A history of Black coal miners in W.Va. worth digging into

BY JIM BISSETT
JBissett@DominionPost.com

In West Virginia, where the Appalachian storytelling tradition still hangs in the hollows and along the ridgetops like a whisper of morning fog, it's not just the tale.

It's the person who delivers it. That's the aim of a new effort announced this past Wednesday — Juneteenth — by the West Virginia Mine Wars Museum, located in Matewan, Mingo County.

The heart of the state's southern coal fields.

Historians call that period of Mountain State history in the early 1920s, the "mine wars," because that's what literally happened.

Matewan was especially bloody. More on that.

Conditions in West Virginia's coal mines, meanwhile, were deplorable.

Explosions and cave-ins were regular occurrences.

So were the skirmishes between miners trying to organize the then-fledgling United Mine Workers of America and the goons hired by the coal companies who wanted no such thing.

The miners were shot at — and they shot back.

Mining, as dangerous as it was, though, still held promise.

Peak Health, WVU Med partner with Mylan Park

WVU Medicine

Peak Health and WVU Medicine announced a groundbreaking new partnership with Mylan Park, West Virginia's premier recreation, sport, health and wellness complex.

On July 1, Mylan Park's aquatic center will be named the Peak Health Aquatic Center at Mylan Park, and the track complex will be named the Peak Health Track and Field Complex.

In addition, Mylan Park's splashpad area and waterslides will be named for WVU Medicine Children's.

Under the new partnership, Peak Health and Mylan Park will collaborate to further their shared commitment to bring more health and wellness opportunities to West Virginia.

All members and beneficiaries of Peak Health's health insurance plans will have free access to the aquatic center and other Mylan Park recreation and fitness facilities through the Mylan Park MyPARK Pass program. Details on how to access these services will be forthcoming to Peak Health members.

"We are very excited. This partnership advances Peak Health's mission to be an inclusive, provider-led health plan that helps West Virginian's live healthier and fuller lives and supports WVU Medicine's mission of building healthier futures for our children," Ben Gerber, CEO of Peak Health and chief strategy officer for the WVU Health System, said.

The Peak Health Aquatic Center at Mylan Park is a state-of-the-art and fully accessible 90,000-square-foot facility featuring a 50-meter Olympic pool and diving well.

The facility houses a community pool with zero-depth entry, water slides and play features, a six-lane lap pool, an outdoor splash pad, multi-purpose rooms to rent and a fitness room.

The Peak Health Track and Field Complex is an eight-lane, prefabricated, synthetic Mondo Super-X surfaced facility that features four long-jump and triple-jump pits, LED stadium lighting, steeple chase, high-

The Monongalia County Sheriff's Department pulled out all the stops during a private tour of the facility for a Bruceton Mills boy with muscular dystrophy.

It all started a few weeks ago when 14-year-old David Austin and his mother Kim Burnworth began talking to Deputy Dave McDougal one day at Walmart.

McDougal said David told him he would like to be chief deputy and ride in a police car and tour the police station.

McDougal promised the youngster he would see what he could do.

Earlier this week, McDougal made it happen and David got to take that tour, led by real-life Chief Deputy Mark Ralston, Sgt. Steven Neff, McDougal, and a few other officers and staff.

The behind-the-scenes look included a walk through the booking process, including David getting handcuffed, fingerprinted, taking a breathalyzer test and saying cheese for his official mug shot.

After a peek at a holding cell, he decided that was a place he never wanted to be.

Later on the tour, David and Sgt. Neff even did a little light physical training on some mats in a multi-purpose area.

Pay low for W.Va. nurses, says hospital review

One official says that's not all causing shortage across nation

BY DAVID BEARD
DBeard@DominionPost.com

Registered nurses in West Virginia rank relatively low for hourly pay compared to those in other states, but fare better when their pay is adjusted for cost of living.

Pay for nurse practitioners ranks even lower, but their adjusted rate places them even higher.

And the pay for physician assistants, when adjusted for cost of living, is among the best in the nation.

The numbers come from three articles in Becker's Hospital Review. This story looks at the numbers and then focuses on registered nurses and the various factors — not just pay — affecting the nursing shortage statewide and across the nation.

The numbers

West Virginia registered nurses rank 45th in the nation among the 50 states and Washington, D.C., for mean hourly pay, at $36.53 per hour.

But adjusting for cost of living (COL), their pay amounts to $40.45 per hour, 35th in the nation.

Becker's used May 2023 salary data from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and 2024 COL data from the World Population Review.

World Population Review averages COL across the nation and sets that as the baseline of 100. Individual states are then given a number reflecting costs there compared against the baseline. West Virginia's index number is 90.3.

Maine doctor convicted on multiple counts of illegally distributing opioids

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Maine — A Maine doctor who runs an addiction treatment center has been convicted on multiple counts of illegally distributing opioids including oxycodone, hydromorphone and fentanyl.

Dr. Merideth Norris, 53, of Kennebunk, Maine, was found guilty in federal court Friday of distributing the opioids at her practice. According to court documents, she did so without a legitimate medical purpose and knowing that some patients were battling an opioid addiction. She prescribed the drugs, according to court documents, even after patients failed drug tests or were known to redistribute the drugs in the community.

A federal jury convicted Norris on 15 counts of distributing controlled substances and she faces up to 20 years on each count.

Prosecutors accused Norris of putting her patients' safety at risk, according to the Portland Press Herald, and failing to heed warning signs like failed drug tests among her patients or advisories from insurance companies about her prescribing of dangerous combinations of opioids and other drugs.

Her defense team tried to make the case that Norris helped patients reduce their medications and that the charges ignored the complexity of treating people who were addicted to opioids and struggled to find a doctor, the newspaper said.

Norris could not be reached for comment and her recovery center was closed Saturday.

Norris has long faced scrutiny for her prescribing practices, including from pharmacists who refused to fill prescriptions she wrote. Walmart pharmacies also issued a "central block," or a nationwide ban, on filling prescriptions written by Norris.

trophy at age 5, Burnworth said David tries to enjoy life.

"He tries to do everything. He tries to be as normal as he can," she said, adding that his diagnosis makes his muscles tire easily.

"But he didn't get tired today," she said with a smile.

While the inside of the sheriff's office was cool, the real fun was outside where David, all smiles, got to check out Neff's police cruiser and blast the lights and sirens. Mom joked he was in "hot pursuit" of the bad guys.

The highlight of the day, however, was a surprise visit from Deputy Martin and K9 officer Rocky.

David got to pet Rocky and Martin even taught him the command he uses to reward Rocky with his favorite toy. It probably goes without saying, Rocky was highly rewarded that day.

As a souvenir to remember Rocky, Martin gave David one of Rocky's old favorite toys, which the boy thought was really cool.

Before leaving for the day, David got to meet the real big dog at the department, Sheriff Perry Palmer, and get a picture with him.

David wasn't sure if he would be interested in a career in law enforcement one day, but if he was, he would like to be a member of the SWAT team.

Burnworth said they were very appreciative of McDougal and the entire sheriff's department for the work that they do.

McDougal said he has always had a passion for helping kids and was overjoyed to see the fun David had and the effort put in by the officers he interacted with during his visit.

"I'm really proud that I could help make his dream come true," he said.

McDougal said he hopes David's story can be a spark in the community encouraging everyone to do more for the kids being treated at WVU Medicine Children's and kids in general. Whether that be giving them your time and attention or donating to the cause.

"I'm sure that we could do more as human beings to take care of these kids," he said. "I'd love to do more with kids, and I think that everybody should help whenever they can."

For David, the experience was something he will likely remember forever.

"He really enjoyed it," she said for her son, who was a little shy when it came to being interviewed.

"When people think of the sheriff's department, they think of crime and bad things," she said, "but they do a lot of good things, too."

Rosenbaum marks silver milestone

'Bluegrass in the Backwoods' celebrates 25th anniversary

BY CAVAN TARLEY

CTarley@DominionPost.com

Rosenbaum Family House is throwing its 25th anniversary celebration "Bluegrass in the Backwoods" from 5-9 p.m. Thursday at Forks of Cheat Winery.

Apart from the 25th anniversary, Rosenbaum Family House will also be celebrating 10 years of expanding its services with its current building on the J.W. Ruby Memorial Hospital campus. Before moving into its current location, the WVU Medicine affiliated organization provided about 30 rooms. By 2014, Rosenbaum Family House provided 29 guest rooms and 11 apartments.

The Hillbilly Biscuits and the Shoats are among the bluegrass musicians performing at the celebration. Vendors and activities will include food from Keystone 'Cue, a silent auction and a variety of games.

According to Elizabeth Kanosky, public relations specialist and house coordinator at Rosenbaum Family House, bluegrass was the choice of music for the celebration because it captures the spirit of West Virginia so well.

"Bluegrass music is deeply rooted in Appalachian and West Virginia culture," she said. "We also wanted it to be a more relaxed and inviting event where guests can leave their heels at home and celebrate our home away from home."

Rosenbaum Family House was founded in 1999 by Hilda Rosenbaum, mom of two children who eventually died from cystic fibrosis. For Rosenbaum, the organization was a way for her to make a difference for families that were going through similar medical crises.

The organization has been providing support for families of patients being treated in WVU Medicine's Morgantown location — especially those that live 50 miles away from the city. Among the services the organization provides are transportation to and from the hospital and meals during their stay. "The aim is to create a supportive environment where families can stay close to their loved ones receiving medical treatment," Kanosky explained.

Over the past quarter-century, the services provided by Rosenbaum Family House have been in high demand from families of patients being treated at WVU Medicine's Morgantown location. "We have housed more than 22,000 patients and their families in the past 25 years," said Kanosky. "In 2024 alone, we have served over 6,000 meals already."

Rosenbaum Family

House has raised donations from charitable events.

"In 2023, we had the largest attendance of runners for our Run Santa Run 5K with over 300 runners raising $14,000," Kanosky explained. "We also saw our most successful WVU Day of Giving by raising $18,500."

When examining the overall impact that Rosenbaum Family House has had over the years, Kanosky believes the most-profound impact is on the well-being of everyone involved.

"Our mission is to exemplify the power of love, the resilience of the human spirit and the importance of family," said Kanosky. "This is made possible through the generosity and support of individuals, businesses and many volunteer and community organizations."

Rosenbaum Family House is at 30 Family House Drive in Morgantown. To purchase tickets for Thursday's event, go to give.wvu.edu/RFHBluegrass.

The nurse shortage

nursing executive for the entire WVU Health System and is overseeing the creation of the WVU Medicine Center for Nursing Education at the WVU Innovation Corp. building.

"The nursing shortage has been going on for quite some time," she said — nationally and in West Virginia.

It preceded COVID, though the pandemic exacerbated it and brought more attention to it. Bottom line was not enough nurses were and are being produced to meet the demand, she said. "As a state we've continued to not put out enough nurses."

Pay is one factor among several, she said, and not necessarily the chief factor. "Pay is always important to people and it always matters," she said. "Staying competitive to the local market is really important."

They focus on the local market, she said. For registered nurses, West Virginia can't compete with California, for instance — first in hourly wage at $66.20 and adjusted for COL at $49.22.

Just as important is how they're treated and the work environment, Heuston said.

With that in mind, she said, WVU within the past two years has revised the clinical ladder to increase nurses' pay while allowing them to keep taking care of patients.

The clinical ladder has six steps of increases built on experience, responsibilities and education. "You don't want a nurse to feel as though they need to leave bedside care to get an increase in salary."

Like other systems, WVU relies on contract nurses to fill the gaps. Part of that is good news — the system is growing and needs more nurses.

Meanwhile, the Center for Nursing Education is one way WVU is building its own supply. As previously reported, there are people who've wanted to be nurses but weren't able to go to school for various reasons, Heuston said, including money and time. The new school is designed to break down those barriers.

The center will have a tuitionless option. Even with tuition waivers, nursing students still have fees, uniform and book costs. At the center, all of those costs will be covered if the students agree to a three-year work commitment with WVU Medicine.

Another factor in the nurse shortage is a faculty shortage, Heuston said. "I think a lot of that is pay related." Academia typically doesn't pay as well as the private sector.

The nurse shortage is chiefly in acute care hospitals — mostly the medical/surgical areas, she said. "Nurses have more options today than they've ever had in the 40 years I've been a nurse. ... The places where nurses are is endless." They can work remotely, or for an insurance company, or advance to nurse practitioner, or many other options.

After talking about the barrier-breaking of the new school, Heuston talked a bit about other barriers to entering nursing. She cited the work of Peter Buerhaus, a nurse, healthcare economist and author.

One of his points, she said, is that social media, with its penchant for emphasizing the negative side of just about everything, has not been good for nursing. And today's culture doesn't provide opportunities for high school students to get an introduction — such as the candy strippers some Baby Boomers and Gen Xers might remember.

"We've got to figure out ways to shine a light on how wonderful nursing is so people can go into it," she said.

One way WVU Medicine is doing that, she said, is through its Aspiring Nurse Program. The program offers financial and human-centered support to nursing students enrolled at select schools in West Virginia and neighboring states. This helps not only WVU, but other nursing schools fill their open seats, and helps the students have access to the education they want and need.

Under the program, the students can receive up to $5,000 per semester, twice a year, for a total $25,000 for the duration of their nursing education, in exchange for a three-year work commitment in the WVU Health System. There are now 200 students in the program, she said.

Mon Health Medical Center did not have anyone available to talk about nursing in time for this report.

3 Alabama men die after becoming distressed while swimming at Florida beach

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY BEACH, Fla. — Three Alabama men have died from likely drowning after becoming distressed while swimming at a Florida Panhandle beach, authorities said Saturday morning.

The young men had traveled to the Panama City Beach area Friday evening, the Bay County Sheriff's Office said in a Facebook post.

The sheriff's office received an emergency call about the distressed swimmers shortly after 8 p.m., officials said. The U.S. Coast Guard and others began rescue efforts. The men, who were not immediately identified, were found separately and eventually pronounced dead at local hospitals.

Earlier this week, single red flags had been posted at the beach, indicating high-hazard surf and rip current conditions.

On Thursday, a Pennsylvania couple visiting Florida with their six children drowned after they were caught in a rip current while swimming. The man and woman were caught in the current on Hutchinson Island, along Florida's southeast coast, the Martin County Sheriff's Office said in a Facebook post.

SEOUL, South Korea — A nuclear-powered U.S. aircraft carrier arrived Saturday in South Korea for a three-way exercise involving Japan as they step up military training to cope with North Korean threats, which have escalated following a security pact with Russia.

The arrival of the USS Theodore Roosevelt strike group in Busan came a day after South Korea summoned the Russian ambassador to protest a major deal between Russian President Vladimir Putin and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un this week.

The agreement pledges mutual defense assistance in the event of war. South Korea says the deal poses a threat to its security and warned that it could consider sending arms to Ukraine to help fight off the Russian invasion as a response — a move that would surely ruin its relations with Moscow.

Following a meeting between their defense chiefs in Singapore earlier in June, the United States, South Korea and Japan announced the Freedom Edge drills.

The Roosevelt strike group will participate in the exercise that is expected to start within June. South Korea's military didn't immediately confirm specific details of the training.

3 dead in bombing of Kharkiv as Russia launches missiles on Ukrainian energy facilities

Associated Press

KYIV, Ukraine — At least three people were killed in a Russian bombing attack on Ukraine's second city, Kharkiv, on Saturday afternoon, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said.

Another 38 people were wounded in the attack, Kharkiv Mayor Ihor Terekhov said. Four aerial bombs were launched against the city, damaging residential buildings, shops and public transport stops, said Kharkiv regional Gov. Oleh Syniehubov. He said that four of the wounded were in serious condition.

"This Russian terror with guided aerial bombs must and can be stopped. Bold decisions from our partners are needed so that we can destroy Russian terrorists and Russian combat aircraft where they are," Zelenskyy wrote on the messaging app Telegram.

Zelenskyy said last month that Ukraine still urgently needs at least seven more Patriot missile systems to fend off Russian strikes against the power grid and civilian areas, as well as military targets, with devastating glide bombs that wreak wide destruction.

Russia has also continued to target Ukraine's energy infrastructure with a new barrage of missiles and drones overnight, officials in Kyiv said. The attacks damaged energy facilities in the southeast and west and injured at least two workers.

Ukraine is struggling with a new wave of rolling blackouts after relentless Russian attacks on energy infrastructure that started three months ago took out half the country's power generation capacity. Ukraine's air defenses intercepted 12 of the 16 missiles and all 13 drones launched by Russia, the air force said.

State-owned power grid operator Ukrenergo said the strikes damaged equipment at facilities in southeastern Zaporizhzhia and the western Lviv region. Two energy workers were injured in Zaporizhzhia when a fire broke out at an energy facility, according to regional Gov. Ivan Fedorov.

With no major changes reported along the 1,000-kilometer (600-mile) front line, where a recent push by the Kremlin's forces in eastern and northeastern Ukraine has made only incremental gains, both sides have taken aim at infrastructure targets, seeking to curb each other's ability to fight in a war that is now in its third year.

Moscow's overnight attack on Zaporizhzhia and Lviv follows Ukrainian military strikes on three oil refineries in southern Russia overnight into Friday.

Air defenses destroyed five drones over the Sea of Azov and the country's western Bryansk and Smolensk regions, the Russian Ministry of Defense said. A man was killed in shelling of Russia's Belgorod region, which borders Ukraine, according to regional Gov. Vyacheslav Gladkov.

The governor of eastern Ukraine's partly occupied Donetsk region said Saturday that Russian attacks had killed five people and wounded seven the previous day.

In the Russia-controlled part of the region, Moscow-installed Gov. Denis Pushilin said three people were killed and four were injured in shelling by Ukrainian forces Saturday morning.

A policeman was killed in the partly occupied region of Kherson as a result of a Russian drone attack on a checkpoint, the Ukrainian National Police said.

Rescuers find family of 6 dead in landslide in eastern China, as severe weather warning extended

Associated Press

BEIJING — A family of six was found dead by rescuers in Fujian province, state media reported Saturday, adding to the extreme weather deaths after downpours caused landslides in the area, even as authorities extended a warning of more severe weather ahead.

