 2" and "Despicable Me 2," plus books. Week four is a "Valentine's Day"-themed package with books and goodies.

Our goal is to keep children reading all winter long, so stop by the library, pick out some good books and maybe win a prize or two. For more information, call 304-291-7425, Ext. 215.

Other library news

The Morgantown Public Library and its branches will be closed Monday for the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday.

Don't miss this month's Read To Rover at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 30. Children are invited to read to therapy dogs. Call the library at 304-291-7425 to reserve your child's spot to read.

Sign-ups for daytime and evening winter pre-school story times will begin soon. Stay tuned for more info on free story times.

E-book offers free excerpts of new works

Associated Press

NEW YORK — An industry newsletter is offering free digital previews of books by Lemony Snicket, Barbara Ehrenreich and dozens of others.

Available for downloads from most e-book retailers as of Tuesday, "Buzz Books 2014" compiles offerings from 40 upcoming "buzz" works, as selected by online publication Publishers Lunch.

Choices range from Ehrenreich's memoir "Living With a Wild God" to a novel by the late Rolling Stone reporter Michael Hastings.

Works previewed in earlier Buzz Book editions include Elizabeth Gilbert's novel "The Signature of All Things."

Author George Lies featured Thursday at MAC

Submitted to The Dominion Post

Morgantown-based author/editor George Lies will be featured with Morgantown Poets at 7 p.m. Thursday at Monongalia Arts Center (MAC). An open mic follows immediately thereafter.

Lies has played a role on West Virginia's literary stage since 1983. His prize story "Trailer Dogs Barking" was published by novelist Meredith Sue Willis in the "Hamilton Stone Review" online edition for a

West Virginia anthology (2008). His story "Keys to Heaven," set in Monongalia County, was translated for publications in Romania (2005) and Brazil (2009) from the original anthology, "Mist on the Mon." He moderates critique workshops for Morgantown Writers' Group, founded in 1994, a spin-off of GoldenRod Writers Conference (1983-2001). He has twice served as president of the statewide West Virginia Writers Inc., and as editorial director for anthologies, such as "Pokeberry Days," "Janus '95" and "Agent Orange." He has led multiple workshops in fiction writing and grant proposals, and has written for newspapers in Washington D.C., Pittsburgh, and Rio de Janeiro.

Public parking is available near the MAC in the parking garage at the corner of Pleasant and Chestnut streets and at the city lot behind 142 High St. (enter off Spruce). The MAC is accessible to individuals with special mobility requirements; schedule ahead at least two days prior to the event by calling 304-292-3325, or write to in fo@monartscenter.com.

Morgantown Poets is an informal not-for-profit, all-volunteer community group that meets 7-9 p.m. the third Thursday each month at the MAC, providing literary enthusiasts in north-central West Virginia the opportunity to express themselves, share their work, network and to connect up-and-coming writers with more established authors. New writers are welcome. Join on Facebook by entering "Morgantown Poets" in the search or join the mailing list at morgantownpoets@gmail.com. Follow the group on Twitter (@MorgantownPoets) or watch videos of past events on YouTube channel youtube.com/user/MorgantownPoets.

Tartt, Franzen among finalists for critics prizes

BY HILLEL ITALIE
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Donna Tartt's "The Goldfinch," the long-awaited novel by the author of "The Secret History," is a fiction finalist for the National Book Critics Circle award.

Jonathan Franzen was also among the nominees announced Sunday, although not for fiction. "The Kraus Project," his translation of the Austrian man of letters Karl Kraus, was selected for the criticism category. "The Kraus Project" made as much news for the harsh attacks on modern media and technology in Franzen's annotations as it did for Kraus' essays.

Other finalists in six competitive categories included Lawrence Wright's investigation into Scientology, "Going Clear," and George Packer's "The Unwinding," a bleak portrait of the modern American economy that last fall won the National Book Award for nonfiction. Wright, Packer and criticism finalists Hilton Als and Janet Malcolm are staff writers for The New Yorker.

Jesmyn Ward, whose "Salvage the Bones" won the National Book Award for fiction in 2011, was an autobiography finalist Sunday for "Men We Reaped."

Last fall's National Book Award winner for fiction, James McBride's "The Good Lord Bird," was bypassed by the critics circle. So was a favorite among many reviewers in 2013, George Saunders' "Tenth of December," one of the most highly praised story collections in recent memory.