The six people, who had previously been reported missing, were found dead in a temple near their home by rescuers after days of searching in Fujian's Shanghang county, according to the state-backed Hongxing news. They had gone to the temple seeking shelter, as it was on higher ground, but the building was toppled by a landslide, killing the family.

Authorities on Friday had said 47 people were dead in neighboring Guangdong province, which has seen historic flooding caused by the rains. The weather damaged more than a hundred bridges and flooded farmland, and destroyed roads connecting rural townships.

The heaviest rains were from Sunday into Tuesday, toppling trees and collapsing homes, and authorities estimated billions of dollars in damage.

History, in layers of heart and geography

African-American sojourners, especially, gravitated to the southern coal fields here.

In the Mine Wars era, more than 60,000 Blacks lived in the Mountain State, with 20% or so population toiling underground in the mines.

Over the years, that population has dwindled — especially in Mingo County.

The Mingo County Black History Project fronted by the museum wants to give voice to a population that shouldered the weight of a double sociological slight, due to pigment and place.

It's about mining, said Lloyd Tomlinson, a history professor who also serves as the museum's education coordinator, but it will also center on those pioneering Black families who chose to make their stand in Mingo.

"We want to talk to the families who have been here for generations."

The descendants of slaves. The great-great grandchildren of those early Alabama miners.

Oral histories will be recorded, compiled and housed in the museum and at the West Virginia and Regional History Center at WVU.

"A lot of the people we want to interview are in their 80s and 90s," Tomlinson said.

"It's especially important that we gather their stories while we can."

Francene Jones agrees. Jones, who is Black, grew up in Matewan and still lives there.

Her father was the first Black mayor in town history.

Other relatives owned businesses that managed to generate profits and cultivate customers — despite Jim Crow.

She is also on the museum's board of directors.

West Virginia history, for her, is as faceted and textured as a grandma's quilt.

It's the encompassing of Black history and coal mining history, she said — and it's all interwoven, like that quilt, with tales of tenacity and bravery, in the face of corporate cruelty.

Courage, for the cause

Tales of those aforementioned working conditions from the Mine Wars period alone could fill whole volumes in single-subject libraries.

Safety watchers and labor analysts had formulated at grim analogy by the early 1920s.

If you had a choice, they said then, of spending a day on a World War I battlefield or in the maw of a West Virginia coal mine — you would have been statistically safer taking your chances up top.

Even with the bullets, bombs and mustard gas.

Progressivism in Mingo County, however shone through.

Frank Ingham, a Black miner who lived in Williamson, was elected by his co-workers to serve as a delegate at the upstart UMWA national convention — which almost killed him.

Ingham was beaten and left for dead by a handful of sheriff's deputies in neighboring McDowell County for refusing to renounce the union.

He would later testify before U.S. senators on Capitol Hill about the working conditions in and around the mines.

In Kanawha County, a miner reportedly died trying to shield his wife from bullets as company guards strafed a tent city occupied by miners striking over the same.

Once, during a memorable rally in that same county, Mother Jones, the fiery union organizer from Ireland, held up a certain article of clothing.

It was blood-soaked, with a bullet hole.

"This is first time I ever saw a goddamned mine guard's coat decorated to suit me," she hissed in her brogue.

The war to end all wars?

In Matewan, in 1920, simmering anger between labor and management of the Stone Mountain Coal Co., blew — like a spark in a methane-choked mine shaft.

Seven detectives hired by the company were killed in the shootout, along with two miners and Cabell Testerman, Matewan's mayor.

Then came Blair Mountain, a year later, in Logan County, in the aftermath of that same lethal dispute.

Bullets snapped the air, breaking branches and kicking dirt.

Biplanes droned overhead, dropping pipe bombs.

Many of the miners on the ground had fought on those battlefields in World War I, upon which they were statistically safer.

For them, it was the Argonne Forest, all over again.

President Warren G. Harding would eventually summon 2,100 U.S. Army troops and a squadron of U.S. Army Service planes to quell it.

The miners who were combat veterans couldn't stomach the thought of firing on active-duty soldiers.

From Mother Jones to Francene Jones, a battle was lost, but the United Mine Workers of America won the war.

"Many died in the mines and in the efforts to unionize," the daughter of Matewan's mayor said.

"Only through the unity of all miners and their families were they victorious."

Looking for the Fountain of Youth? Try the gym and weight-resistance training

Shigeo Takahashi, 83, uses a pec deck machine as he works out at the Fukagawa Sports Center in Tokyo, June 12. If you are getting up there in years, weight-resistance training might deliver unexpected benefits.

Associated Press

TOKYO — Here's the message from Dr. Marcas Bamman, a physiologist with decades of research into aging who preaches the benefits of weight-resistance training for those who are getting up there.

We're talking 60-plus — women and men. And we're talking about hitting the gym and weight training. Don't be put off, Bamman says.

"Resistance training is in many ways the true fountain of youth," Bamman said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I like to say the fountain of youth is the water cooler in the gym."

Of course, there are biological limits. But Bamman says the bulk of age-related decline in strength, flexibility and endurance is behavioral — putting too few demands on the body, not too many.

"When I tell somebody that in four to six months your strength and muscle mass and overall muscle function is going to elevate to the levels of people 30 to 35 years younger, that hits home," he said.

So you know you're too sedentary and the birthdays keep piling up. You suspect resistance training would be beneficial. But perhaps you're intimidated. Don't be.

Getting started

Check with medical professionals to make sure there are no health problems that stand in your way.

Then find a gym. Larger gyms offer a social component with things to do on a day off from weight training. And Bamman suggests getting a trainer.

"It's actually quite safe, but it does require proper progression," Bamman said. "You have to have a good instructor who can teach the movements properly."

Bamman, a research scientist at the Florida Institute for Human & Machine Cognition, said finding a fully qualified trainer can be tricky.

"We need more rigorous certification of trainers," he said. "The problem is that you can go online tonight and pay $50 and get some certification as a trainer."

Done and dusted in an hour

Bamman suggests resistance training twice a week. Three times is even better, and he recommends non-weight-training days in between. For instance, work out on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and let Tuesday and Thursday be days of rest.

He suggests 10 different exercise movements — eight is sufficient. Do 10 repetitions of each movement. Do this three times, described as three sets. Then move on to the next movement.

When you reach the 10th repetition, you should feel you can't do many more. If you could have done 10 more reps, you might want to increase the resistance.

Bamman says machines are better for beginners, but free weights — barbells or dumbbells — may be more effective as you gain confidence.

Before the weights, start with a 5-10 minute warmup — on the treadmill, stationary bike or elliptical machine — to get the blood flowing. You can add a few minutes on the mat for stretching and abdominal work.

Then come the weights. "Sometimes you see people who sit on the machine, do a set and then play with their phone for three or four minutes. We like to keep them moving."

Women may benefit even more than men. Women may benefit from resistance training even more than men because it's a way to fight osteoporosis, the loss of bone density.

"Women are on a disadvantaged trajectory for bone loss, particularly in susceptible areas such as the hips and lower back," said Bamman, who completed his doctorate at the University of Florida College of Medicine.

"But the strength-training benefits for both sexes are really important. There are no sex differences in the ability to respond. In gaining muscle mass and strength in untrained people, men and women track the same."

Yasuko Kuroi is 72 and started resistance training about 20 years ago.

"I saw the men in the gym and thought I could do that, too," she said, speaking at a municipal recreation center in Tokyo.

Trump endorses Ten Commandments in schools, implores evangelical Christians to vote in November

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Donald Trump told a group of evangelicals they "cannot afford to sit on the sidelines" of the 2024 election, imploring them at one point to "go and vote, Christians, please!"

Trump also endorsed displaying the Ten Commandments in schools and elsewhere while speaking to a group of politically influential evangelical Christians in Washington on Saturday. He drew cheers as he invoked a new law signed in Louisiana this week requiring the Ten Commandments to be displayed in every public school classroom.

"Has anyone read the 'Thou shalt not steal'? I mean, has anybody read this incredible stuff? It's just incredible," Trump said at the gathering of the Faith & Freedom Coalition. "They don't want it to go up. It's a crazy world."

Trump a day earlier posted an endorsement of the new law on his social media network, saying: "I LOVE THE TEN COMMANDMENTS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS, PRIVATE SCHOOLS, AND MANY OTHER PLACES, FOR THAT MATTER. READ IT — HOW CAN WE, AS A NATION, GO WRONG???"

The former president and presumptive Republican presidential nominee backed the move as he seeks to galvanize his supporters on the religious right, which has fiercely backed him after initially being suspicious of the twice-divorced New York City tabloid celebrity when he first ran for president in 2016.

That support has continued despite his conviction in the first of four criminal cases he faces, in which a jury last month found him guilty of falsifying business records for what prosecutors said was an attempt to cover up a hush money payment to porn actor Stormy Daniels just before the 2016 election. Daniels claims she had a sexual encounter with Trump a decade earlier, which he denies.

Trump's stated opposition to signing a nationwide ban on abortion and his reluctance to detail some of his views on the issue are at odds with many members of the evangelical movement, a key part of Trump's base that's expected to help him turn out voters in his November rematch with Democratic President Joe Biden.

But while many members of the movement would like to see him do more to restrict abortion, they cheer him as the greatest champion for the cause because of his role in appointing U.S. Supreme Court justices who overturned national abortion rights in 2022.

Trump highlighted that Saturday, saying, "We did something that was amazing," but the issue would be left to people to decide in the states.

"Every voter has to go with your heart and do what's right, but we also have to get elected," he said.

While he still takes credit for the reversal of Roe v.

Wade, Trump has also warned abortion can be tricky politically for Republicans. For months, he deferred questions about his position on a national ban.

Last year, when Trump addressed the Faith & Freedom Coalition, he said there was "a vital role for the federal government in protecting unborn life" but didn't offer any details beyond that.

In April of this year, Trump said he believed the issue should now be left to the states. He later stated in an interview that he would not sign a nationwide ban on abortion if it was passed by Congress. He has still declined to detail his position on women's access to the abortion pill mifepristone.

About two-thirds of Americans say abortion should generally be legal, according to polling last year by The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research.

Attendees at the evangelical gathering on Saturday said that while they'd like to see a national abortion ban, Trump isn't losing any of their deep support.

"I would prefer if he would sign a national ban," said Jerri Dickinson, a 78-year-old retired social worker and Faith & Freedom member from New Jersey. "I understand though, that as in accordance with the Constitution, that decision should be left up to the states."

Yemen's Houthi rebels target ship in the Gulf of Aden as the Eisenhower aircraft carrier heads home

Associated Press

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — An attack by Yemen's Houthi rebels targeted a commercial ship traveling through the Gulf of Aden but apparently caused no damage, authorities said Saturday, in the latest strike on the shipping lane by the group.

The Houthi attack comes after the sinking this week of the ship Tutor, which marked what appears to be a new escalation by the Iranian-backed Houthis in their campaign of strikes on ships in the vital maritime corridor over the Israel-Hamas war in the Gaza Strip.

Meanwhile, the U.S. military ordered the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower, the aircraft carrier leading America's response to the Houthi attacks, to return home after a twice-extended tour.

The captain of the ship targeted late Friday saw "explosions in the vicinity of the vessel," the British military's United Kingdom Maritime Trade Operations center said. A later briefing by the U.S.-overseen Joint Maritime Information Center said the vessel initially reported two explosions off its port side and a third one later.

"The vessel was not hit and sustained no damage," the center said. "The vessel and crew are reported to be safe and are proceeding to their next port of call."

The Houthis, who have held Yemen's capital, Sanaa, since 2014, claimed the attack Saturday night. Brig. Gen. Yahya Saree, a Houthi military spokesman, identified the vessel targeted as the bulk carrier Transworld Navigator.

The Houthis have launched more than 60 attacks targeting specific vessels and fired off their missiles and drones in their campaign that has killed a total of four sailors. They have seized one vessel and sunk two since November. A U.S.-led airstrike campaign has targeted the Houthis since January, with a series of strikes May 30 killing at least 16 people and wounding 42 others, the rebels say.

In March, the Belize-flagged Rubymar carrying fertilizer became the first to sink in the Red Sea after taking on water for days following a rebel attack.

The Houthis have maintained that their attacks target ships linked to Israel, the United States or Britain. However, many of the ships attacked have little or no connection to the Israel-Hamas war.

The Eisenhower, based in Norfolk, Va., is returning home after an over eight-month deployment in combat that the Navy says is its most intense since World War II. The San Diego-based USS Theodore Roosevelt will take the Eisenhower's place after a scheduled exercise in the Indo-Pacific, according to the Pentagon's press secretary, Maj. Gen. Pat Ryder.

OBITUARIES

More obituaries. Page A-9

On June 14, 2024, R. Ivan “Doc P” Pinnell embarked on his next great adventure to where the salmon are endless, the elk play hide and seek and many friends, family and beloved pets awaited him.

Friends and family will gather in Morgantown on Tuesday, June 25, at the Fred L. Jenkins Funeral Home from 5-8 p.m. and in Evans, Jackson County, on Thursday, June 27, at the Casto Funeral Home, from 5-8 p.m.

Burial with full military honors will be in Arlington National Cemetery at a later date.

Ivan was born Feb. 16, 1943, in Grafton, and grew up in Millwood, where he was a member of FFA (Future Farmers of America) and 4-H. He graduated from Ravenswood High School in 1961. His love for the outdoors and the state was instilled while growing up on the farm and in small-town West Virginia.

He went on to higher education at Potomac State College (WVU), West Virginia University and then Jacksonville (Ala.) State University, to earn his BS in journalism and MS in political science, respectively. Ivan furthered his education with a PhD in speech communication from the University of Denver, Colo. Unknowingly at the time, this PhD would become the basis for his nickname given by his students later in life.

Those who only knew Ivan late in life may not know he had two distinct careers in the service of others, the first in the military and the other as faculty at West Virginia University.

Ivan entered Army basic training at Fort Dix, N.J., in April 1968, a tumultuous time in the U.S. and world, and retired in June 1989 as a lieutenant colonel. His military career spanned the world over 22 years, including serving with the 101st Airborne Division, Camp Eagle, Vietnam; 8th Infantry Division, Germany; 197th Infantry Division in Georgia; U.S. Space Command/NORAD in Colorado, where he enjoyed tracking Santa every Christmas and talking to children from around the world. During his years in the Army his roles included infantryman, public information officer and faculty at both the United States Air Force Academy and the Defense Information School. His military awards include the Bronze Star, Defense Meritorious Service Medal with 3rd Oak Leaf cluster, Air Medal and Joint Services Commendation Medal.

After retirement from the Army, Ivan embarked on his next adventure shaping the education of young adults attending West Virginia University’s Perley Isaac Reed School of Journalism and returning to his roots in West Virginia, the state he loved since childhood. “Doc P” was a primary figure in the School of Journalism, chairing the Public Relations Program from 1989-2010 and serving as associate dean from 1991-2007. Throughout a nearly 25-year tenure, his passion and energy for the students and program were contagious and he was beloved by students and faculty alike. Ivan had a focus on common sense and practicality in life and the classroom.

R. Ivan Pinnell

He strongly felt that “my job is to make you think” and that is exactly what he did as a professor. He also believed “No matter the task or assignment given to you, approach it with a positive attitude — and try to enjoy it. That is true of life, and laughter is a part of that.”

Thoughtful discussion was a keystone of his classes and he excelled at drawing it out of his students. Educating about life as well as course material was his goal. He had an open-door policy outside the classroom, at both his cluttered office and his secondary office behind the J-School with his pipe, where he always welcomed conversations across all facets of life.

The relationships he built and lifelong friendships he cultivated with students, resulted in many of them making a pilgrimage to visit “Doc P.” Ivan especially was delighted when these former students introduced him to their families and the next generation of WVU freshmen. A faculty colleague once noted, “I often thought that every student should have a professor like Ivan at least once in their lives.”

To say Ivan enjoyed the outdoors is an understatement. His hunting and fishing trips out in the U.S. West in the lower 48 and Alaska are legendary. He looked forward to sharing those with his friends and daughter, Becky, who enjoyed them as much as Ivan. Friends who didn’t get to share in the trips, shared in the spoils that came back as elk and salmon steaks since Ivan was also an excellent cook. Although well-known for his hunting and fishing adventures, he was also an avid gardener and artist whose talents included sketching, painting, stained glass, mosaics and weaving. These talents blossomed in retirement yielding beautiful works. As an acquaintance once said, “He can go out and hunt and be the macho type and he can be the sensitive kind working with his hands to create a work of art.” Ivan was a true renaissance man.

Ivan was preceded in death by his parents Roger Owen Pinnell and Julie Gail (Kiser) Pinnell. He was also preceded by Mr. Visitor, the cat that changed his perspective on cats and became his trusted sidekick and garden buddy, and his beloved bulldogs — Edith Ann, Dickens, MG and Brandi.

He is survived by his wife of 52 years, Margaret “Margy” M. (Housholder) Pinnell, daughter Rebecca “Becky” L. Pinnell, his sister Latricia A. (Pinnell) McCoy “Trish,” whom Ivan named, and husband Roger; nieces and their significant others Stacy Raines and Steve Batten, Julie and Josh Quesenberry, and Samantha and Adam Canter. He will also be missed by his brother-in-law Robert “Bob” L. Housholder, Guffy (bulldog) and Abby (cat).

Doc P loved life and most importantly his family and friends who filled it along the way.

Please take a moment today to smile about something that reminds you of Ivan.

If you wish to honor Ivan by making a charitable contribution — Tunnel to Towers at t2t.org or Reed College of Media – Graduate Scholarships <http://give.wvu.edu/reed>.

Virginia Alexander

Virginia Liberatore Alexander, 96, of Morgantown, passed away peacefully at her home surrounded by family on June 20, 2024.

She was born May 30, 1928, at the family home, daughter of the late Damian “Danny” and Teresa Bologna Liberatore, Italian immigrants from Abruzzo, Italy.

She is survived by her children Michael (Sue) Alexander, Patrick (Oecania) Alexander, Paulette Culton, all from Morgantown, and Amy (Harry) Bracy of Columbia, S.C.; her grandchildren, Kristian Haines, Joshua (Stephanie) Alexander, Christopher (Caitlyn) Alexander, Samantha (Kevin) Salazar, Amanda Freels (Brad Heather), Angelo Soliveras, Emily (Paul) Lanphier, Annie Schenzel, Tyler (Jaclyn) Schenzel, Turner (Jade) Schenzel, Grant Culton (Rhianna), Garrett Culton, Bailey Colquitt and Sydney Colquitt, as well as 18 great-grandchildren.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by her husband of 73-years, Emil Paul Alexander; their daughter, Theresa Alexander Schenzel; son-in-law, Tyler August Schenzel; son-in-law, Dean Culton; and her brothers, Mumfred “Mundy,” Mario (Mir) and Arthur Liberatore.

Virginia graduated from Morgantown High School in 1946 and worked in the family grocery store, where she occasionally made grocery deliveries to neighbors herself. She spent several years caring for her ailing mother and aunt.

Virginia was always a caregiver at heart! She later joined WVU as the assistant to the dean in the Math Department. She finished her career at the WVU football office, where she found her second family through her love of football and WVU.

She was a member of the Red Hats Society and Catholic Daughters, loved traveling, attending WVU football games and traveling with the team to bowl games, and enjoyed playing LCR and “winning” her family’s money. She loved coupons and enjoyed a good sale! She usually had pizzelles in her purse for the special people in her life or for a good bribe!

Her most cherished role was that of wife and mother as she devoted her life to raising her five children. She was cooking or baking to show her love in that traditional Italian way ... food! The first thing she would ask anyone who walked in her house was “Are you hungry, do you want something to eat?” Even asking, “Did he eat?” moments after Dad took his last breath.

Friends and family will be received at St. Mary Roman Catholic Church, 3346 University Ave., Morgantown, on Monday, June 24, from 2-6 p.m. and again on Tuesday, June 25, from 10 a.m. until the Mass of Christian Burial at 11 a.m., with the Rev. Father John McDonough as celebrant. A committal service will follow at Beverly Hills Memorial Gardens.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in her memory to St. Ursula Food Pantry Outreach, P.O. Box 18, Pursglove, WV 26546 or Pantry Plus More, 9 Rousch Drive, Morgantown, WV 26501.

Hastings Funeral Home has been entrusted with arrangements.

Debra Lamp

Debra Ann Lamp, age 57, passed away peacefully on June 20, 2024, in her hometown of Morgantown, where she was also born on June 7, 1967.

Debra’s journey through life was marked with love, joy and the cherished company of friends and family. She was the beloved wife of Jesse James Lamp III, with whom she shared 40 blissful years, a partnership characterized by mutual respect and endless affection.

Debra was a caring twin sister to Patricia Gray of Bayard, Grant County, a loving sister to Tina and husband Carl Conrad of Morgantown, and Shelia Alvarez and husband Mario of Virginia, and a dear sister-in-law to Milinda Shumiloff, Randy Lamp and Pam Jacobs, Linda Cunningham, Lillian Gerard, Susan Stallings, and Barbara and Bob Byuse; and a daughter-in-law to Ina Lamp.

Though preceded in death by her parents,

Debra Ann Lamp, age 57, passed away peacefully on June 20, 2024, in her hometown of Morgantown, where she was also born on June 7, 1967.

Richard and Vera Shumiloff Spradlin, and brother Peter Shumiloff, her legacy of warmth lives on through her numerous adored nieces and nephews.

Known for her friendly demeanor, Debra’s presence was a radiant light within her community. Her passion for bingo and knitting was only rivaled by her love for family gatherings weaving tight-knit bonds of affection and laughter.

Debra’s absence leaves a void that cannot be filled. Her memory, however, will forever be etched in the hearts of those who knew her, as a testament to a life lived with open arms and an open heart. She will be deeply missed and lovingly remembered every day.

Friends will be received at McCulla Funeral Home, 770 Fairmont Road, Morgantown, on Monday, June 24, from 6-8 p.m. Visitation will continue on Tuesday, June 25, from 10 a.m. to the 11 a.m. funeral service with Pastor Bill Page officiating. Entombment will follow at Beverly Hills Cemetery, where Debra will be laid to rest.

Former Kingwood librarian, 80, dies

BY JENIFFER GRAHAM
DPNews@DominionPost.com

KINGWOOD — Joel Beane, former head librarian at the Kingwood Public Library died Friday at age 80.

He retired in 2022 after 50 years of service.

During an earlier interview, Beane said he first visited a library with his older sister in his home town in New Jersey. He said after that visit he knew he wanted to be a librarian.

Beane said he was living in Kentucky when he heard there was a job opening at a library in Kingwood.

He said he watched the library change from books, magazines and microfilm to computers, internet and free wireless.

The Kingwood Public Library started in 1872 when a jail and sheriff’s residence was built on the spot where the library now stands. In 1925 the jail was moved to its current location and the library opened in 1941, in the old jail building.

Seven years later, it was moved to the top floor of the present jail building. The old jail building was torn down so the current library could be built. The current Kingwood Public Library opened its doors Sept. 3, 1968. Five years later, Beane became head librarian.

During the interview Beane said he worked a variety of jobs before becoming a librarian — everything from a clam digger to being an interpreter of Spanish for the Air Force.

“Being a librarian is a combination of interests,” he said. “I’m interested in books and in performing a public service. I wanted to help people.”

He also talked about his childhood.

“My father was a pilot and a wizard with anything mechanical. My mother was a seamstress and did a lot of sewing of school costumes for girls,” Beane said. “At one time she trained as a cafeteria operator. My parents were interested in a lot of different things and they kept scrapbooks.”

Beane said his father heard about Block Island, R.I., and wanted to go there. He said the property was called Gunners Hill because it had a small hill in the center of it. He said the kids’ camp there was called Camp Hippocampus, which is Latin for sea horse. The property was later called Harbor Kneck Farm and is now called Beane Point — Block Island National Wildlife Refuge.

“I spent 12 summers there. We’d take a ferry boat to get to the island,” he said. “We’d find bottles with notes in them from the Wood’s Hole Oceanographic Institute. If you wrote back, they could study the ocean current. We kids would send our bottles back and they would send us notes and we’d tell them where the bottles started from. When my parents bought the camp and turned it into a house, I remember seeing the bottom of one of the dishes that was left there. It was made by Carr China Co. in Grafton. Little did I know I would end up in West Virginia one county away from Grafton.”

According to his obituary, Beane was born May 13, 1944, in Orange, N.J.

LOS ANGELES — Taylor Wily, a former sumo wrestler who became known for his role as confidential informant Kamekona Tupuola on both “Hawaii Five-0” and “Magnum P.I.,” has died, his friend and a “Hawaii Five-0” producer both said Friday. He was 56.

“Hawaii Five-0” executive producer Peter M. Lenkov confirmed his death to The Associated Press.

Additional details about the cause remain unknown.

Wily played Kamekona on “Hawaii Five-0” from 2010 through 2020 and became a fan-favorite. He continued in the same role with the reboot of “Magnum P.I.”

Before he began acting, Wily, born Teila Tuli, was a well-known sumo wrestler and UFC 1 fighter. He is survived by his wife, Halona, and their two children.

Danita Britton

Danita Dawn "D.D." Britton, 65, of Kingwood, passed away at her home on Jan. 16, 2024.

Danita was born on Jan. 13, 1959, to the late Douglas W. Britton and Ada Marie Serafino Britton of Rowlesburg.

Danita attended Rowlesburg High School and West Virginia University. She had been living in Phoenix, Ariz., where she worked for the world's busiest 800 number for the Social Security Administration, handling calls from all over the country until moving back to West Virginia in 2019. She loved that her job brought something different every day.

Danita was remarkable for her intelligence, her razor-sharp research skills, inexhaustible command of trivia, wicked sense of humor and her passionate advocacy of animal welfare. She loved books and was a connoisseur of old movies and music from every genre. She was an avid follower of all things involving animals, from tiny kittens to pandas and everything in between. Even though her health prevented her from traveling, she was able to nurture and treasure many, many special friendships all over the world online.

Danita is survived by four siblings, Thresa Bautista, of Kingwood, Alicia (Allan) Timm, of Inman, S.C., Shelia Brown (David), of Kingwood, and Aaron Britton, of Kingwood; beloved nieces and great-nieces and nephew and many cousins.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by a brother-in-law, Leonard Bautista.

Danita was deeply loved and will be very much missed by her family and friends scattered throughout the country.

A Celebration of Life will be held at Kingwood First Presbyterian Church, 104 E. High St., Kingwood, at 1 p.m. on June 29. Private interment will be at Sunset Memorial Gardens in Kingwood.

Roy H. Stanley

Roy H. Stanley, 98, of Morgantown and formerly of Charleston, and Columbus, Ohio, passed away Wednesday morning, June 19, 2024, at Harmony of Morgantown.

He was born April 21, 1926, in Charleston, a son of the late Alphonso and Clara-bell Koontz Stanley.

Roy was a graduate of Dupont High School with the class of 1943. He entered the U.S. Army and served until July 1944 in the European Theatre. After the war, he met and married his wife, Mary Frances Lewis Stanley, who preceded him in death on Feb. 14, 2022, after 75 years of marriage.

Roy worked as a surveyor for Field Engineering in Charleston while attending both West Virginia State and Morris Harvey College at night for seven years, all in order to pass the West Virginia Civil Engineering Exam — which he did in 1962. In 1968, he moved his family to Columbus, Ohio, where Roy was an engineer with Burgess and Niple Co., until his retirement in 1992. After retirement, Roy moved in 2007 to be near his family.

Survivors include his children, Chas Stanley (Anita) of Morgantown, Cheryl Dinan (Russ) of Weaverville, N.C., and Roy A. Stanley of Sarasota, Fla.; seven grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and a sister, Nancy Yahya of Wichita, Kan.

In addition to his parents and wife, he was preceded in death by a sister, Aileen Cordell.

At the request of the family, Roy will be cremated. No public services are scheduled.

The family of Roy and Mary Stanley would like to thank all of the staff at Harmony of Morgantown for the excellent care provided to them both during their time there.

Smith Funeral & Cremation Care and SFCC Crematory of Westover/Morgantown, 304-292-9494, is providing compassionate professional services to the family.

Ronald Althouse

Ronald Clement Althouse, 88, passed away on Monday, April 22, 2024.

Throughout his life, Ron was a music lover. In his teens, Ron studied trumpet at the Curtis Institute of Music and was a regular trumpeter in the eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey jazz circuit.

Later in life, with his playing reduced to rare Friday afternoon impromptu sessions, he became a full-time music aficionado with tastes encompassing an eclectic range of genres and musicians from bebop jazz to Shostakovich to Creedence Clearwater Revival and The Band.

Following his graduation from Allen High School, Ron enlisted in the U.S. Army and began serving in 1954. While stationed at Fort Devens, Mass., he achieved the rank of staff sergeant in the Army Security Agency and was honorably discharged in 1956.

During Ron's time in the Boston area, he met Rochelle Brenner, and the two married in July 1957. Soon after, they moved to State College, Pa., where Ron began his undergraduate studies at Penn State.

After graduation from PSU, he entered the doctoral program in Sociology at the University of Minnesota, where he ultimately received his Ph.D. under the guidance of Don Martindale. After a short stint teaching at Moorhead State in Minnesota, Ron accepted a faculty position in sociology at WVU in 1966 and remained there until his retirement in 2012. During more than four decades at WVU, Ron held the department chair, directed the Survey Research Center, taught courses on sociological theory, published numerous works on coal mining safety and racism in college sports and was active in the West Virginia Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Lastly, Ron genuinely enjoyed conversation. He was equally comfortable discussing institutional inequality, medieval French history, current politics or WVU and Steelers football. He particularly liked talking about his grandchildren.

Ron is survived by Rochelle, his wife of 66 years; two sons, Mark Althouse, of Champaign, Ill., and Aaron Althouse, of Portland, Ore.; as well as daughters-in-law, Anna Mehl and Diana Cruz; and grandchildren Mateo, Dara and Lia.

He was preceded in death by his aforementioned parents and his brother, H. Clair Althouse, of Sunnyvale, Calif.

The Althouse family would like to extend a special thanks to WVU Medicine Hospice for their support and care at the end of Ron's life. A Celebration of Life will be held from 1-2 p.m. on Saturday, June 29, followed by a reception from 2-4 p.m. at the WVU Erickson Alumni Center.

In lieu of flowers donations may be made to the Ron Althouse Honorary Scholarship, WVU Foundation Fund 3Z461: give.wvu.edu/give/415566/#!/donation/check-out).

Adam McGilton

Adam McGilton, age 69, passed away on June 18, 2024, at his home in Morgantown, after a brief illness.

He was born Jan. 13, 1955, in Morgantown to Charles and Pearl McGilton. He was a 1973 graduate of Morgantown High School. He was employed for many years as an electrician, plumber and HVAC technician. Adam was outgoing, funny and enjoyed telling everyone stories from his adventures of attending concerts all over the country in the late 70s. His love for music endured even into his later years as he'd spend much of his days listening to his favorite 70s hits.

Adam McGilton

He is survived by his daughters, Michelle Morris (Steve) of Morgantown and Tammy Galuska (Chad) of Charleston, S.C.; his sister, Charlotte Hawkins of Kingwood; his mother, Pearl McGilton of Morgantown; his nephews, Michael and Kevin Casino of Kingwood; and his grandsons, Evan and Owen Galuska of Charleston, S.C.

He was preceded in death by his father, Charles McGilton.

Family and friends are invited to gather at Fred L. Jenkins Funeral Home on Monday, June 24, 2024, from 11 a.m. until the time of the funeral service at 1p.m. with Pastor Dan Meadows officiating. Following the funeral service, Adam will be laid to rest at East Oak Grove Cemetery.

Edward Austin

Edward William Austin, 88, of Westover, passed away on Thursday, June 20, 2024, at Morgantown Health & Rehabilitation Center.

Ed was born Sept. 9, 1935, in Westover, a son of the late John and Violet Nuce Austin.

Ed was an avid gardener and retired after working for 20 years at East Oak Grove Cemetery. He enjoyed listening to country music and going to the Sagebrush Roundup.

Survivors include his daughter, Tammy Johnson of Morgantown; and his grandchildren, Laura and Jennifer Johnson, both of Morgantown. In addition to his parents, he was also preceded in death by several siblings.

At his request, Ed will be cremated with no services scheduled.

The family wishes to thank the staff of Morgantown Health and Rehabilitation Center for their excellent care and attention to Ed during his time there.

Flooding forces people from homes in Iowa

Associated Press

Floodwaters forced people out of their homes in parts of Iowa, the result of weeks of rain, while much of the United States longed for relief Saturday from yet another round of heat.

Sirens blared at 2 a.m. in Rock Valley, Iowa, population 4,200, where people in hundreds of homes were told to get out as the Rock River could no longer take rain that has slammed the region.

Mayor Kevin Van Otterloo said a state helicopter was on its way to help but was called off when boats were able to reach stranded residents.

Gov. Kim Reynolds declared a disaster for Sioux County, which includes Rock Valley. In drone video posted by the local sheriff, no streets were visible, just roofs and treetops poking above the water.

Elsewhere in the U.S., the grip of heat and humidity continued. The National Weather Service said roughly 15 million people were under a heat warning — the highest level of alert — while another 90 million were under a heat advisory.

Temperatures around 100 degrees Fahrenheit were predicted for Washington, D.C., and Richmond, Va., while Philadelphia; Newark, New Jersey; Columbus, Ohio; and Detroit were bracing for the high 90s.

"We still have this prolonged heat wave across portions of the Ohio Valley and into the Northeast," weather service meteorologist Marc Chenard said. "We get a little bit of relief by early in the week, at least in the eastern U.S., the Northeast, but in general above-normal temperatures are going to cover a large portion of the country even into next week."

Hawaii settles climate change lawsuit from youths

Associated Press

HONOLULU — About two years after 13 children and teens sued Hawaii over the threat posed by climate change, both sides reached a settlement that includes an ambitious requirement to decarbonize the state's transportation system over the next 21 years.

It's another example of a younger generation channeling its frustration with the government's response to the climate crisis into a legal battle.

Navahine v. Hawaii Department of Transportation is the world's first youth-led constitutional climate case addressing climate pollution from the transportation sector, according to statements from both sides.

Circuit Court Judge of the First Circuit John M. Tonaki signed a settlement agreement Thursday between the plaintiffs, who are also represented by another law firm, Earthjustice, and the state of Hawaii and its Department of Transportation.

The lawsuit argued that Hawaii was violating the state constitution by operating a transportation system that harms the climate and infringes upon the right to a clean, healthy environment.

Friendship with a local DJ is still appreciated

DEAR ABBY: As a lonely, mixed-up teenager in the 1980s, I developed a huge crush on a disc jockey at a local radio station. I would call him at least once a night when he was on the air, and he was kind enough to take my calls and speak with me about whatever I wanted to babble about.

My parents hired him to DJ my Sweet Sixteen party and, even though fewer than a dozen kids showed up, he was professional and gracious. The highlight was when he danced with me to "16 Candles." I followed him to radio station events and was basically a general pest. He was nothing but kind.

Now in my mid-50s, I realize I had some undiagnosed mental and social issues throughout my childhood that weren't discussed and dealt with at the time, and I regret much of my behavior back then. The DJ is still involved in radio. He has since married and had children and, while I admit I was a tad jealous when I heard about it, I have grown to be happy for him and his family. He still holds a special place in my heart for being so kind at such a weird time in my life. I never had boyfriends in high school or college. I married the first guy who took a serious interest in me, but he left after seven years and two kids. I want to reach out to the DJ with a letter, thanking him for being there for me when I needed someone to talk and for understanding me even when I didn't understand myself.

I am NOT looking to interfere in his happy life. Should I write and send the letter? — DJ SAVED MY LIFE

DEAR SAVED: That the disc jockey made such a profound difference in your life when you desperately needed support is wonderful. I think it would please him to receive an expression of gratitude all these many years later.

Area author publishes debut novel

Horror book bleeds into the hills of W.Va.

BY TIFFANY MORGAN
DPNews@DominionPost.com

James Toothman, West Virginia native, met his first love in grade-school: writing.

He filled the pages of his wide-ruled notebook with poetry and prose. Into his teen years and beyond, he did some lyrical writing for metal bands.

As of Dec. 21, 2023, Tooth-man has published his debut novel, “Three Sixes and a Forked Tongue or Cold Medicine and a Liar,” through a publishing company in Denver, Colo., known as Millions of Colors Publishing.