Winners of the critics prize will be announced March 13.

Tartt needed a decade to complete "The Goldfinch," her third novel and an expansive, Dickensian narrative about an orphan in 21st century Manhattan. "The Goldfinch" was a best seller widely seen as a triumph for Tartt, who 20 years ago made a sensational debut with her intellectual campus thriller "The Secret History."

Others nominated for fiction were Nigerian author Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie's "Americanah," Ruth Ozeki's "A Tale for the Time Being," Alice McDermott's "Someone" and a work in translation, Javier Marias' "The Infatuations." (The translator was Margaret Jull Costa).

Nonfiction finalists also included a biography of mobster Whitey Bulger by Kevin Cullen and Shirley Murphy, Sheri Fink's "Five Days at Memorial: Life and Death in a Storm-Ravaged Hospital" and David Finkel's "Thank You for Your Service."

Autobiography nominees besides Ward were Sonali Deraniyagala's "Wave," Aleksandar Hemon's "The Book of My Lives," Rebecca Solnit's "The Faraway Nearby" and Amy Wilentz's "Farewell, Fred Voodoo: A Letter From Haiti."

In biography, the finalists were Scott Anderson's "Lawrence in Arabia," Leo Damrosch's "Jonathan Swift," John Eliot Gardiner's "Bach," Linda Leavell's "Holding On Upside Down: The Life and Work of Marianne Moore" and Mark Thompson's "Birth Certificate: The Story of Danilo Kis."

The poetry finalists were Frank Bidart's "Metaphysical Dog," Lucie Brock-Broido's "Stay, Illusion," Denise Duhamel's "Blowout," Bob Hicok's "Elegy Owed" and Carmen Gimenez Smith's "Milk and Filth."

Besides Franzen, criticism nominees were Al's "White Girls," Mary Beard's "Confronting the Classics," Malcolm's "Forty-One False Starts" and Franco Moretti's "Distant Reading."

The critics circle also announced three honorary prizes.

Anthony Marra's novel "A Constellation of Vital Phenomena" is the first ever winner of the John Leonard Prize for debut work, named for the late critic who was known for championing emerging authors.

Katherine Powers, whose criticism has appeared in the Washington Post and the Boston Globe, was the winner of the Nona Balakian Citation for Excellence in Reviewing. The Chicano author and translator Rolando Hinojosa-Smith was the recipient of the Ivan Sandrof Lifetime Achievement Award.

The book critics circle was founded by Leonard and others in 1974 and has nearly 600 members.

E.L. Doctorow explores mind of brain scientist in his latest book

BY ANN LEVIN
Associated Press

REVIEW

The narrator of E.L. Doctorow's latest novel, "Andrew's Brain," is a cognitive scientist with a guilty soul. He blames himself for every bad thing that has happened to him in his lifetime, and that's a lot.

His first child dies, and his marriage falls apart. To escape his grief, he takes a teaching job out West, where he falls in love with Briony, a beautiful student half his age. They have a child, then she dies under freakish circumstances and he abandons the infant with his ex-wife.

After a brief stint teaching high school, Andrew goes to work in the White House as neuroscience czar for his former Yale roommate, scion of a famous American political dynasty. But that job ends badly, too, and Andrew ends up in a mysterious detention facility, the victim of his boss' war on terror.

Andrew's litany of failure and loss unfolds in a series of conversations with an unnamed interlocutor, almost certainly a psychotherapist, over an unspecified time period, in largely unidentified settings, and in a variety of modes, including letters, phone calls and face to face.

The therapist, naturally, fights his profession's valiant but losing battle to get his neurotic client to be a little kinder to himself. "Do you think, Andrew, you may sometimes overreact?" he gently suggests.

Because this is Doctorow, Andrew's ruminations can be funny, and his descriptions gorgeous. Here he is on his students' religious beliefs: "God was an assumption, like something preinstalled in their computers." And on the approach to New York City from the New Jersey Turnpike: "past the oil refinery burn-offs ... the planes dropping to the runways of Newark Airport ... the turnpike risen now on concrete pillars ... holding up the furious intentions of traffic."

His most singular invention is Briony's family: Two retired entertainers who once performed with troupes of midgets. They're diminutive, but she is normally proportioned. Andrew's dawning realization, on his first visit to their home, that something is slightly off is a tour de force.