Toothman’s novel is based in 1971 in the coal-country backroads of West Virginia.

But before Toothman put pen to paper to a now-published 553-page coming-of-age horror novel, he had to go through a turn of life-changing events.

In September 2017, Toothman witnessed a man run into a three-story fire to kill himself at Burning Man Festival in Nevada. The following month, Toothman had a friend pray over his arthritic hand. As an anti-Christian, Toothman’s beliefs were questioned when his pain went away. The same friend tried to set himself on fire in a suicide attempt. He survived and went back to his home in another state to work on a healthier mental lifestyle.

In December, his mom died at age 52. Before she died, Toothman’s mother — who had always encouraged his writing — said it was his time for him to finally take the next step.

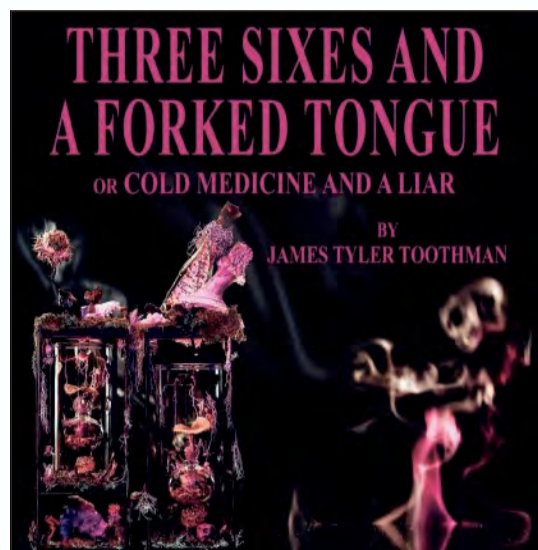

The loss of Toothman’s mom helped ignite him to start the manuscript in the following February.

“Because of [my mother], I put everything I had into it; gave it my absolute all. I like to think it shows,” Toothman said. “I would have written a book eventually but it wouldn’t have been this one. This one took some suffering first.”

Pricilla, the protagonist of the story, was inspired by many characteristics his mother had, “giving her a new life,” he said.

The writing process took up

Maria Deely’s journey from Morgantown to France

BY KARA VAUGHAN
DPNews@DominionPost.com

For Maria Deely, an artist and graduate of Morgantown High School and West Virginia University, art has always been a central part of her life.

Influenced early on by her art teacher at St. Francis Central Catholic School, Nora Sheets, and her aunt, fine artist Carol Oldenburg, Maria’s passion for creativity was reignited in high school thanks to her art teacher, Sam Brunett.

“After that point, I dove into my artwork, and the rest is history,” Deely said.

Graduating from WVU with a Bachelor of Fine Arts, Deely launched her art business, Deely Drawings, in 2019. Since then, she has traveled the world, capturing her adventures and memories through her artwork.

Recently, Deely completed an artist residency at Chateau d’Orquevaux in Orquevaux, France.

What it means to have astigmatism

THE DAY I GOT MY FIRST PAIR OF GLASSES, everything suddenly sharpened; I could see all these details and signs I hadn’t realized were blurry. Other than being nearsighted, I had also found out I had astigmatism.

The outer layer of our eye consists of the cornea. The cornea is transparent and covers the iris and pupil. The iris is the colored part of our eye, it’s what indicates whether we’re blue-eyed or brown-eyed. It’s also the muscle that controls the size of our pupils: when we’re in a dark environment, the iris will cause our pupils to dilate to try to get more light in, and when we’re in a bright environment, our pupils contract to limit the amount of light from coming in.

Thus, our pupils are just holes at the center of the irises. They are black because the light rays that enter the pupil are absorbed by the tissues within our eyes (meaning nothing is reflected back for us to detect any kind of color from the pupils).

Behind the pupil and iris is the lens. The lens bends and focuses the light entering the pupil. It shapes itself, refracting the light and having it converge onto the retina (located at the back of our eye). This aids in letting us see objects at different distances. The lens is made up of mostly proteins and is transparent, allowing light to enter the rest of the eye. Because the lens is convex (curved outwards), the image that’s formed on the retina is upside down and left to right (i.e. inverted and reversed).

The retina then turns the light entering the eye into electrical signals and these signals are sent back up to the brain. The brain rights the image and puts it in the correct direction, allowing us to perceive the

Mon Health hosts pinning ceremony for WVJC Mon Scholars

Mon Health System

Mon Health System held a pinning ceremony for West Virginia Junior College (WVJC) students and Mon Scholars at Mon Health Medical Center this past week.

Mon Health System and WVJC entered into a partnership in April 2022 to create the WVJC School of Nursing at Mon Health, serving healthcare needs of north-central West Virginia.

The Mon Health Scholars program provides WVJC School of Nursing students with financial resources for tuition, books and academic fees. Nursing students complete their didactic coursework through WVJC's online platform and satisfy most of their lab and clinical rotations within the Mon Health System network.

Forty-five students were awarded certificates of acceptance as Mon Scholars and given the opportunity to be hired as externs, patient care technicians and clinical assistants while in nursing school.

Additionally, all Mon Scholars are guaranteed job placement with Mon Health as a registered nurse upon graduation.

"Mon Health is thrilled to support the next generation of nurses through our partnership with West Virginia Junior College. Our Mon Scholars program is not only an investment in the education of these dedicated students, but also in the future of healthcare in north-central West Virginia," said Lotoya Henry-Ojughana, system director of Talent Acquisition at Mon Health System. "We are proud to offer these students a seamless transition from education to employment, ensuring they have the resources, experience and support they need to succeed in their nursing careers. Congratulations to all the students who were pinned. We look forward to welcoming you into the Mon Health family."

Scott's Run Settlement House to hold community open house at new location

DPNews@DominionPost.com

Scott's Run Settlement House (SRSH) is holding a community celebration open house from noon-1:30 p.m. July 13 at the new Fairchance Road facility, 750 Fairchance Road in Morgantown.

This event will recognize the rich history of SRSH, the current programs helping county residents, and guests can see everything the new facility has to offer.

"This new Fairchance Road location is a testament to the over 100-year relationship between the West Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church and SRSH. We are extremely grateful to both the Conference and Cheat Lake United Methodist Church leadership coming together to allow this move to happen. It really is a transformational gift for the organization and for Monongalia County," said Executive Director Michael Richard.

This SRSH's celebration is open to the public and anyone who has been a part of the Settlement House or has been helped by SRSH is encouraged to attend.

Leaders from the West Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church, the Mon Valley District and local church representatives will be offering remarks, blessings and prayer to officially dedicate the building. Tours and refreshments will be available following the celebration for anyone interested. Those attending are also asked to consider bringing a non-perishable food item for the food pantry. Parking will be available on site and the event is free to attend.

"Scott's Run Settlement House has been known in our county for over 100 years as a place to turn when neighbors find themselves facing hard times. No matter your area of need, we want anyone struggling to reach out to us. We have several programs to assist, and if we don't cover a particular area of need, we will do our best to connect you with the right assistance. This new location will ensure we can continue to serve for decades to come," said Jessica Bright, SRSH Board of Directors president.

If you need assistance or would like to learn how you can help, reach out by phone at 304-599-5020 or on the website at srsh.org.

Scott's Run Settlement House provides services for those in Monongalia County finding themselves in economic hardship. Scott's Run tries to address the root cause of why community members need help, and then create a customized approach for each need. From resource referral to informational assistance, SRSH does more than just provide food to those in need. Coordinated programs include a food pantry, a backpack feeding program, senior food boxes, various seasonal outreach programs and a free weekly farmers market. The food pantry includes canned, frozen and fresh food and personal items, baby items such as diapers, school supplies and pet food. Scott's Run partners with the United Women in Faith, the United Way of Mon and Preston Counties, the Mountaineer Food Bank and Empty Bowls Monongalia.

When Dan (Keith Kupferer), a middle-aged construction worker, wanders into a community theater rehearsal for Romeo and Juliet, he has no idea that his life is about to change. He is dealing with distraction and rage at his job. His daughter Daisy (Katherine Mullen Kupferer) is struggling at school, and his wife Sharon (Tara Mullen) is trying to hold their family together, while Dan just leaves when confronted with conflict. Through his work with this group, he is able to connect with himself and, ultimately, with his wife and daughter in a way he has been unable to for a long time.

"Ghostlight" is a beautiful, life-affirming movie about the power of community to heal. I don't want to say too much about the plot because the way the story unfolds is incredibly powerful and benefits from unfurling at the pace that writer O'Sullivan sets. But while this film deals with some difficult and heavy subject matter, it does so in a way that will leave you grateful to have experienced it with this family.

The performances from real-life family members Keith Kupferer, Katherine Kupferer, and Tara Mullen are breathtaking. The anger, pain, exhaustion and love all feel incredibly real, no doubt due to their off-screen relationships. The rest of the supporting cast members do an exceptional job playing amateur actors. Everything about this film feels deeply human.

The way the full depth of the story reveals itself is genuinely lovely. We know from early in the film that this family has experienced some kind of loss, but the way we are granted access to it feels organic and powerful. Bring your tissues to this film — only the most hard-hearted will come out unscathed. The most open-hearted may find themselves looking for a local community theater group to join.

A ghostlight in a theater is a single bare bulb that remains lit at all times. It is there primarily to provide some kind of illumination so that someone walking into a room won't fall in the pit or hurt themselves by tripping over chairs. Superstitions suggest that they are there to allow the ghosts of the past a way to continue to perform when no one is around.

Regardless of what they're actually for, ghostlights exist as a way to help people who are stuck in the dark. If you feel stuck in the dark, perhaps the movie "Ghostlight" is for you.

world through our sense of sight.

A lot of things can affect this deceptively simple process, one thing being the shape of our eye. If our eyes are too short (hyperopia), the light that's refracted ends up focusing behind the retina and causes objects that are closer to us to appear blurry and objects that are further away to appear more clear. If our eyes are too long (myopia), the light refracts in front of the retina (rather than on it), causing further objects to be blurry and closer objects to be clearer.

When we're born, we're typically hyperopic. As we grow older, our eyeballs lengthen until they become spherical. However, our eyeballs can keep growing, forming a more football-like shape, and causing myopia.

The recent increase of myopia among the population is most likely due to the lack of sunlight our eyes receive. When our eyes encounter sunlight, they release dopamine. The release of this neurotransmitter decreases the progression of myopia. Because people have been spending so much time indoors (be it for school, work, doing homework, or on their screens), their eyes have been experiencing much less sunlight.

Astigmatism has to do with the shape of the lens of our eyes. If the lens has an irregular shape, light is refracted unevenly (versus in the eyes of someone with a normal lens, the light would be refracted more uniformly). For individuals with astigmatism, the uneven refraction of light results in many different focal points in front of, behind, or on the retina. This causes objects that are both close by and further away to be blurry and essentially, light scatters and focuses at different points. This causes light rays to appear spread out, forming streaks, which can be especially prominent during nighttime driving. Astigmatism is mostly genetic, there doesn't seem to be environmental factors that cause it.

Understanding how the shape of our eyes/lens causes such significant changes is vital in understanding visual perception.

to five years of drafting and an additional two years of editing.

As for his writing method, Toothman did not plot anything ahead of time when he was laying out the bones for his novel.

"I'm always writing, so some of the dialogue and things came from writings written before I conceptualized this book but most of it came as I went along," he said. "Each chapter I came to, I had to decide where to take it. The ending didn't come to me until I was at the ending.

"Aside from publishing a book, I'm proud to have lived my life on my own terms. It's not easy, not following the crowd, not listening to seemingly sound advice, and instead going with your heart and your gut," Toothman said. "Trying to make something of myself, having come from a place where nobody makes anything of themselves. I trusted my instincts and escaped the narrow West Virginia mindset and I traveled the world, geographically and otherwise."

Kirkus Review said Toothman's novel is "A wild, if occasionally slow, brew of sorcery, Satan and rural America."

Since its release, "Three Sixes and a Forked Tongue" has received five-star ratings. The book has been so highly received, Toothman said he has been developing a spin off.

Toothman is in the process of getting his book stocked on shelves. He recently announced an art gallery, Art Garden AVL, in Asheville, N.C., as the first business to stock his novel. He'll be doing a book-signing there later this month.

"Three Sixes and a Forked Tongue" is available as an audiobook, narrated by Toothman himself and his friend Joe Parsons Jr., who narrates all introductions. Physical copies can be purchased online through Amazon and Barnes & Noble.

PERPETUAL UNDERDOGS

Neal Brown's Mountaineers are built to beat the odds

BY CODY NESPOR
CNespor@DominionPost.com

You already know the story of the 2023 West Virginia football team.

Picked to finish last in the Big 12 preseason poll, the Mountaineers rallied around that underdog status to win nine games and in the program's best season since 2016.

It also took sixth-year head coach Neal Brown firmly off the hot seat and even earned him a one-year contract extension this offseason.

WVU certainly won't be projected last in the conference this year, but Brown still believes his Mountaineers are underdogs.

"I still think we're being undervalued," Brown said during an interview with the Dominion Post this week. "If you look at some of the (projected) win totals that are out there. If you look at preseason Top 25 (lists), we're in a couple of them, but most of them we're not in. How many nine-win teams from a year ago aren't included in the preseason Top 25? If you look at the early magazines, where do they have us picked in the Big 12? Not near the top, more in the middle. So I don't know if we're being valued nationally at the level, maybe that we think we should be."

Playing the role of the underdog worked wonders for WVU last season and Brown isn't ready to change that just because the team might get picked sixth in the preseason poll instead of 14th.

"I think we still are in that underdog mentality," Brown said. "It's not necessarily the same as it was. I don't know if West Virginia ever gets out of the underdog mentality. If we're doing it the right way, I don't know if we ever get out of that."

Brown isn't just playing up the idea either, he has legitimate grievances about how his team and players are perceived by the national media.

"Even players like (quarterback) Garrett (Greene), for all he had accomplished last year and what his numbers were, I still think that he's undervalued in a lot of ways," Brown said. "Are

Will they stay or will they go? Sabins combats roster management as MLB Draft approaches

BY JUSTIN JACKSON
Jackson@DominionPost.com

It is hectic, yet hectic with a purpose, that being the world of roster management for any college baseball coach.

Steve Sabins, in his first weeks as WVU's head coach has been through it before during his nine years as a Mountaineers' assistant.

"Now you're speaking my language," Sabins said Friday, as he was being officially introduced as the Mountaineers' manager.

There is a bit of explanation required here, and it will sound like a no-win situation at first, but know that Sabins does have a hefty life raft at his disposal at the end.

In his first season as head coach, Sabins may or may not have WVU's all-time home run leader in Grant Hussey in his lineup.

The Major League Baseball draft begins July 14 — it lasts 20 rounds and runs through July 16 — and Hussey is eligible to be drafted.

As is infielder Brodie Kresser, outfielder Kyle West and catcher Logan Sauve, who is eligible because he turns 21 just two days after the draft ends.

All of them could also return to WVU for another season.

"I fall asleep every night going in circles about what's going to happen," Sabins said. "The biggest thing about roster management is you have draft-eligible players, but you don't know if they're going to be drafted or not."

Older players Sabins may be recruiting out of the transfer por-

MLB draft rules

- High school seniors are eligible for the draft. If they choose to go to college instead, they aren't eligible for the draft again until after they've completed their junior season or turn 21, whichever comes first.

As could some of the high school prospects already signed by the Mountaineers for next season.

Oilers are 10th team to force game 7 from 0-3

The Edmonton Oilers aren't the first team in the NHL to fight back from 3-0 down in a best-of-seven series to force a deciding contest.

This is the 10th time it has happened in 211 opportunities in NHL history and the first in 10 years. Based on history, the momentum from three straight wins doesn't always carry over into a Game 7.

Only four of the nine previous teams to fight back and force a seventh game finished the job, with the Los Angeles Kings the last to pull off the feat in the 2014 first round against the San Jose Sharks.

Here's a look at how those other nine teams that forced a Game 7 after trailing the series 3-0 fared:

Jones strikes out 8, Cruz hits the ball into the river as Bucs wins

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Jared Jones struck out eight, Oneil Cruz homered into the Allegheny River and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Tampa Bay Rays 4-3 on Saturday.

Jones (5-6) overcame some early control issues to allow two runs over seven solid innings to bounce back from a pair of recent shaky starts.

The 22-year-old right-hander hit Brandon Lowe and Amed Rosario in the first inning, catching Rosario's helmet with a 99 mph fastball that forced the third baseman to exit with facial lacerations. Jones then settled down and seemed to get better as the game went along, retiring the final six batters he faced.

Asked what his goal was after seeing Rosario go down, Jones replied "not wanting to hit a guy in the face again."

"That was a really scary moment," Jones said. "Just knowing I got to lock it back in and letting my stuff play through the zone early. I felt like we did a pretty good job of that."

Aroldis Chapman gave up an RBI double to Yandy Díaz with two outs in the ninth but got Isaac Paredes to ground out and earn his second save.

Cruz became the fifth player to send a ball to the Allegheny River on the fly when he turned on a Zach Eflin (3-5) pitch in the first and deposited it into the water 445 feet from home plate.

"For sure I hit balls farther in (batting practice)," the 6-foot-7 shortstop said. "But that doesn't count. The ones that count are the ones you hit in the game. Today, I definitely hit it pretty good."

Andrew McCutchen hit his first triple in more than three years for Pittsburgh. Bryan Reynolds singled to extend his hitting streak to a career-best 19 games. Rowdy Tellez and Nick Gonzales also delivered RBIs for Pittsburgh on a scorching day at PNC Park that began with a temperature of 95 degrees.

Richie Palacios entered after Rosario's exit and produced two of Tampa Bay's five hits as the Rays were held in check by Jones and a pair of relievers less than 24 hours after getting a season-high 17 hits in a victory. Diaz's two-out RBI double in the ninth extended his hitting streak to a career-best 15 games and his on-base streak to 24.

Eflin lost for the first time since May 1 when he couldn't quite match Jones despite retiring the last 14 batters he faced.

"He really stepped up," Tampa Bay manager Kevin Cash said of Eflin. "You want to win the game, didn't want to give up the runs, but what we needed coming into the game, he gave us that and more."