In the end, though, Andrew's therapy sessions don't quite add up to a convincing narrative. We get the shadow of a man, the outline of a story. "Andrew's Brain" reads more like a notebook than a novel, although one filled with fascinating ideas from neuroscience and an intriguing cast of characters.

WeDesign to connect creative community

Workshop is today at Bartini

Submitted to The Dominion Post

West Virginia's third WeDesign event will be from 5:30-7:30 p.m. today at Bartini in the Suncrest Towne Centre.

The event is free and open to all working in marketing, advertising, public relations and design industries.

Students ages 21 and older who are pursuing these areas of study are also encouraged to attend.

Hosted by local marketing and design agency, Asayo Creative, Inc., WeDesign was formed to promote the networking and support of the area's creative community.

According to Asayo Creative owner and president Damian Ferek, the event was created to combat the lack of awareness of the creative work accomplished in the area and those who are creating it.

"West Virginia has an awesome environment of agency, freelance and corporate creatives," Ferek said.

"WeDesign provides an opportunity for those creative minds to come together each month to network, share ideas and enjoy the relaxed environment."

Although the event is typically held the second

Wednesday of each month, this month's event was pushed back as a convenience to 2014 schedules.

"We've decided to push it back this month to allow attendees time to adjust to the New Year," Ferek said.

WeDesign events offer guest speakers, a cash bar and drink specials.

WVDNR seeks paintings for 2015 wildlife calendar

Submitted to The Dominion Post

SOUTH CHARLESTON — The West Virginia Division of Natural Resources (DNR) is requesting original wildlife art for the 2015 edition of the award-winning West Virginia Wildlife Calendar, said DNR Wildlife Resources Section Chief Curtis I. Taylor. The deadline for submitting artwork is Feb. 18.

An electronic image of each entry capable of being sized at 14 1/2 inches wide by 11 1/2 inches high at 300 dpi is preferred, but a lower resolution image or 35-mm color slide will be accepted. Artists may send in multiple entries.

"This is our 30th calendar, and it offers a wonderful opportunity for artists to feature their work. Besides distribution in West Virginia, our calendars are enjoyed by people all over the United States," Taylor said.

Paintings may depict popular game and fish species or feature the state's lesser-known animals such as snakes, frogs, turtles, salamanders, bats, songbirds, small mammals and nongame fish.

Artists are reminded that the calendar format is horizontal, with measurements of 14 inches wide by 11 inches high, and should keep this ratio in mind when creating paintings.

Paintings not chosen in previous years may be resubmitted. "Just because the artwork is not selected one year doesn't mean it will not be selected in the future," Taylor said. "Often, there are several submissions of a particular species and only one can be used in a given year."

All artists, especially those from West Virginia, are encouraged to submit their works. A $100 prize is awarded for each painting chosen, with $500 going to the artist whose artwork is picked for the cover. Paintings are chosen based on overall composition and quality, along with anatomical and contextual accuracy. The quality of the electronic image or submitted slide is important for judging the artwork.

To obtain 2015 calendar art rules or to purchase a 2014 calendar, contact the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources, Wildlife Calendar Art, P.O. Box 67, Elkins, WV 26241, or call 304-637-0245. Electronic images should be emailed to Jerry.R.Shinn@wv.gov.

Erin's Law touted at state task force's conference in Nov.

THE MCCAC is raising $425,000 by the end of 2015 to purchase a permanent home to provide free victim services in our community. If you would like to make a donation, volunteer or would like information, contact mccacdc@comcast.net, 304-598-0344 or www.moncocac.org. To anonymously report suspected cases of abuse, call the West Virginia Child Abuse hotline, at 1-800-352-6513.

WE ARE EXCITED ABOUT all of the advances being made in our county and state regarding the prevention and treatment of child abuse cases, and support of the work that Child Advocacy Centers — such as the Monongalia County Child Advocacy Center (MCCAC) — do.

In West Virginia, we are fortunate to have The West Virginia Children's Justice Task Force, a multidisciplinary group made up of lawyers, child advocates, Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), health and mental health professionals, Child Protective Services (CPS) and parent groups.

The task force believes that child abuse and neglect are community problems requiring community solutions. In November, the West Virginia Children's Justice Task Force held the Crimes Against Children Conference, a two-day meeting that provided pertinent information and training for professionals in the state on the investigation, treatment and resolution of child maltreatment cases with an emphasis on child sexual abuse.

During the conference, a team met with Erin Merryn about introducing Erin's Law in West Virginia. Erin's Law is named for the childhood sexual assault survivor, author, speaker and activist. She is the founder and president of Erin's Law, which is registered with the State of Illinois and the IRS as a 501 (c)(4) nonprofit social welfare organization. After introduction of the legislation in Illinois, the bill was named Erin's Law by legislators and it has caught on nationwide.

Erin's Law requires that all public schools, in each state that passes it, start a prevention-oriented child sexual abuse program that teaches:

- Students in grades pre-K through fifth age-appropriate techniques to recognize child sexual abuse and tell a trusted adult.
- School personnel all about child sexual abuse.
- Parents and guardians the warning signs of child sexual abuse, plus assistance, referral or resource information to support sexually abused children and their families.

Support of Erin's Law and implementation in the state would be another step in the right direction to help children and families in West Virginia prevent child sexual abuse.

The MCCAC uses the Darkness to Light Stewards of Light training program, which teaches adults to prevent, recognize and react responsibly to child sexual abuse.

In 2014, we hope to expand our community education program and hope to collaborate with Monongalia County Schools. Dianna Dickins, family advocate, provides free training to teachers and students on body safety and prevention. Schools or groups interested in free training can contact Dickins, at 304-598-0344.

THE MONONGALIA COUNTY CHILD ADVOCACY CENTER is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. The mission of the MCCAC is to advocate for children who have been abused and neglected, or who are at-risk, by providing a child-friendly and safe environment for children to be interviewed, educated and healed. The MCCAC is a funded partner of the United Way of Monongalia and Preston Counties and a nationally accredited child-advocacy center.

911 fee likely to rise

Increase sought from $1.31 to $4

BY CONOR GRIFFITH
The Dominion Post

Emergency officials in Monongalia County are considering an increase of the 911 fee for landline phones. Though not official, the fee will likely go from $1.31 a month per line to about $4.

At the MECCA 911 Policy Board meeting Tuesday morning, Deputy Director Jim Smith said an increase in monthly landline 911 fees would help emergency services improve its systems.

"It's been 25 to 26 years since we had an increase, and we want to do an increase that's going to sustain us for another 15 to 20 years. We don't want to have to keep upping our fees," Smith said.

The proposed increase would be the first since the 911 system began in Mon County, in the 1980s. Smith said a fee increase would help with emergency services' budget.

"Hopefully, we won't have any more major expenses before the end of the fiscal year," Smith said. "If you look at our budget, we're exactly where we should be, and any additional expense is going to put a great strain on our budget."

The Dominion Post previously reported the Mon County Commission voted unanimously to grant MECCA $175,000 to upgrade its hardware and suggested ways those funds could be recouped. In

'Couples love' dance classes

BY JIM BISSETT
The Dominion Post

It was one step up and two back for Angela and Scott DeMoss at Marilla Park on Tuesday night, as the shoe soles squeaked and the bass line bounced.

"We got this," Angela said, extending her hand for a husbandly high five from Scott.

"I mean, we do have this, right?"

"Sure we do," Scott said, grinning and shaking his head no, the whole time.

The occasion was Bill Ayers' weekly cha-cha classes at the park's Marilla Center. BOPARC has been holding the classes for years as part of its lineup of enrichment activities.

About 30 couples lined up Tuesday for the class presided over by Ayers, a genial engineer who likes engaging the other side of his brain on the dance floor.

"It's just a good time," he said. "Couples love it."

Ayers worked the couples through a slow-motion version of the high-energy dance first popularized in Cuban night clubs in the 1940s.

He was smiling and tossing about just as many droll asides as the beginners in the house.

One move called the "Illusion Turn" was a little elusive, in turn bringing out the engineer in him.

It was a pivot and shuffle maneuver, with his feet clomping the floor in the dance's signature "One, two, three, cha-cha-cha" pattern.

"Messed up," he said. "I'm pretty sure I messed it up. I need to do that again."

The whole fun of the endeavor, he said, is that on the dance floor, no one really "messes up," provided one's inhibitions don't get in the way of the beat.

Bill DeMoss can tap out the tune for you.

He was having just as much fun as his brother, Scott.

While Bill was working through the paces with his wife, Lisa, Scott and Angela were doing the same.

Sibling choreography, it was. The respective brothers and sisters-in-law were enjoying the musical inventory.

"The DeMoss dance-off will continue forever more," Bill said.