Pittsburgh produced all the breathing room it would need in the third. The 37-year-old McCutchen — who believes he can still flash the speed of his prime when necessary — tripled off the right-field wall with one out, his first three-base hit since

DAVE SAMUEL

Writing has always been fun for me, and I believe that is because I grew up loving to read. When I was a kid, I read all the books in the series "Cabin Island". Later I was given a copy of White Fang, by Jack London. It is a story of a hybrid wild wolf dog and his journey into domestication in the Yukon. In that book London brilliantly lets the readers know how wild animals view their world and how they view humans. I didn't know it at the time, but I'd later learn a lot about Jack London, one of the great fiction writers of our time. I probably read that book five times and would still enjoy doing so. I also read "The Old Man and the Sea" by another great writer, Ernest Hemingway. The book was published in 1952 and was Hemingway's last published novel. It was a story of an old fisherman and his struggles to catch a giant marlin in the ocean. I don't remember how I got that book, but it probably was a Christmas gift, and I reread it till the pages were worn out. I believe that reading is extremely important for our youth and am thankful we didn't have much TV or cell phones or video games back then because those things probably would have kept me from reading as much. Somewhere during my college days, that reading turned into writing. Being a wildlife student, then professor, and being a bowhunter since the age of 12 (thanks to my dad), writing about the outdoors was fun. It still is. My outdoor writing career started with a column in the very first issue of Bowhunter Magazine. Here we are 52 years later (will be 53 with the October issue) and I'm still writing a column for them. The number of issues per year has changed a bit, but I've written around 688 Know Hunting columns for Bowhunter. It's got to end soon. The first time I wrote this outdoor column was in January 2003. As I recently read that column it didn't seem to be all that exciting. It was about encouraging West Virginia hunters to try some western hunts. Get away and do something different. I guess I thought that was worth writing about at the time. I've kept track of the number of columns I've written for The Dominion Post, and this one will be number 720. Whoa. I used to joke when people would ask how one comes up with 52 ideas for columns each year. Not too long ago, I didn't find that difficult. But today things have changed. Ideas that I'd have formerly written a column about now appear on Facebook. An example was the pelicans found starving on the California coastline. I did work that into a column, but it had already appeared on television and Facebook, so most of my readers probably knew about it. My point is that it's a lot harder to come up with original material for readers today than it was 10 years ago. There are interesting things happening at the Avian Conservation Center of Appalachia and also at the West Virginia Botanic Garden. Our DNR has the elk restoration project underway and several other projects as well. New things keep happening with diseases that impact wildlife including chronic wasting disease and avian flu. I can always write and tell readers to not pick up fawns they feel are abandoned, but you all are getting tired of hearing that every June. Maybe next June.

people talking about him being the best quarterback in the Big 12? Why not? How much publicity is he getting nationally? So I still don't think that nationally we're getting the attention, or we're being valued like we probably should be." Greene's story in 2023 very closely matches the team's. Just as the Mountaineers were picked last in the Big 12, Clint Brewster of 247Sports ranked Greene as the worst Power 5 starting quarterback before last season. Greene ended up being one of the highest-rated and most productive quarterbacks in the country and just like the team, he enters this offseason with a lot more expectations than last year. "I really don't think it changes too much," Greene said at the Country Roads Trust youth football camp on Tuesday. "We know the work that we did last year to go from a five-win team to a nine-win team. And really that work has to be even more this year because we're trying to make that push from a nine-win team to a 10-, 11-win team." Greene is comfortable playing the role of an underdog. Listed at 5-11, Greene wasn't some sort of blue-chip prospect coming out of high school. He was So Greene has viewed his path as an uphill climb long before any list came out. "I've always thought that I'm the best quarterback in the country," Greene said. "I don't need Joe Schmo from Texas or Bud Elliott to tell me I'm awful. I believe in myself, I believe in the guys protecting me, I believe in the running backs and I believe in the guys catching passes downfield." And Greene is far from the only Mountaineer with a story of overcoming the Brown isn't embracing the underdog role because it's easy or convenient, he's doing it because he's built nearly his entire roster out of guys who are underdogs. "I appreciate people that have to earn it," Brown said. "They have overcome odds, overcome setbacks, they've had to handle adversity and they've really come out on the other side in a positive way. I think that's why our state is really bought into this team because there's a lot of those stories that people in our state can relate to." It also helps that the Mountaineers are starting their season as literal underdogs. Despite opening 2024 at home in Milan Puskar Stadium, Penn State is currently a 10.5-point favorite over WVU for their game on Aug. 31. "We've got a great opportunity as a team, and (Greene's) got a great opportunity individually against Penn State week one," Brown said. "I think he's ready for it." A win over the Nittany Lions to start the season would almost certainly rocket the Mountaineers up the Top 25 rankings, but it still won't change the fact that the Mountaineers are underdogs at heart.

portal closes before the MLB draft happens. Basically everyone has to make the decision if they want to be open for a new opportunity, and then the draft happens and reshuffles everything again. "You have to find this balance of being aggressive but not overly aggressive." The key to it all is when a player may be drafted. A first-round prospect like J.J. Wetherholt — who could technically return to WVU for his senior season, but don't expect that to happen — is likely to sign for somewhere in the range of $5-10 million. Players chosen in the second round will be offered between $1.2-2.3 million, and the money continues to drop the later the draft gets, with players picked in the 10th round being offered an average of $180,000 to sign. Only players selected in the first 10 rounds will have assigned values. Players selected after the 10th round will still be offered a signing bonus, but one that suffers in comparison to those who are drafted higher. So, take any of WVU's high-school recruits or the "Essentially, I want whatever our players want," Sabins said. "Whatever is in their best interest. If they want to sign a professional contract or move on as a free agent, I want to celebrate that with lifeline of sorts through NIL funds. To use Hussey as an example, he may be offered an MLB bonus of $40,000 as a late-round pick, but WVU could offer him so much more through NIL to return for his senior season. Schools have been taking advantage of being able to offer more through NIL, which has raised the overall talent level of college baseball in recent years. "It's absolutely changed the game," Sabins said. "If you watched the super regionals, it's the highest-level baseball you can possibly watch." "It's fast and its explosive. There's nothing even close to it except for the MLB playoffs. It's the best (college baseball) has ever been, and part of that has to do with the leverage." Sabins' theory is it allows a player to bet on himself by taking the NIL deal and going back to college and then possibly improving his draft status for a bigger signing bonus in a future draft. "NIL is an opportunity for kids to go to school and put away some money," Sabins said. "I think some people would look at it as having two signing bonuses essentially."

Tom Kim clings to a 1-shot lead over Scheffler and Bhatia in rain-delayed Travelers

Associated Press

CROMWELL, Conn. — Tom Kim made enough birdies on a soft, vulnerable course to stay in front Saturday in the rain-delayed Travelers Championship, getting up-and-down for par on the last hole in near darkness for a 5-under 65 and a one-shot lead over Scottie Scheffler and Akshay Bhatia.

The tone of this pitch-and-putt day at the TPC River Highlands was set long before thunderstorms halted play for nearly three hours. Cameron Young shot 59, the 13th sub-60 round on the PGA Tour and first in nearly four years.

And then the rain made it even softer, and the wind subsided late in the evening as Kim, Scheffler and Xander Schauffele raced to beat darkness.

Scheffler, the world's No. 1 player coming off a rare pedestrian performance at the U.S. Open, was slowed by a pair of soft bogeys — his putter from fringe on No. 11, a bad drive into mangled weeds on No. 14 — and answered with four straight birdies.

"I was pretty frustrated after that bogey on 14, felt like I was putting myself out of the tournament," Scheffler said. "So it was nice to bounce back and finish it the way I did."

His wedge on the 18th rolled back within an inch of the cup, which he tapped in for 64. He played with Bhatia, who has two PGA Tour titles in the last 12 months. He poured in a 25-foot birdie putt to match

Tom Kim lines up a shot on the 12th green during the third round of the Travelers Championship golf tournament at TPC River Highlands, Saturday, June 22, 2024, in Cromwell, Conn.

Scheffler at 64. Schauffele played bogey-free until the final hole when his 3-foot par putt horseshoed around the cup and left him with a 64. He was two shots back along with Sungjae Im, who made a birdie putt from some 40 feet on the final hole.

Kim, who turned 22 on Friday, is still leading a large cast of All-Stars. He was at 18-under 192 going into the final round in which 10 players were within five shots of the lead.

"It's a stacked leaderboard," Kim said. "Out here, a five-, six-shot lead is not safe at all. So I've got to go out tomorrow and do the same game plan and execute."

The group within five shots includes Young, who was tied for 43rd when he arrived at the course in the morning. He was 5 under through four holes — he holed out with a wedge from 142 yards on No. 3 — made another eagle on the 280-yard 15th hole with a 3-iron to 4 feet and got to 11 under with a 5-foot birdie on the 17th.

He was tied when he walked off the course and still in the mix when the round finally ended. Young didn't see this kind of round coming.

"Did exactly what I do every day coming to the golf course — get a coffee, ate, saw the physio, and went out there, warmed up," he said. "Didn't feel particularly awesome. I chunked a few less on the range than I did yesterday. Then, yeah, came out and just was very comfortable and things just started coming down close to the hole."

Tee times for Sunday have been moved forward because of more storms in the forecast, meaning the course isn't likely to get any tougher. Preferred lies were in effect for the second consecutive round.

"Feels like more than ever you're going to have to keep your head down," Schauffele said. "It's kind of been my motto — 'Stay in my lane' — for quite some time, and I think tomorrow it's going to hold pretty true. You can get on a run at any point on this golf course."

"(You) definitely have to earn your birdies," he said. "But I think they're going to be coming in bunches tomorrow."

Five players had at least a share of the lead at some point, some of that made possible by Kim's lone mistake. He three-putted from 10 feet on the fourth hole, his 3-foot par putt not even touching the hole. But he bounced back with three birdies on the par 3s and a tough chip across the 15th green to set up an easy birdie.

He went from the fairway bunker to short of the 18th green, and his pitched rolled out to a short range for his final par to stay in front.

The final signature event of the PGA Tour season certainly looks like one with quality of players chasing — from Scheffler and Schauffele, down to Collin Morikawa, Shane Lowry, Patrick Cantlay and Justin Thomas.

"You're not going to separate yourself. Someone is going to play one shot better than anyone else," Bhatia said. "We'll see what tomorrow entails. It's just going to be a good challenge."

Amy Yang takes 2-shot lead into final round of KPMG Women's PGA

Associated Press

SAMMAMISH, Wash. — Amy Yang shot a 1-under 71 on Saturday to take a two-shot lead into the final round of the KPMG Women's PGA Championship as she chases her first major victory.

Yang was at 7-under 209 at Sahalee Country Club, remaining steady around the greens on the tree-lined course that requires utmost accuracy and precision.

"I grew up watching so many great players in the past, and I saw them winning all the major championships," Yang said. "I dreamed about playing out here because of them. I work hard for this."

"It'll mean a lot, but we still got 18 more holes out there and that's a lot of golf left for major championship."

The 34-year-old South Korean player has five LPGA Tour victories, the last in November in the Tour Championship.

Lauren Hartlage and Miyu Yamashita were tied for second at 5 under.

Hartlage shot her second straight 69 for the only bogey-free round of the day. The American is winless in three seasons on the LPGA Tour.

"Never been in this position before and this is something that I dreamed about growing up as a kid," Hartlage said. "So, it's really awesome to be in this position and just kind of see how it goes and learn from every day, every round."

Yamashita, from Japan, had her second 70 in a row. She's an 11-time winner on the Japanese tour.

"I'm not thinking about much of winning," Yamashita said through a translator. "I'm just focusing on each shot."

Sarah Schmelzel, the American who shared the second-round lead with Yang, shot a 74 to drop to 4 under.

First-round leader Lexi Thompson had a 73 to drop into a tie for fifth at 3 under with Lilia Vu (68), Caroline Ingris (69), Jin Young (73) and Hinako Shibuno (73). Ingris is from Vancouver, Washington.

The 29-year-old Thompson recently announced this season will be her last playing a full schedule. Last week in Michigan, she lost in a playoff to Vu in the Meijer LPGA Classic.

"There was some tough pins out there, and of course the golf course is the golf course, so it's tough," Thompson said.

Vu had the best round of the day with her 68.

Yang went 39 holes without a bogey before dropping a shot on the par-4 eighth. She quickly recovered, hitting it 8 feet on the par-3 ninth and making the putt to get back to 6 under and take the solo lead.

Yang pushed her lead to two strokes, hitting the green in two on the par-5 11th for a two-putt birdie. She dropped another shot on the par-4 16th — her third bogey of the tournament — but followed with a 36-foot birdie putt on the par-3 17th.

Jose before rallying once again. The Kings got a tying goal from Drew Doughty a few minutes later and Anze Kopitar scored the tiebreaking goal late in the second period. Los Angeles added three goals in the third, including two empty-netters, to start another title run with a 5-1 win. Jonathan Quick made 39 saves.

2011 Red Wings vs. Sharks, second round

Detroit had won three straight tight games to even the series but fell behind quickly in Game 7 in San Jose. The Sharks got first-period goals from Devin Setoguchi and Logan Couture to take the lead and Patrick Marleau added a key insurance goal in the third for his first point of the series after the Red Wings pulled within one. San Jose held on for a 3-2 win but lost in the next round to Vancouver. Antti Niemi made 38 saves.

dents' Trophy winners and then did it again in Game 7 on the road. Jonathan Toews scored a short-handed goal to tie the game at 1 with 1:56 to play. Vancouver then killed off a penalty early in overtime before Alex Burrows scored his second goal of the game to win the series. Roberto Luongo made 31 saves. The Canucks made it to Cup final before losing in seven games to Boston.

2010 Flyers vs. Bruins, second round

After falling behind 3-0 in the series, Philadelphia fell into a 3-0 hole in Game 7 in Boston in less than 15 minutes. The Flyers battled back to tie the game late in the second period on a goal by Daniel Briere and won it in the third when Simon Gagne scored on a power play following a penalty for too many men on the ice. Philadelphia made it to the Cup final before losing to Chicago.

1975 Islanders vs. Flyers, semifinals

One round after pulling off a 3-0 comeback against Pittsburgh, New York almost did it again. The Islanders fought back in the semifinals to force a Game 7 in Philadelphia but were no match for the Flyers. Gary Dornhoefer scored 19 seconds into the game to set the tone and Rick MacLeish had a hat trick in a 5-1 win for Philadelphia.

1975 Islanders vs. Penguins, quarterfinals

New York's first playoff run was a memorable one, highlighted by the comeback in the quarterfinals against Pittsburgh. Coach Al Arbour made a goalie change after falling behind 3-0, benching Billy Smith in favor of Chico Resch. That paid off in big fashion with four straight wins, capped by a 1-0 win on the road in Game 7. Ed Westphal scored with 5:18 to play and Resch made 30 saves in the shutout.

1945 Red Wings vs. Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup Final

Three years after blowing a 3-0 lead to Toronto, Detroit tried to return the favor in the Cup final. The Red Wings forced a Game 7 in a series when they didn't score a single goal until Game 4. Mel Hill scored in the first period for Toronto in Detroit. The Red Wings tied it midway through the third but Babe Pratt scored on a power play with 7:46 to play to give the Maple Leafs the Stanley Cup.

1942 Maple Leafs vs. Red Wings, Stanley Cup Final

Toronto became the only team in the major North American sports leagues to complete a comeback from 3-0 down to win a championship series. The Red Wings scored first on the road in the second period but fell apart in the third. Sweeney Schriner scored twice in the third period and Pete Langelle had the tiebreaking goal to give the Maple Leafs the title.

1939 Rangers vs. Bruins, semifinals

Long before the Red Sox raced back from a 3-0 series deficit to beat the hated Yankees in the 2004 AL Championship series, there was nearly another 3-0 comeback in the Boston-New York rivalry. The Rangers fought back after losing the first three games of the semifinals to force a seventh game at Boston Garden. The teams traded goals in the second period and the game stayed tied until the third overtime when Mel Hill scored the winner for Boston.

"It was fun to see him run," Shelton said of McCutchen. "He's still got an extra gear in there. He does."

Reynolds, hitting .342 in June, followed with an RBI single. Tellez produced an RBI single of his own two batters later and Gonzales

Jones cruised through the later innings and exited to a loud ovation in his first start since getting roughed up for six runs in 4 2/3 innings last weekend against Colorado.

"He had a difficult start there and I think it shows you he's resilient and that he's got really good stuff," Shelton said.

Whoops! Christopher Bell spills the tea and spoils the surprise that Chase Briscoe is headed to JGR

Associated Press

LOUDON, N.H. — Christopher Bell knew the instant he spilled the tea — without even the courtesy of a spoiler alert — that he would catch grief for prematurely disclosing Chase Briscoe was headed to Joe Gibbs Racing in 2025.

Bell's goof was the talk of NASCAR — well, for everyone but Briscoe.

The rumor mill turned a bit more concrete when Bell was asked an innocuous question this week about a potential leadership shift at JGR in the wake of Martin Truex Jr.'s retirement at the end of the season.

"Whenever Chase comes into the car ..."

Uh oh. Bell stopped instantly and smiled, a realization swept over him there was no going back on this blunder. Briscoe, in his final year with Stewart-Haas Racing, would in fact inherit the No. 19 Toyota next season at JGR.

So as the jokes flew on social media — Kyle Larson wished NASCAR's most popular driver Chase Elliott the best in his new job — the news ground to a halt at the dirt track where Briscoe moonlights.

"Christopher texted me and was like, man I messed up so bad," Briscoe said Saturday at New Hampshire Motor Speedway. "I was like, what happened? What do you mean? He says, go look at Twitter. I ran the sprint car race last night and had zero signal. Couldn't get a single text to go in, out. Couldn't receive any texts. So I couldn't get anything to load. Literally the last text I got was just Christopher saying, I messed up, go look at Twitter."

The cliffhanger lingered for hours while the 29-year-old Briscoe raced and finished second. Only when he left the track was Briscoe able to watch the video of Bell's racing reveal.

Briscoe, who has one career Cup win and has spent all four seasons with SHR, hoped for an official announcement on his new job in the next week or two.

"Nothing's official until it's official," Briscoe said.

Stewart-Haas Racing, a two-time NASCAR championship team with 69 Cup Series victories since its 2009 formation, announced last month it would close its organization at the end of this season. SHR this year fields Cup cars for Briscoe, Josh Berry, Noah Gragson and Ryan Preece, leading to a suddenly uncertain future for the drivers. Briscoe is 17th in the points standings in the No. 14 Ford.

JGR also fields cars for Denny Hamlin and Ty Gibbs.

Briscoe said, no hard feelings, honest.

"I felt like everyone kind of knows what's going on," he said. "I wasn't really mad. It was kind of funny, I thought."

Well, not everyone found the humor in the slip of the tongue.

"Nobody let me live it down," Bell said. "Everyone I see tells me how stupid I am. I tried to get away, get offline."

Bell, who won the Xfinity Series race Saturday at New Hampshire, was embarrassed by his gaffe and said he tried to "hibernate" and stay off social media most of Friday and Saturday. Bell said he reached out to Joe Gibbs and other race team officials to apologize for ruining the announcement.

"The driver announcement is a really big deal and I completely fudged it up," Bell said. "I've never in my life screwed up that bad and it was a huge, huge mistake. I'm very glad they took it easy on me."

Chase Briscoe climbs into his car during a practice session for the NASCAR Daytona 500 auto race Feb. 16, 2024, at Daytona International Speedway.

Chase Elliott starts on the pole after rain washed out Saturday's qualifying session.

Ryan Blaney, last week's winner in the inaugural NASCAR Cup Series race at Iowa Speedway, starts second. William Byron, Christopher Bell and Alex Bowman complete the top five.

Elliott, Byron and Bowman give Hendrick Motorsports three spots in the first three rows. Elliott, who has one win this season, has one runner-up finish but has never won at New Hampshire.

"We'd rather have an actual pole, for sure," Elliott said. "But you know, circumstances being what they are, fortunately our team has been performing at a really solid level over the past couple of months. The reality of it is that it put us in a position to have a good starting spot for a rainout situation."

With more rain in the forecast Sunday — a year after weather pushed the race to Monday — NASCAR moved up green flag time for the Cup race to 2:06 p.m.

Truex's Future

Truex already had job offers days after he announced he would retire from full-time racing at the end of the season. The 2017 NASCAR champion, Truex said he's discussed a potential Daytona 500 ride and maybe other one-offs with Denny Hamlin, his teammate at Joe Gibbs Racing. Hamlin, along with Michael Jordan, own 23XI Racing and could field a car for Truex in 2025.

"I stand firm in offering him that opportunity," Hamlin said. "I certainly think it could be fun for both parties."

Truex said the chance to drive for Hamlin would "be awesome."

Bubba in the White House

Could President Bubba be in the cards?

Bubba Wallace tried his best to look presidential as he stood and smiled behind the lectern this week at the White House. He was invited by one of his sponsors to speak on its initiative to make space a place for everyone.

As for the real deal, Wallace said, forget it. Politics isn't in his future.

"Hell no," Wallace said. "I'm already in enough headlines."

Wallace said he ate "the best French toast I ever had" and was thrilled he met singer John Legend and his oldest son at the event.

"He was really nice. I walked up to him with his kid and (Legend) said I was the best race car driver in the world," Wallace said. "I was like, have you seen 'Cars 3?'"

Gets late early

With darkness falling at New Hampshire, Aric Almirola won a race in 2021 that was called eight laps shy of its scheduled conclusion. NASCAR made a change this season that it would set a predetermined time a race would end if it couldn't be concluded at its scheduled distance, a rule that could come into play Sunday if weather disrupts a significant part of the race.

"If you know, hey, this race is going to end at 8:30, whatever it is, OK, we know that and we can plan the strategy off of that," Team Penske driver Joey Logano said. "I think having a ballpark idea, if there's weather in the area and it seems like we're going to be pushed late, what that's going to look like, I think is a great idea."

He said it

"I've always wanted to hold the lobster ever since I was a kid. So hopefully we can keep adding to our entrees. We had corn last week and lobster this week. Trying to add a full plate of dinner." — Blaney, on trying to follow his Iowa win with one at New Hampshire, where the winner is awarded a lobster.

Odds and Ends

Alex Palou continues mastery of Laguna Seca with pole-winning run at California road course

Associated Press

MONTEREY, Calif. — Two-time IndyCar champion Alex Palou continued his mastery of Laguna Seca Raceway by winning the pole Saturday in a qualifying session dominated by Honda drivers.

It was the second pole of the season for the Chip Ganassi Racing driver who has finished on the podium in all three of his previous starts on the permanent road course in Monterey, California. He won the race in the 2022 season finale in what many believe was a catalyst in his decision not to leave Ganassi to join Arrow McLaren Racing.

"It was really tight all of qualifying. I am really happy, the car was on rails," Palou said. "I think always starting up front is the best spot. Hopefully we can have a clean start, clean first couple of laps and hopefully there is not a lot of cautions that can screw our strategy."

Kyle Kirkwood of Andretti Global qualified second in his best qualifying effort of the season. Five of the top six drivers in qualifying were powered by Honda.

Felix Rosenqvist of Meyer Shank Racing qualified third and was followed by Colton Herta of Andretti.

Alexander Rossi of Arrow McLaren was the highest qualifying Chevrolet driver in fifth. Christian Lundgaard of Rahal Letterman Lanigan rounded out the top six in another Honda.

IndyCar points leader

Will Power, who holds the series record with 70 top starting spots, did not advance out of first qualifying group. Power earned his first win in over two years when he won two weeks ago at Road America in Wisconsin.

"I probably waited in the pit too long," he said of his qualifying strategy. "You can't screw around. Had the pace, just didn't put it together."

It was a trend for Team Penske, which had won two of the last three IndyCar races, as Scott McLaughlin was the only driver to advance into the second qualifying round. Two-time Indianapolis 500 winner Josef Newgarden was also eliminated in the first round.

"I think it's just me today, I think our car was really good. I was just really struggling to put it together," Newgarden said. "Our car was really good. I don't think that's the issue."

McLaughlin was then eliminated in the second round — meaning a Team Penske driver failed to advance to the Fast Six pole-shootout.

"I had a little slide through one of the corners and when you lose that momentum going up the hill, it really hurts you," McLaughlin said. "You just can't make a mistake."

David Malukas in his season debut, advanced out of first qualifying group with new team Meyer Shank Racing. Malukas was supposed to drive for Arrow McLaren this season but broke his wrist a month before the season-opener, and when he missed four races it triggered a clause in his McLaren contract that allowed the team to fire him.

He was hired to replace Tom Blomqvist, who appears headed back to full-time sports car racing after crashing on the opening lap of the Indianapolis 500 in a failed switch to IndyCar. Malukas said he felt total relief just to be back in the car and to start 12th on Sunday.

"So many different question marks going into it," Malukas said. "Just got a little bit fatigued being out of the car so long."

Nolan Siegel, the 19-year-old surprisingly hired earlier this week by Arrow McLaren, also did not advance out of the first qualifying group in his debut with his new team. Siegel, who was part of the winning LMP2 class at the 24 Hours of Le Mans last week, is the youngest driver on the IndyCar grid. Siegel is in the car Malukas had been hired to drive before his injury.

"We're thrown into a really difficult situation here, we've had very little time to prepare," Siegel said. "I didn't know I was driving here until a few days ago, so it's tough. None of us know each other. We're getting better every session. We're getting to know each other better, I'm getting to know the car better. It's just a lot of new things and it's tough. IndyCar is super competitive."

owned by the author of ‘The Little Prince’ was truly magical,” Deely said. “It was a real-life fairytale. Everywhere I turned, I felt so much creative inspiration.”

Deely discovered this opportunity on Instagram shortly after graduating college. The application process was intensive, requiring her to describe her work ethic, the importance of her work and how the residency would benefit her.

“After being selected, I was notified that I was among the small 18% of artists accepted, so I was truly elated,” she said.

During her time at Chateau d’Orquevaux, Deely focused on gathering reference photos for future drawings. She embarked on “photo walks” around Orquevaux, capturing the town’s beauty.

“The stories behind my pieces are just as important as the drawings themselves,” she said.

One of the standout pieces she worked on during her residency was Cinderella’s Castle from Walt Disney World, inspired by her fairytale-like surroundings.

Living in such a unique and historic setting posed no significant challenges for the artist.

“The only challenge I faced was that it was too pretty and the people I was surrounded with were too positive,” she laughed.

The experience has had a profound impact on Deely both personally and professionally.

“Two years ago, I had just graduated college with very little direction. Now, I am a world-traveling artist with big hopes and dreams,” she said.

The residency reminded her that anything is possible with patience and hard work. She made lifelong friends and valuable art connections, and said she is looking forward to future opportunities.

During the residency, Deely shared a studio space with Mindy Veissid, a professional photographer from New York City, whose positive attitude matched Maria’s own. Other artists who inspired her include Heather Berthelette, Marie-Pier Allard, Suzanne McNenly, Catherine Mills, Anthony Valencia, Andrew Putschoegl and Erin Foggo.

Deely said she is especially grateful to Ziggy Attias and Beulah van Rensburg for creating such an idyllic place for artists to thrive.

One of the most memorable moments of her residency was a movie night arranged by van Rensburg.

“We watched ‘The Princess Diaries’ in a castle! By the end, we were all doing Mia Thermopolis’ iconic wave,” Deely said. Another highlight was swinging on the swing set with her friends Mindy and Anthony while watching the chateau’s swans swim in the distance.

Now back from France, the artist is working on her “European Adventure” collection, which will recreate her memories from her travels to London, Paris, Orquevaux and beyond. Her next big adventure is an artist residency in Tuscany, Italy, in September and October.

“I can’t wait to see what this next one will be like,” she said.

Safe Fun With Fireworks

On July 4, our country celebrates its 248th birthday. Many of us will honor Independence Day with cookouts, reunions and fireworks.

Fireworks history

Today, the fireworks shows we watch may be controlled by computer equipment. They sometimes have music that plays along with the explosions.

But fireworks have been a part of celebrations for centuries. In many ways, fireworks haven't changed much.

Most experts agree that the Chinese probably invented fireworks more than 1,000 years ago. Colonists from England and Europe probably brought them when they settled in America.

"Illuminations," the Colonists' word for fireworks, were used at the celebration of the new country on July 4, 1776.

Be careful

Fireworks are exciting and fun, but they have to be used carefully. In 2022, about 10,000 people were injured by fireworks.

Make sure you know how to use fireworks safely and have adults nearby to help. Of course, the safest way to enjoy fireworks is to let the professionals put on the show for you.

Mini Fact:

Fireworks designers use chemicals to create different colors, including lime green and turquoise.

Safety spelled out

F

• Fire is always dangerous. Be careful with lighters, punks and sparklers.

I

• Never use Illegal fireworks.

R

• Never Re-light a "dud" firework. Wait 20 minutes and then soak it in water.

E

• Eye protection should be worn when using fireworks.

At the first inauguration of President Grover Cleveland in 1885, fireworks were part of the celebration in Washington, D.C.

This graphic shows which body parts are injured most often by fireworks accidents.

W

• Have a bucket of Water to put used fireworks in.

O

• Light only One firework at a time.

R

• Read the directions on fireworks and use them as intended.

K

• Kids should be supervised by adults when using fireworks.

S

• It is not Safe to point fireworks at other people or animals.

Make a plan with your family about the fireworks safety rules you will follow on July 4. Hang up this issue of The Mini Page to help you remember how to stay safe.

Cook's Corner

Pineapple Pudding Cake

You'll need:

- 1 box yellow cake mix
- 3 whole eggs
- 1 (15.25-ounce) can crushed pineapple (with juice)

- 1 (1-ounce) box vanilla pudding mix (not instant)
- 2 cups 1% milk
- 1 (12-ounce) tub fat-free whipped topping
- 1 cup shredded coconut

What to do:

1. Prepare cake mix and bake according to package directions in a 9-by-13-inch glass baking dish coated with cooking spray.
2. Remove cake from oven and immediately pierce holes in top of cake with a fork. Pour canned pineapple and juice over top. Allow to cool.
3. Prepare pudding according to package directions. Spread pudding over top of pineapple. Top with whipped topping and coconut. Chill before serving. Serves 6.

Eco Note

Researchers say they believe lab mice might sometimes be doing their own experiments while humans try to experiment on them. Writing in the journal Current Biology, scientists say that when lab rodents suddenly change the expected behavior required to receive rewards, they may actually have just become bored or are curious to see what will happen if they do. While it may look like a mouse is making lots of errors during experiments, it is really getting smarter by making them.

Summer Safety

Be safe this summer

WVU Medicine Children's wants you to enjoy this summer while being as safe as possible! To keep your family's fun in the sun from turning into a trip to the Emergency Department, follow the rules for burn, water, helmet, and sun safety. The WVU Medicine Children's Injury Prevention and Safety Program wants you to remember these safety tips:

- Use sunscreen with at least a 30 SPF.
- Drink plenty of water to avoid dehydration.
- Always have an adult present during campfires and stay at least 3 feet away.
- Leave the firework lighting to the professionals.
- Wear a proper fitting helmet when riding a bike.
- Helmets should sit squarely on top of the head and cover the forehead. Make sure it doesn't slide around!
- Never swim alone.

Summer safety tips

Things to keep in mind as you have fun in the sun

Each season brings its challenges, but while we've come to expect the potential dangers of winter's sub-freezing temperatures and heavy snow, we tend to forget that summer — known for fun and relaxation — has its own hazards. With summer officially here, we want to share some reminders to help everyone enjoy the season — safely.

We've previously discussed the dangers of hot cars, so we won't re-tread that ground too much. But we would like to add that hot cars are not safe for anyone — regardless of age or number of legs (two or four). The sunlight coming through the windows heats the interior of the car well beyond the outside temperature, and it does so within minutes. Cracking the windows is not enough to counter the rising heat. Even rolling the windows all the way down may not be enough, especially without a breeze to move the air around.

Warm weather tempts many to leave the cars behind altogether and take alternate forms of transportation. Thanks to a law passed in 2020, all-terrain and utility task vehicles can be driven on certain roads, but they must meet specific road-worthiness requirements and the owners must obtain a special purpose vehicle registration. Even then, there are limits: ATVs/UTVs can't be driven on interstate systems or for more than 20 miles on a highway with center pavement markings. Municipalities and counties can impose stricter limits, as well. And of course, drivers and riders should wear helmets (and preferably additional safety gear. Riding an ATV on the roadway shares many of the same risks as riding a motorcycle, so ATV users should be extra cautious and those of us in cars should give them extra space.

Of course, many people seek to escape the heat by going to the water. Anyone going out on the lake or river should wear a life vest, even if we fancy ourselves strong swimmers. Currents can carry us beyond helping hands, and hazards under the water's surface can drag us down or prevent us from resurfacing. A life vest cannot guarantee our safety, but it can increase our chances of survival if the worst were to happen.

Of course, what is summer without a trip to the pool? It's tempting to think that the presence of lifeguards means we don't have to worry about anything, but when there are hundreds of people in and around the water, the chances of something happening increase. It's our responsibility to help lifeguards by being aware of our own state and keeping an eye on each other. As adults, that means understanding when we or our young companions shouldn't go in the water, such as if we feel faint or dizzy, or are bleeding or experiencing certain health issues. It also means we are responsible for keeping an eye on any friends or family with us, especially children. We can also teach our kids about appropriate pool safety: no running, no holding others under the water, no diving where it's shallow, not jumping in where other people are swimming/standing, etc.

Sometimes, despite all our best efforts, accidents happen. We can't live our lives in fear, but we can take precautions to make sure our fun in the sun and water stays as safe as possible.

EDUCATION

Time to fix all the homeschool loopholes

THE TRAGIC DEATH OF 14-YEAR-OLD KYNEDDI MILLER EARLIER THIS YEAR HAS RAISED SEVERAL ISSUES ABOUT THE STATE'S LEVEL OF RESPONSIBILITY IN LOOKING OUT FOR ABUSED AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN. Miller was found dead on the bathroom floor of her Boone County home "emaciated to a skeletal state." Her mother and grandparents face charges of felony child neglect causing death.

Miller was home-schooled and state law requires parents or guardians to submit to the county school system an academic assessment after grades three, five, eight and 11. An investigation by Gov. Jim Justice's office found that Miller's 8th grade assessment was never submitted and there was no follow up by Boone County schools.

The lack of follow-up by county schools in assessing home-school student progress is all too common. School administrators and attendance officers are already overwhelmed with truancy cases of children enrolled in the public schools, leaving little time to devote to home-school students.

State law says that when a home-school student fails to meet the assessment requirements, the county superintendent "may, after showing probable cause, seek from the circuit court of the county an order denying home instruction of the child." The word

"may" means superintendents don't have to, and trying to get a truancy case on a crowded circuit court docket is time-consuming.

Mickey Blackwell, executive director of the West Virginia Association of Elementary and Middle School Principals, explained the predicament at last week's state Board of Education meeting.

"Our schools are overwhelmed," Blackwell said. "A school principal, a school counselor, an assistant principal has plenty to do all day, and it should not be their responsibility to check on everybody that is in a home-school or a charter school. There should be positions made within the school, within the county, and one or two people should be responsible for this."

Nearly 27,000 West Virginia students are home-schooled, and many of these students are excelling in the home environment. However, 71% of home-school students were chronically absent before their transition.

No doubt some have valid reasons for not going to school — bullying is often mentioned — but that high percentage also suggests many students and their parents or guardians are using home-schooling as a convenient excuse to not go to school.

A better system of checks and balances is needed. Dedicated home-schoolers may feel like they are under attack, but they have nothing to fear. In fact, they should be leading advocates for ensuring that education outside the traditional public schools maintains a high standard and that the system is not being abused.

The governor is open to legislation improving accountability. "We probably need to find a better way to tighten it," he said. "That's an area I'm sure we can make things a little better."

To be clear, of course Kyneddi Miller did not die because she was home-schooled. Something went terribly wrong in the child's home and we will learn more as the cases of her mother and grandparents work their way through the justice system.

However, the tragedy has brought to light loopholes in the state's home-school law that need to be fixed.