City will talk turbines at a special meet

Power plant plan raising concerns

BY BEN CONLEY
The Dominion Post

A letter explaining the city's concerns about a potential hydroelectric power plant on the Monongahela River next to the Morgantown Lock and Dam will be the focus of a special meeting of the Morgantown City Council scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday.

In 2011, Free Flow power began the lengthy process of getting the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's (FERC) approval to put power-producing turbines on the river's Opekiska and Morgantown locks.

As part of the process, area stakeholders have until Monday to file comments with FERC.

A draft letter from City Manager Jeff Mikorski explains that city administrators met with Free Flow Power in "early 2012," but, "Additional discussions were expected after that meeting that did not occur ..."

Mikorski said the special meeting will be an opportunity for council to shape the letter before it is submitted, and will provide an opportunity for public comment on the topic.

Of concern to the city:

■ Property — The proposed location of the power plant would affect the city's rail-trail. The quitclaim deed giving the city access to the land has a reversionary clause that requires the land be preserved for future rail use and provide interim recreational opportunities.

■ Environmental impact — Due to the proximity to residential homes and neighborhoods, Free Flow Power should provide information on the amount of light, noise and odor such a plant produces, as well as the environmental impact of its construction.

■ Economic impact — The city as well as private property owners and developers have invested millions spurring development of the Wharf District. The city is concerned the power plant will harm that area.

■ Visual impact — The facility will be along a major access for visitors to the city. There is concern that the power plant will harm the visual appeal of the riverfront.

■ Power lines — The city asks that Free Flow Power make an effort to reduce the impact of the power plant by burying any power lines that are a part of this project. Mikorski said it is too early to determine if these issues would be deal breakers for the city.

"Free Flow Power still has quite a bit of work to do in the approval process, and a large part of that deals with environmental and recreational impact," Mikorski said. "But these are concerns, and we would need to see how they respond to them before

Candidate filing period under way

ELECTION 2014

The Dominion Post

The filing period for public office in West Virginia began Monday and runs through Jan. 25.

According to the secretary of state's office, individuals filing to run for U.S. Senate, U.S. House of Representatives, state Senate and House of Delegates will file to run with the secretary of state. Individuals filing to run for county commission and any other unexpired terms for county-level offices will file with their respective county clerk.

In Marion County, incumbent Burley "Butch" Tennant (D) and Audrea Rittenhouse (R) filed paperwork to represent the Middletown District on the county commission.

Democrat Rhonda Starn took over as Marion County Circuit Clerk when Barbara Core retired, in August. Starn has filed as a candidate to keep the seat. Republican Guy Ward — a former Whitehall councilman and county commissioner — has also filed for circuit clerk.

In Monongalia, Sheriff Al

Kisner (D) submitted his name for the Democratic Executive Committee on Tuesday.

Also on Tuesday, Bill Barlow, of Kingwood, filed to run against incumbent Vicki Cole for a seat on the Preston County Commission, and Edward Utterback filed paperwork as a candidate for Conservation District Supervisor in Preston County.

Sandy mission trip planned to N.Y.

Submitted to The Dominion Post

The Ecumenical Mission Team, organized in cooperation with the Greater Fairmont Council of Churches, is planning a spring trip to Long Island, N.Y.

That area was devastated in October 2012 by Superstorm Sandy and is in need of volunteers to help rebuild homes. The team will be hosted by Samaritan's Purse, which is providing project management, building materials, tools, lodging and food during the stay. Trip dates are March 9-14, which coincides with spring break at area universities.

All people of faith are welcome to participate. Participants must be at least 18 years old, be in reasonably good health and have had a tetanus shot in the past five years. Participants will pay a $100 fee or arrange for their church to sponsor them. Tools will be provided and shared as needed.

Due to limited space in the work camp, the trip is limited to 10 people. Applications must be in by Feb. 20.

Each day, the group will observe a morning and evening devotional prayer within a larger group. It will share in meal preparation and cleanup. Workdays will be up to eight hours on work sites, with breaks for lunch and refreshments. Both skilled and non-skilled labor is needed. The experience combines work, prayer, service and community building into a faith enrichment opportunity.

Donations are welcome to help offset the team's costs. Checks may be sent to St. Peter the Fisherman CC, 407 Jackson St., Fairmont, WV 26554 (Note: Mission Fund).