U.S. exceptionalism is dead no matter who wins the election

A FACILE WAY TO FRAME THE FUTURE OF AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY IS TO SET UP TWO SCENARIOS AS A BINARY CHOICE. If former President Donald Trump returns to the White House, the United States becomes isolationist. If President Joe Biden wins reelection, the U.S. remains broadly internationalist.

That framing neglects a change that may be less obvious but more consequential for other countries, a shift that will keep playing out no matter who wins in November: For the first time in its two-and-a-half centuries, the U.S. will stop looking at the world through the lens of its own exceptionalism, and behave as just another Great Power using its awe-inspiring might to serve a narrow self-interest.

The old notion that America is exceptional was there from the start. It inspired John Winthrop, as governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630, to speak of a "city on a hill" and Ronald Reagan in 1980 to turn the same phrase into a "shining city upon a hill."

Over the years, this exceptionalism took many forms, from Manifest Destiny to racist "Anglo-Saxonism," from a belief in the country's unique theological calling to pride in its civic virtues. One way or another, though, most policy makers agreed with Herman Melville: "We Americans are the peculiar, chosen people — the Israel of our time; we bear the ark of the liberties of the world ... The rest of the nations must soon be in our rear. We are the pioneers of the world, the advance guard."

This shared sense of exceptionalism was also the common factor in the country's two otherwise contradictory foreign-policy traditions, as Henry Kissinger pointed out in 1994, at a moment of unipolar American primacy. Isolationists saw the U.S. as perfecting its democracy at home and shining its light as a "beacon" to the rest of humanity but otherwise leaving the world alone. Internationalists understood exceptionalism as an obligation to spread American values around the world as "crusaders" or "missionaries."

Each tradition has at different times served America and the world well and also ill. Until the Spanish-American war, isolationism largely kept the U.S. out of the old world's balance-of-power machinations and imperialist adventurism; that was good. Between the two World Wars, an isolationist U.S. abdicated its responsibility when it could have preserved international order; that was bad.

After World War II, an internationalist and quasi-messianic U.S. built and policed a new world order, at least in much of the non-communist or "free" world. Good. In time, American confidence became hubris, as when George W. Bush proclaimed in 2002 that "today, humanity holds in its hands the opportunity to further freedom's triumph," and promised that "the United States welcomes our responsibility to lead in this great mission." A few months later, he gave orders for a misguided and disastrous war in Iraq.

Access to new Alzheimer's treatments bogged down by Medicare

ALZHEIMER'S IS A PROGRESSIVE, FATAL DISEASE that bogged scientists for a century.

In the past 30 years, $42 billion has been invested in research and development of drugs that could treat it. More than 150 trials ended in failure.

Now, at last, we have two treatments with significant clinical benefit — one, lecanemab, approved by the Food and Drug Administration and another, donanemab, recently endorsed by its advisory panel — and a scientific pathway that could one day point the way toward a cure.

Unfortunately, it's not clear how quickly patients and their families will be able to benefit. It could be months before the FDA approves donanemab. These drugs work best at early stages of this progressive disease. Patients who could see results from treatment today may not be eligible tomorrow. Our agencies must refocus their efforts on ensuring safe, appropriate access for people who may benefit from the first new treatments for Alzheimer's in three decades.

Eisai's Leqembi (lecanemab) received FDA approval more than a year ago after demonstrating a 27% decline in early disease progression; donanemab achieved 35%.

But rather than cover the drug for seniors who need it, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), which administers Medicare, restricted access, citing the very safety concerns the FDA scrutinized before granting approval.

The result? After more than a year on the market, the drug has reached only 5,000 patients.

Though the FDA reviewed the data and determined lecanemab's benefit outweighed the risks, CMS continues to press for more data on its clinical benefit and safety.

The agency isn't supposed to consider cost in a coverage decision, but that certainly seems to be a factor. It effectuated one of the largest premium increases in the history of the Medicare program to manage the projected budget impact of a similar Alzheimer's drug, Aduhelm — then restricted access to it and rebalanced premiums.

The tool used to nullify these drugs is "coverage with evidence development," or CED. This program was designed to speed new technologies to market, protect patients and spur innovation. But CMS has warped its purpose, using CED to impede access not only to Alzheimer's treatments but to diagnostic too.

PET scans are the gold standard for diagnosing Alzheimer's by confirming the presence of amyloid plaque in the brain. A second test is used after treatment to confirm that plaques have been removed. After tying up these tests in CED for more than a decade, CMS finally concluded last October what we've known for years: that the preponderance of data supports using PET scans to diagnose Alzheimer's disease.

Now we must ensure

Heat waves are deadlier than hurricanes. Let's make them natural disasters, too

UNLIKE OTHER NATURAL DISASTERS, EXTREME HEAT DOESN'T TOPPLE BUILDINGS, FLOOD STREETS OR TURN ROAD SIGNS INTO MISSILES. It doesn't provide a dramatic backdrop for daredevil weather reporters. What it mostly does is kill people, quietly and efficiently. It's long past time we respect its destructive power, which will only grow as a warming planet makes heat waves more frequent and intense.

This discussion is particularly relevant this week, as a "heat blob" that has punished Mexico and the Southwestern U.S. for months creeps into the Midwest, Northeast and Canada, subjecting possibly 150 million people to unseasonably high temperatures for a miserable stretch of days.

For many Americans, a heat wave is just a nuisance. We'll sweat through our work clothes and blow out our power bill running the air conditioning. Roads and sidewalks will buckle. Amtrak and public transportation around New York City will lose their spotless reputations for reliable performance (yes, that was sarcasm) as railroad tracks warp and power lines sag.

But for hundreds of thousands of people around the world every year, heat is deadly. In the U.S., it takes more lives than hurricanes, tornadoes, earthquakes or floods. It contributed to the deaths of more than 2,300 Americans last year, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the most in 45 years of record-keeping. The number of such heat-related deaths has more than doubled in just the past five years.

Though this week's heat wave will have all the hallmarks of a discrete natural disaster like a named hurricane or serious earthquake, including the threat to human life and health, the Federal Emergency Management Agency will not treat it as such. That's because it doesn't consider heat waves or wildfire-smoke events "major disasters" worthy of federal relief.

This is a huge oversight. On Monday, the Center for Biological Diversity, along with the AFL-CIO, the Service Employees International Union and dozens of other unions, public-health groups and nonprofits, petitioned FEMA to change its policy. The agency should listen. "Major disaster" designations for heat and smoke would unlock federal relief money for local governments to prepare for hot weather and wildfire-smoke season by building cooling centers, upgrading public buildings, communicating with the elderly and other vulnerable people, and much more. This would save countless lives and billions of dollars in health-care costs and lost productivity.

California spent $800 million on such preparation in 2022, the petition notes. That same year, FEMA rejected the state's request for federal disaster relief after a heat wave that killed an estimated 395 people. California, like other states, must balance its budget every year and has limited funds for such spending. The federal government is under no such constraint. FEMA itself is currently underfunded, understaffed and confusingly organized. But Congress can help remedy that, and President Joe Biden can (and should) restore FEMA to its former Cabinet-level position to emphasize its growing importance.

Hotboxes like Phoenix that live with the constant threat of extreme temperatures have tried to become more resilient on their own, but the money is tight and the deaths have kept rising. And such places aren't always the most vulnerable when climate change causes more and deadlier heat waves that increasingly tend to hang around like unwelcome house guests. The heat dome that camped over the Pacific Northwest in 2021 killed an estimated 1,400 people in the U.S. and Canada in a region where most people didn't have AC.

The highest temperatures in this week's heat wave might be in New England, with New Hampshire possibly hitting 101 degrees Fahrenheit. Parts of Canada will get into the 90s. Such places are high on lists of havens from global heating as the zone of human habitability shifts northward in the coming decades. But this week will be a reminder that even these places won't escape the reach of climate change.

Some have argued we should name heat waves like hurricanes to raise awareness. Meteorologist Guy Walton names them after fossil-fuel companies; the heat blob currently menacing the U.S. is Heat Wave Exxon. It's a compelling idea, though the World Meteorological Organization argues that naming heat waves would only confuse people. For now, the most immediate heat-wave solution is not clever taxonomy but more urgency and more money.

Applying for a job shouldn't be humiliating

EVERYONE HAS A JOB-SEARCH HORROR STORY OR KNOWS SOMEONE WHO DOES. After flying my husband to Chicago for a day-long interview, one company told him the position had been filled the day before — but that they'd interview him anyway to be "nice."

Another relative was retrieved an hour late from a 60-minute computer test in an empty conference room — and flunked because the company couldn't verify that she finished on time.

Other bad experiences are far too common: Job applications elicit zero response; companies ghost applicants after multiple rounds of hours-long interviews.

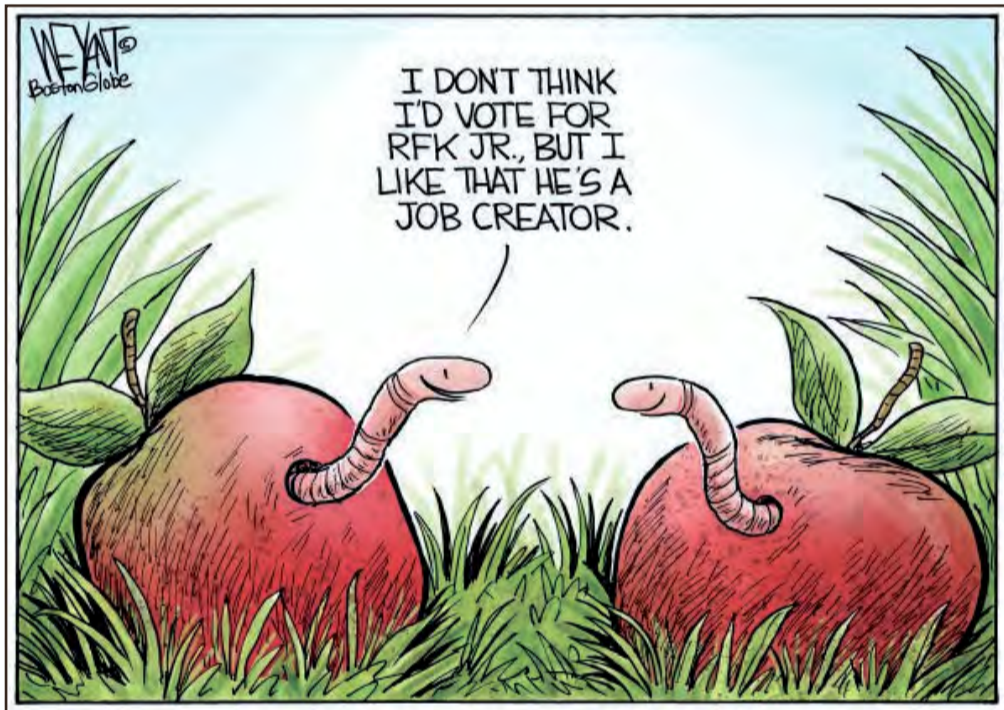

Employers, it seems, aren't as motivated as they should be to respect job applicants' time, effort and dignity. Hence, a proposal: Set minimum federal standards for the treatment of people looking for work.

As of May, more than 6 million people were seeking employment in the U.S. and that doesn't include employed people looking for something new. It's a costly endeavor. On average, job seekers (including the employed) spend almost three hours a day on the task, and often send out 80 or more applications before landing even an interview. Then there's the psychological toll of repeated rejection and, for those without a job, financial insecurity.

It should be in employers' interests to make the process as pleasant and efficient as possible. They want good people to apply, hiring costs money, and treating people poorly can tarnish a company's reputation as an employer. Yet their actual behavior suggests such incentives aren't sufficient to guarantee minimum standards. Companies generally value and respect their employees, too, yet rules are still required to counter practices ranging from wage theft to child exploitation.

How, then, to set minimum standards for the treatment of job seekers? Require communication and compensation. Job ads should provide some disclosure on the timeline for hiring and the exigencies of the interview process (how many rounds, what kinds of tests). Companies should keep people informed: When their applications were received, whether they advanced to the next round. Granted, companies might not want to turn away candidates whom they might revisit later — but there's nothing preventing them from saying so in an email. Also, companies need to recognize the value of applicants' time. Beyond some reasonable threshold of hours spent on interviews or tests, applicants should be compensated at a rate proportional to the position's salary — or at a piece rate for intellectual property that companies can use (such as coding assignments). Employers who rescind job offers should pay a penalty. Costly as this might seem, it's trivial compared with the expense of all the employees engaged in the hiring process.

The rules wouldn't be unduly difficult to put into practice. They would merely expand existing protections — such as against discrimination and harassment — administered by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Enforcement would be challenging, particularly on compensation. Yet even if an applicant lacks the wherewithal to file a complaint or demand $100 for a five-hour interview, the mere knowledge that a potential employer doesn't respect federal law that protects workers could be invaluable.

The rules wouldn't make anyone more likely to get a job, or force companies to hire anyone they didn't want. They would, however, benefit job seekers and the broader economy, by discouraging potential employers from wasting people's time and energy and giving more information to applicants. Both could reduce search frictions and produce better job matches, a win for the labor market.

Creating standards is a way to declare that an activity is deserving. Workers without a job are still workers. Ensuring their dignity would be a real victory.

ACCESS

equitable access to these tools in practice. The new drugs deliver the most benefit when administered early in the progression of disease, so getting a timely, accurate diagnosis is crucial.

Yet even where a patient can get access to the drug under CED, the process is burdensome for physicians, who must enter patient data in an approved registry or study to secure Medicare coverage.

This adds an uncompensated layer of bureaucracy to the management of a disease that is already very complex to diagnose and treat. CMS maintains that its digital database is easy to use, but the policy is disconnected from the reality on the ground.

Neurologists' offices are packed trying to manage the demands of an aging population. Appointments can be backed up for more than a year. Memory centers at elite medical institutions can train staff to navigate these additional tasks, but remote facilities are struggling. The result is that fewer patients have ready access to the treatment.

Donanemab faces all the same headwinds. Let's hope a swift FDA approval is followed by a new CMS policy

ing as a crusader, U.S. leaders largely agreed that America's self-government — its democracy — was exceptional. Far from complete, especially before the civil-rights movement, it seemed to be forever climbing toward its destiny on that shining hill, a work in progress that showcased a narrative of freedom to people everywhere. And that's what has changed.

The eschatology of American democracy first became dubious during the first Trump term, especially with the attack on the Capitol on Jan. 6, 2021. If the country had subsequently rallied in defense of its republican ideals — during the congressional hearings on 1/6, for example — the next chapter could have reaffirmed the narrative of perennial self-correction. That didn't happen.

Instead, the Big Lie (that the last election was "stolen" from Trump) lives on, alongside other conspiracy theories. Preparations are underway to use a second Trump turn to weaponize the Justice Department against political enemies, even as Trump's minions pretend that this has already happened under Biden. The neutrality of more than one Supreme Court justice is in doubt. Left and right alike, for different reasons, fear that the rule of right is yielding to a rule of might, and are losing faith in America's elections, institutions and exceptional virtue. The film that captures the mood this year is Civil War, a haunting tale of Americans killing one another for no fathomable reason.

The outside world is paying incredibly close attention. Foreigners certainly no longer see the U.S. as a beacon of republicanism. Nor would they, whether allies or adversaries, tolerate any more American crusading. The Pew Research Center surveyed people in 34 countries, and found that an average of 69% had no confidence in Trump doing the right thing in world affairs; a still unflattering plurality of 46% said the same about Biden.

What arguably matters even more is what Americans believe nowadays. I doubt many beyond the capital's Beltway would still subscribe to a phrase that former secretary of state Madeleine Albright coined and many Republicans and Democrats subsequently adopted, which sees America as the "indispensable" nation. Exceptionalism in its old form is dead, and with it notions about an American role as either a beacon or crusader.

What will replace it? The new approach to world affairs would resemble the one Kissinger studied as a scholar and tried to practice as America's top diplomat. It leaves less space for idealism and more for realism, places less emphasis on values and more on interests. It's neither inherently good nor self-evidently bad, just very different in outcome for almost every other country.

For example, both Ukraine, which is defending its national sovereignty and survival against Russia, and Taiwan, which may yet have to fight for its democracy and freedom against mainland China, have been called "the new West Berlin." But will any future U.S. president risk war, including the nuclear kind, by pledging that "Ich bin ein Kyiver"?

An America that refuses to be a crusader will also reject any role as White Knight. And a country that doesn't see itself as a beacon will care less about acting high-minded toward others. U.S. economic policy is already turning protectionist and nationalist. It will also become more transactional, pocketing deals that leaders can sell to their base at home rather than upholding lofty principles of global governance.

American hegemony in guarding the liberal — or "rules-based" — international order will die from lack of interest long before expiring from lack of resources. Washington's support for international law, from the United Nations to The Hague, will fade.

American leaders will instead approach their foreign counterparts much as the Austrian statesman Prince Metternich (a Kissinger favorite) dealt with Europe's monarchs in the 19th century. They'll try to arrange a new balance of power and to negotiate spheres of influence, even at the expense of friendly but small nations. Beijing already speaks this language in the South China Sea, and Moscow in eastern Europe. In the coming years as in Metternich's time, that style of diplomacy will occasionally use war as an instrument, albeit (one hopes) the limited kind.

Some students of American statecraft will mourn this shift. Others, irate about the hypocrisy that often accompanied both the beacon and the crusader personas, will shrug and say good riddance. In a sense, the world, inside America and beyond, is merely reverting to the historical norm, in which values mattered less and power more. America's friends and foes alike should be aware.

What parents should know to protect their kids

BY BARBARA ORTUTAY
Associated Press

At what age should kids be on social media? Should they be on it at all? If they aren't, will they be social pariahs? Should parents monitor their conversations? Do parental controls work?

Navigating social media as a parent — not to mention a child — is not easy. Using social media platforms is still the default for most American teenagers, with the Pew Research Center reporting that 58% of teens are daily users of TikTok, including 17% who describe their TikTok use as almost constant. About half of teens use Snapchat and Instagram daily, with near-constant use at 14% and 8% for each, respectively.

But parents — and even some teens themselves — are growing increasingly concerned about the effects of social media use on young people. Lawmakers have taken notice and have held multiple congressional hearings on child online safety. But even with apparent bipartisan unity, making laws and regulating companies takes time. So far, no regulation has passed.