Institute offers instruction to be a machinist

Tours of facility slated Thursday

Submitted to The Dominion Post

To showcase its nationally certified machinist technology program to prospective students, the Robert C. Byrd Institute for Advanced Flexible Manufacturing (RCBI) is opening the doors at its Bridgeport Advanced Manufacturing Technology Center at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

The informational tour at the facility, at 2400 E. Benedum Industrial Drive, Bridgeport, is geared toward people interested in hands-on experience and training to become skilled machinists.

Staff members and instructors will discuss admission requirements and financial assistance and answer questions about aspects of the program. The session will last 30 minutes to an hour.

RCBI offers the only nationally recognized training program in West Virginia, so individuals may earn a Technical Certificate and credentials from the National Institute for Metalworking Skills (NIMS). Individuals also have the option of earning an Associate of Applied Science in Technical Studies degree or credits that apply to another undergraduate degree.

The machinist training at RCBI is a direct response to manufacturers, who face a global shortage of technically skilled machinists. Each year in the United States, there are unfilled, high paying machinist jobs. RCBI graduates have a 90 percent employment/placement rate, in part because of its experience working with more than 5,000 manufacturers.

RCBI operates the only nationally certified (by the National Institute for Metalworking Skills) machinist technology program in West Virginia with the option of earning an associate degree. With this degree, you can enroll at any four-year accredited college to earn a bachelor's degree with two more years of courses.

Info: 304-848-2283 or 800-469-RCBI (7224) or email machinistprogram@rcbi.org.

While the city has some issues it needs cleared up, MUB General Manager Tim Ball said he's not only behind the project, but also hopes MUB can be involved as a partner or direct customer.

"It's a wonderful idea. It's frustrating to know the amount of energy passing through that dam everyday," Ball said, adding that MUB has "long toyed with the idea" of putting a hydroelectric generator at the lock and dam.

"It's a little frustrating that somebody beat us to the punch," he said.

Ball explained that MUB would endorse the city's comments and "supplement them with our own."

911

a previous article, MECCA 911 Director Mike Wolfe said a 911 fee increase and/or a deal with WVU would allow MECCA to repay the county's investment.

"Our hardware is over six years old and it should be replaced every three years, not every six years," Smith said. "By trying to double the life of this hardware is where we're running into problems with our systems."

Smith added that major expenses are coming, such as upgrading the phone systems, which could cost up to $500,000. Emergency services in the county are just able to operate under the status quo, but would be unable to upgrade under the current budget, Smith said.

While the board hasn't determined an exact number, Smith said the fee would likely go from $1.31 a month to $4, the same rate as Kanawha County for residential customers.

The proposed fee increase would allow MECCA to remain updated and maintain peak performance. Smith said it would also save money in the long run because there would be less demand for contractors to keep older 911 systems up and running.

Before the fee increases, the county commission would have to hold a public hearing and the state's Public Service Commission would have to approve.

Top doctors now recommending new skin cream to heart patients

Clears deadly plaque from arteries without pills, needles, or surgery; free trial offer available to readers of The Dominion Post for the next 48 hours

NNS — Over 3-million doses have been shipped to heart patients across the country and sales continue to climb every day for the new skin cream called Kelacore™.

“We knew we had a great product, but we did not expect this much demand,” said Alan Thompson President of NMA Inc. (Northwest Medical Associates) — the makers of this new artery-cleansing sensation. “People just keep placing orders. It’s been amazing,” he said.

But a closer look at Kelacore™ suggests that maybe the company should not have been caught off guard by its success.

There are good reasons why Kelacore™ sales are booming.

To begin with, the results of more than 34,0z00 patient case studies here in the U.S. are impressive to say the least. Many patients taking Kelacore™ report a 50% reduction in artery plaque. Some users report an incredible 75% reduction.

The active ingredient in Kelacore™ is a natural amino acid. Scientists claim it is both safe and healthy. It absorbs into the arteries via the skin so results can be seen quite quickly.

“Many patients notice better blood pressure and cholesterol levels within the first 30 days,” says Dr. Alex Livshin, a Staff Physician at North York General Hospital.

WHY SO MUCH EXCITEMENT?

Scientists believe they have discovered an amazing amino acid that clears plaque blockages from human arteries. Yes, the same blockages that trigger deadly heart attacks and strokes, which claim the lives of almost 800,000 Americans each year!

This amino acid is not a drug. It is the active ingredient in Kelacore™. Clinical studies show it improves blood flow in the arteries. Many patients see blood pressure and cholesterol levels return to normal. Some are able to cancel costly surgery. And many more report less chest pains and numbness in the arms, legs, and feet.

“My femoral arteries were 70% blocked,” says Jack Yates of Vashon, WA. “but Kelacore™ has pretty much cleaned them out now. It’s a relief to know I’m not such a high risk person for a heart attack or stroke anymore.”

IMPRESSIVE CLINICAL RESULTS

Top scientists at the Cleveland Clinic, the University of California Berkley, and Providence Hospital in Detroit (among others) have done more than 1,823 studies on Kelacore’s™ active ingredient. The results seem hard to believe. Yet the findings are published in the world’s most prestigious medical journals for all to see.

ARTERY-CLEANSING SENSATION: Top doctors from coast-to-coast are now recommending new Kelacore™ chelation cream to heart patients because it safely dissolves artery blockages without pills, needles or surgery.

- The results show...
- Plaque blockages in the arteries get dissolved...
  - Angina symptoms disappear...
  - Bypass surgeries get cancelled...
  - Cholesterol levels return to normal...
  - Blood circulation around the body is improved...

And while we all know there is no miracle cure for high blood pressure, one study did show a remarkable 100% of patients had their blood pressure come down to a safer level.

The findings are impressive, no doubt, but results will vary. Consumers are advised to always consult with a doctor. There is no substitute for medical advice.

But with results like these it’s easy to see why thousands of callers are clogging the telephone lines trying to get their hands on Kelacore™.

HOW IT WORKS

Kelacore™ is applied to the skin of the inner thighs. It’s colorless. Odorless. Painless. It absorbs into your bloodstream in less than 60 seconds.

The active ingredient in Kelacore™ is known simply as “EDTA”. Scientists believe EDTA dissolves plaque blockages into tiny particles. It then flushes them from your arteries, down to your kidneys, and safely expels them from your body as a component of urine.

Until recently the only way to get the benefits of EDTA was with Intravenous (I.V.) chelation therapy. Chelation therapy is a proven treatment. It’s been given to more than 1.5-million heart patients here in the U.S. and around the world. But it’s time consuming. It is also painful. Plus it’s expensive, too. A single session costs up to $300. And to be effective most people need at least 10 sessions — at a $3,000 cost!

EDTA pills are another option. But new research shows 95% of the EDTA in each pill is destroyed by stomach acid before it reaches the arteries.

This seems to be another reason why Kelacore’s™ release has sparked such a frenzy of sales. On one hand it costs just a fraction of chelation therapy. On the other hand it absorbs through the skin, so it delivers 1,200% more EDTA into your arteries than pills.

WHAT DOCTORS ARE SAYING

“My files are full of success stories,” says Dr. John Roberts, from Anacortes, WA. “One patient of mine had an 85% blockage in two arteries. He could not walk to his mailbox without symptoms of Angina. After a few tubes of Kelacore™ he’s mowing the lawn again without chest pains or numbness in his arms.”

“It works wonders for high blood pressure,” says Dr. Alex Livshin, M.D. “In fact I had one patient recently whose blood pressure dropped 18 points after using Kelacore™ for just one week.”

“I’ve treated over 500 patients with Kelacore™,” says Dr. Ralph Edwards, an M.D., from Tustin, CA, “and the results have been great. It’s easy to use. Convenient. It’s safe as well. In my mind it’s one of the best health products I’ve seen in 30 years of practice.”

FREE TRIAL OFFER

This is the official nationwide release of Kelacore™. And so, the company is offering a 30-day free trial introductory offer to any person who calls within the next 48 hours.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local residents to call. This gives everyone an equal chance to try Kelacore™. Simply

Proof that it works:

Try this simple at-home test to see blockages that cause heart attacks and strokes getting dissolved and flushed from your arteries.

STEP #1: Use a small, clear glass bottle to store a urine sample. Do this the morning before you begin using Kelacore™ cream.

STEP #2: Apply Kelacore™ to your skin as directed for two weeks.

STEP #3: Take a second urine sample.

STEP #4: Hold the first (before) sample in front of a bright light and swirl the bottle. You’ll observe that the urine is clear.

Then, do the same with the second (after) sample. You’ll see a white “tornado” of sediment swirling in the urine.

This “tornado” is plaque that’s been dissolved and flushed from your arteries: Plaque that might have triggered a deadly heart attack or stroke.

call toll-free 1-800-457-1886, provide the operator with the free-trial approval code BL3479, and the company will do the rest. Operators are on duty since 8am this morning.

How to try it FREE for 30 days:

This is the official release of Kelacore™. And so, the company is giving a 30-day free trial introductory offer to readers of The Dominion Post who call before the 48-hour deadline expires. Just call the toll-free number below, provide the operator with the free-trial approval code BL3479, and the company will take care of the rest. Operators are on duty since 8:00 AM this morning.

Begin Calling: 8:00 AM
Free Trial Approval Code: BL3479
Toll-Free Number: 1-800-457-1886
Deadline: 48 Hours

Important: Due to Kelacore’s™ recent media exposure, phone lines are often busy. If you call, and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. If you miss this 48-hour window of opportunity to try Kelacore™, you may be forced to wait for future public announcements in this or other publications.

Clogged Arteries Can Trigger A Heart Attack Or Stroke

With each passing year, plaque deposits grow larger. If ignored, these blockages restrict blood flow to the heart and brain and can trigger a heart attack or stroke.

EDTA Dissolves Blockages And Leaves Your Arteries Clean

EDTA dissolves plaque into microscopic particles that are safely flushed from the body as a component of urine, leaving arteries clean so blood flows freely.

Choosing the right birth control

DR. KOMAROFF

DEAR DOCTOR K: I've recently become sexually active and I'm planning to go on the pill. But there are so many different types of birth control pills. Which one is right for me?

DEAR READER: I don't know enough about you to give an answer that's right for you. From my general remarks about these pills, I'm hopeful you can pinpoint the ones that seem right for you — and discuss them with your doctor.

Birth control pills can be divided into two basic categories: combined pills and minipills. Most birth control pills are combined pills. They contain a combination of two types of female sex hormones: The hormone estrogen and a progestogen (a group of hormones that includes progesterone). Minipills contain a progestogen, but no estrogen.

The estrogen in combined birth control pills prevents ovulation, the release of a mature egg from a woman's ovary. Combined birth control pills also thicken cervical secretions, creating a barrier that makes it difficult for sperm to get into the uterus. They produce changes in the tubes that carry the egg from the ovaries to the uterus. And they make it hard for a fertilized egg to implant in the uterus. These effects are caused by the progestogen.

Combination birth control pills are 98 to 99 percent effective in preventing pregnancy. The more estrogen, the better the birth control effect. Unfortunately, the higher the likelihood of side effects such as high blood pressure or headaches.

Minipills do not prevent ovulation as effectively as combination pills because they don't contain estrogen. They mainly act by thickening secretions of the cervix and making it hard for a fertilized egg to implant in the uterus. They are about 98 percent effective. Minipills need to be taken exactly as directed. Even missing one pill can greatly reduce their effectiveness.

Progressive motion will get you where you want to go in the coming months. Expect emotional issues to be brought out into the open.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-JAN. 19) — Keep everything out in the open so you can deal with issues as they arise. Turn a negative into an opportunity.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 20-FEB. 19) — Don't waste the day. There is too much to do, and too little time.

PISCES (FEB. 20-MARCH 20) — Take a chance and try something unique. Offer help and look for ways to utilize what you have to offer in more diverse ways.

ARIES (MARCH 21-APRIL 19) — Avoid altercations. Partnership problems will escalate if you aren't willing to compromise. A common-sense approach to work and money will pay off.

TAURUS (APRIL 20-MAY 20) — Take a chance, and present what you have to offer. Showing your skills and expertise will be far more effective than talking about them.

GEMINI (MAY 21-JUNE 20) — You'll be tempted

by an offer that may not be legitimate or that is based on hearsay rather than facts.

CANCER (JUNE 21-JULY 22) — Relationships, partnerships and mingling with people who share your interests and concerns will bring about unusual and exciting opportunities.

LEO (JULY 23-AUG. 22) — Watch your back today, especially when dealing with financial, legal or medical issues.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-SEPT. 22) — Your suggestions will be well-received. Do your best to help out, but don't let anyone take you for granted.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-OCT. 23) — Stay calm and rely on your knowledge and ability to deliver information with intelligence and passion.

SCORPIO (OCT. 24-NOV. 22) — Enjoy the moment, take part in unique activities and develop relationships that will be of use to you in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 23-DEC. 21) — Keep an eye on your personal papers and concerns. Protect your assets.