What are parents — and teens — supposed to do in the meantime? Here are some tips on staying safe, communicating and setting limits on social media — for kids as well as their parents.

Are there rules?

There's already, technically, a rule that prohibits kids under 13 from using platforms that advertise to them without parental consent: The Children's Online Privacy Protection Act that went into effect in 2000, before today's teenagers were even born.

The goal was to protect kids' online privacy by requiring websites and online services to disclose clear privacy policies and get parents' consent before gathering personal information on their kids, among other things. To comply, social media companies have generally banned kids under 13 from signing up for their services.

But times have changed, and online privacy is no longer the only concern when it comes to kids being online. There's bullying, harassment, the risk of developing eating disorders, suicidal thoughts or worse.

For years, there has been a push among parents, educators and tech experts to wait to give children phones — and access to social media — until they are older, such as the "Wait Until 8th" pledge that has parents sign a pledge not to give their kids a smartphone until the 8th grade, or about age 13 or 14. Some wait even later, like 16 or 17.

But neither social media companies nor the government have done anything concrete to increase the age limit.

"There is not necessarily a magical age," said Christine Elgersma, a social media expert at the nonprofit Common Sense Media. But, she added, "13 is probably not the best age for kids to get on social media."

The laws currently being proposed include blanket bans on the under-13 set when it comes to social media. The problem? There's no easy way to verify a person's age when they sign up for apps and online services. And the apps popular with teens today were created for adults first. Companies have added some safeguards over the years, Elgersma noted, but these are piecemeal changes, not fundamental rethinks of the services.

"Developers need to start building apps with kids in mind," she said.

Some tech executives, celebrities such as Jennifer Garner and parents from all walks of life have resorted to banning their kids from social media altogether. While the decision is a personal one that depends on each child and parent, some experts say this could lead to isolating kids, who could be left out of activities and discussions with friends that take place on social media or chat services.

Is age important?

Another hurdle — kids who have never been on social media may find themselves ill-equipped to navigate the platforms when they are suddenly allowed free rein the day they turn 18.

A more realistic and effective approach to social media, experts say, is a slow, deliberate onboarding that gives children the tools and information they need to navigate a world in which places like TikTok, Instagram and Snapchat are almost impossible to escape.

"You cannot just expect that the kids will jump into the world of social media, learn how to swim on their own," said Natalie Bazarova, a professor of communications and director of the Cornell Social Media Lab. "They need to have instruction."

Start early, earlier than you think. Elgersma suggests that parents go through their own social media feeds with their children before they are old enough to be online and have open discussions on what they see. How would your child handle a situation where a friend of a friend asks them to send a photo? Or if they see an article that makes them so angry they just want to share it right away?

For older kids, Elgersma says to approach them with curiosity and interest, "asking about what their friends are doing or just not asking direct questions like, 'What are you doing on Instagram?' but rather, 'Hey, I heard this influencer is really popular.'" And even if your kid rolled their eyes it could be a window.

Don't say things like "Turn that thing off!" when your kid has

Pierre's role in helping us stay physically, mentally active

THERE IS A LONG LIST OF STUDIES FOCUSING ON THE ROLE DOGS PLAY IN HELPING OLDER OWNERS with physical and mental decline. Certainly daily walks with our dogs, on or off leash, provide some exercise. There is also the social aspect of dog walking, as we sometimes interact with people we've not met before on these walks. I know when I take Pierre with me to a large store, like Lowe's, shopping takes a back seat to talking with people who stop us and want to pet him or ask questions about him. They often share pictures and stories about their own dogs and even their cats.

There is a plausible association between dog ownership and slower cognitive decline in elderly adults living alone. A recent study, published in Preventive Medicine Reports, identifies a specific benefit to older adult dog owners living alone. The study examined data from 11,000 older adults over a period of four years. Results suggest older adult dog owners living alone have a lower risk of dementia.

While reading some of these articles about dog ownership, I thought about our Pierre. In truth, Rob and I have no choice but to stay mentally acute, just to keep up with his mischievous and constantly changeable behavior. Even though we are diligent about putting certain things out of reach or out of sight, and we both have a mental list of "things Pierre can get into," he finds new ways to surprise us. One day when we were out, for some doggy reason of his own Pierre went up to Rob's bedroom and ate (swallowed and digested) the table of contents and first chapter of a thick book about Michelangelo Rob had been reading. This was a new first: book chewing.

Pierre thrives on problem-solving and inventing new games. The living room is off-limits to him. We keep the pocket door between living room and family room closed. One day he discovered a tiny opening in that door, about the size of a dog's claw. Using his claw, he managed to shake that door open enough to get his large paw inside, push the door open and enjoy a nap on the forbidden white living room rug.

Last summer, Pierre invented a game for the pool. When the three of us were enjoying the pool Pierre, who always brings a toy into the pool with him, dropped his toy in the water. Then he watched intently as it floated ever closer to the side drain. At the last minute before the toy went into the drain, he paddled over to grab it. This year he decided to change the rules of the game. After dropping his toy into the water, instead of snatching it at the last minute, he allows it to drift into the drain. Then he expects one of us to take it out. If we are too slow to rescue his toy, Pierre barks, howls or whines until one of us swims over to retrieve it. In this way he has the fun of watching his toy float away while also gaining our full attention.

Between trying to stay one step ahead of him, making sure Pierre doesn't get into mischief while we are out and complying with his many demands, I wonder if he is helping us age gracefully or if he is actually aging us. Even so, it saddens us to know Pierre is 11 and won't be with us for many more years. His unconditional love, his loyalty and even his mischievous antics will be sadly missed but will never be forgotten.

SAFETY

been scrolling for a long time, says Jean Rogers, the director of the nonprofit Fairplay's Screen Time Action Network.

"That's not respectful," Rogers said. "It doesn't respect that they have a whole life and a whole world in that device."

Instead, Rogers suggests asking them questions about what they do on their

Get involved

Kids are also likely to respond to parents and educators "pulling back the curtains" on social media and the sometimes insidious tools companies use to keep people online and engaged, Elgersma said. Watch a documentary like "The Social Dilemma" that explores algorithms, dark patterns and dopamine feedback cycles of social media. Or read up with them how Facebook and TikTok make money.

"Kids love to be in the know about these things, and it will give them a sense of power," she said.

Rogers says most parents have success with taking their kids' phones overnight to limit their scrolling. Occasionally kids might try to sneak the phone back, but it's a strategy that tends to work because kids need a break from the screen.

"They need to an excuse with their peers to not be on their phone at night," Rogers said. "They can blame their parents."

Parents may need their own limits on phone use. Rogers said it's helpful to explain what you are doing when you do have a phone in hand around your child so they understand you are not aimlessly scrolling through sites like Instagram. Tell your child that you're checking work email, looking up a recipe for dinner or paying a bill so they understand you're not on there just for fun. Then tell them when you plan to put the phone down.

Social media platforms that cater to children have added an ever-growing array of parental controls as they face increasing scrutiny over child safety. For instance, Meta unveiled parental supervision tools last year that lets parents set time limits, see who their kid follows or is followed by, and allows them to track how much time the minor spends on Instagram. It does not let parents see message content.

But as with similar tools on other platforms such as TikTok, the feature is optional, and both kids and parents have to agree to use it. In order to nudge kids toward agreeing to set up the controls, Instagram sends a notice to teens after they block someone, encouraging them to let their parents "supervise" their account. The idea is to grab kids' attention when they might be more open to parental guidance.

By making the feature optional, Meta says it is trying to "balance teen safety and autonomy" as well as prompt conversations between parents and their children.

Such features can be useful for families in which parents are already involved in their child's online life and activities. Experts say that's not the reality for many people.

U.S. Surgeon General Vivek Murthy said last year it's unfair to expect parents to manage what their children do with rapidly evolving technology that "fundamentally changes how their kids think about themselves, how they build friendships, how they experience the world — and technology, by the way, that prior generations never had to manage."

Putting all of that on the shoulders of parents, he said, "is just simply not fair."

SPIRITUALITY

Embracing the spiritual virtues of Islam

SINCE THE 7TH CENTURY, MILLIONS OF MUSLIMS HAVE MADE A PILGRIMAGE TO MECCA to celebrate a sacrifice made by a Jewish guy 2,500 years ago.

This celebration and this pilgrimage, which happened this week, and brought almost 2 million pilgrims to Mecca, is the greatest interfaith story in the history of the world. It is called Eid al-Adha and it falls on the 10th day of the 12th and final month of the Muslim calendar called Dhu al-Hijja. Last week, from June 16 to June 18, was Eid al-Adha.

I have apologized many times for my habit of conflating interfaith dialogue with what happens between Jews and Christians. This Judeo-Christian focus was obviously the result of my friendship with Father Tom Hartman, but it wrongly omitted the faith of Islam embraced by more than 1.5 billion people. This is surely an appropriate week to correct my sin of omission. It is also a necessary week to embrace the spiritual virtues of Islam because we are in a period when trying to praise Islam is like trying to praise Christianity during the Crusades. Parts of Islam have been tragically hijacked by those who in the name of a religion of peace have chosen to wage war on the West and that includes Christians and Jews, but particularly Jews and other supporters of the Jewish State of Israel. Nonetheless, I want to lift up for praise this week a religion that is having a tough time fighting off those who would pervert and distort its core message of charity and peace. Remember that in this column for the past three decades our Chanukah greetings were always written by a priest and our Christmas greetings were always written by a rabbi.

RABBI MARC GELLMAN
THE GOD SQUAD

The story of Eid al-Adha is remarkable because it is a Muslim midrash about the biblical story of the sacrifice of Isaac by Abraham in Genesis chapter 22. A midrash is the Hebrew word for an interpretive tale about a story in the Bible. In the biblical account, God commands Abraham to sacrifice Isaac as a test of faith. Although the Bible is quite clear that the command to Abraham was to sacrifice Isaac, in the sacred writings of the Quran, the holy book of Islam, Ishmael, the half-brother of Isaac, is the intended sacrifice. The rest of the story is the same. God holds back Abraham's knife at the last moment and offers a ram caught by its horns in a thicket as a replacement sacrifice.

Since Ishmael was considered to be the ancestor of the Arabs and Isaac was the ancestor of the Jews it is not surprising that Ishmael plays a greater role in the Muslim midrash. The holiday of celebration for the survival of their ancestor became Eid al-Adha. Animal sacrifices (udhiyah) are a major part of the holiday for Muslims. The meat from a hallal animal is divided into three parts with one-third being donated to the poor.

Although the stories differ, the main point is that Jews and Muslims consider Abraham to be their ancestor and patriarch. This is a powerful connection but not by any means the only link between Islam and the other two Abrahamic faiths. Jesus is considered by Muslims to have been a prophet of God. Muslims will only eat meat that is kosher for Jews. Both Judaism and Islam prohibit visual art or statues in their places of worship.

Over time the story of Abraham became mixed with the story of Mohammed who traveled from Medina to Mecca to cleanse the holy site of idols. This journey is replicated by all Muslims who can make the pilgrimage called the Hajj. Hajj is an Arabic word taken from the Hebrew word Hag that means one of the three biblical Jewish pilgrim festivals to Jerusalem (Passover, Sukkot, and Shavuot).

Having almost two million pilgrims descend upon Mecca and surrounding sites every year on Eid al-Adha is a daunting challenge to the Kingdom. In 2015, thousands of pilgrims were killed in a sudden stampede. I am impressed that no political chants or signs are allowed during the Hajj.

The spiritual integrity of the world's largest pilgrimage is carefully protected by the Kingdom. The value of humility is conveyed by the practice of having all pilgrims dress in two plain white sheets so as to erase all class distinctions. The Hajj is one of the Five Pillars of Islam, their foundational spiritual practices: 1. The declaration of faith (shahadah); 2. Prayer (salah); 3. Charity (zakat); 4. Fasting (sawm); 5. Pilgrimage (Hajj).

An Eid/Shavuot prayer: May the Hostages be freed and allowed to worship God in Israel and may innocent Gazans be allowed to worship Allah in Mecca soon, dear God, soon.

SUNDAY, JUNE 23, 2024

Take a step forward. Don't fear change. Try something new and exciting, and you'll meet people who encourage you to thrive. Sign up for something that inspires a positive shift in your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Say yes and enjoy the moment. Take hold of an opportunity instead of day-dreaming about aspirations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Keep your money, possessions and passwords private. Refrain from giving newcomers a chance to take advantage of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Take in events or activities that make you think and give you a unique perspective regarding what's possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Think twice before you make promises. Assess your domestic situation and consider how to reduce expenses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You'll come across a great idea or an offer that resonates with you. Don't let an opportunity pass you by.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Rethink your plans before you proceed. You'll get a false impression from someone hyping a lifestyle that intrigues you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Share your thoughts and feelings, and you'll get valid input to help you decide what's next. A change at home or to your lifestyle will encourage new beginnings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Emotional energy will skyrocket. You must offer opportunities, incentives and an enthusiastic presence to attract support. Finding your tribe will lead to magical results.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Be innovative; something you discover will change your perspective, pointing you in a new direction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Check all the boxes before you make a move. Someone will trick you into thinking something is OK when it isn't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Take the initiative and get things done. Complaining is a waste of time and energy. Show enthusiasm.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — An opportunity to experience something exciting will pique your interest and encourage you to take on an exhilarating challenge. Refuse to let anyone stifle your plans or dreams.

A cool slice of watermelon on a hot July day makes life just ducky.

This is our celebration of our country's independence. It means that we are not controlled by other countries. We are free. That's why we also call the Fourth of July Independence Day.

Help me find and circle all the words that begin with the letter 'F' on this page!

I love decorating my bicycle and riding it in the parade. And the fireworks are so cool! But, what is the celebration really about?

Famous People Pop Quiz!

Read the clues to fill in the puzzle:

- King _____ III of England did not permit the colonies in America to have people to represent them in the British government, which upset and angered the colonists
- 13 American Colonies wanted to break away from the British Empire; Paul _____ took a midnight ride on his horse to warn the people near Boston that British troops were coming
- George _____ was the Commander of the Continental Army (American forces) during the Revolutionary War; later became the first President (April 1789)
- writer of the Declaration of Independence; served as President of the United States; Thomas _____
- politician, scientist and inventor; diplomat who helped ensure victory of the American Revolution; Benjamin _____
- seamstress who worked making chair and couch cushions and pillows; credited with making the very first American flag; Betsy _____

What did the firecracker say when he saw the beautiful fireworks fill the night sky?

A-Mazing Fireworks!

Let's go to see the fireworks! Start at the star and help little ant find his way through the maze to the spectacle of fireworks.

Ooooo! Ahhhh!

A Fourth of July Picnic!

Yeah, clams... make sure it's clams.

- Menu
- Clam chowder
  - Steamed lobster
  - Steamed clams
  - Corn on the cob
  - Small red potatoes
  - Roasted onions
  - Lemonade
  - Blueberry pie

Some people who live near the shore go to the beach and dig a pit in the sand and cook food in it. When the food is cooked, everyone visits and eats. Follow the color key to find out what this fun picnic is called:

Temporary easing of VA restrictions

YOU MAY HAVE HEARD ME DISCUSS IN ONE OF MY RADIO SEGMENTS OR READ IN ONE OF MY EARLIER THE DOMINION POST COLUMNS a few of the details pertaining to the news of the National Association of Realtors. For those who may not be up to speed, essentially a lawsuit was filed in Missouri. The premise of the lawsuit has to do with a listing agent, who represents a seller, “cooperating” and therefore splitting the real estate commission with the buyer’s agent. That plaintiff/seller in Missouri took issue over the fact that a portion of the commission goes to the buyer’s agent. But my argument to that is: the buyer is the one funding the entire transaction. I won’t go down that particular rabbit hole in this column, but I do want to address the fact that the proposed settlement is causing other problems within the real estate industry.

One problem in particular is the Department of Veterans Affairs has had a policy for years restricting a veteran or service member from paying for certain expenses on their own as they purchase a home. The intent was noble and simply a way of offering those who’ve served our country an added benefit toward making home ownership a reality.

Although the proposed settlement hasn’t been accurately reported by some, the National Association of Realtors nevertheless decided to lobby lawmakers so that veterans or service members weren’t prevented from paying for professional representation in the home buying process. Fortunately, lawmakers and the VA agreed to temporarily suspend this restriction. This solves the problem for some.

Keep in mind that for home buyers, VA or otherwise, it’s rather common to struggle with down payments, let alone a commission. If a listing agent is prevented from splitting this commission, it could lead to many buyers entering into a major financial transaction against a seller who does have professional representation. Many of these buyers are first-time buyers, others are going through trauma in their lives and can’t do this alone. I say again, they’re the ones funding the overall transaction. This could be setting up many Americans for failure.

We believe the proposed settlement will go into effect in mid-August, and those of us in the trenches are still learning and waiting for guidance on how to address the overall challenge. Be prepared as you enter into a real estate transaction, your Realtor may be required to have you sign a representation agreement at the beginning of the process. Some Realtors already require this, while others like to develop a rapport with clients and want to develop trust in both directions. So, if you encounter having to sign an agreement early on, please understand — this just may be the new way of conducting business, whether we like it or not.

I’ll discuss this more in the upcoming weeks and months so that you better understand how it’ll affect you. We’re hoping for some creative solutions for home buyers so once I know more, I’ll share that with you.

Ask Angi: Should I clean my dryer vents?

MetroCreative photos

BY PAUL F. P. POGUE
Ask Angi (TNS)

Dryer vent cleaning is an easily overlooked chore. But clogged-up vents can mean debris in your ducts and potential fire hazards. They also apply more wear and tear to your dryer, which can require an expensive repair or even replacement.

The National Fire Protection Association suggests cleaning dryer vents once yearly, whether you hire a pro or do it yourself. This may be required more often; it depends on how often you use your dryer and how many people live in your home. This is also why you should clean the lint filter diligently after every load. Not only does a lint-covered filter make your dryer work less efficiently, but it also pushes more debris into the vents.

Pets in the home can also cause your dryer vents to require being cleaned more often. Lint and pet hair can easily clog up vents more quickly. Long ductwork with many twists and turns can also require more frequent cleaning.

Professional dryer vent cleaners bring an experienced eye and a knowledge of the most effective cleaning techniques. Particularly if you have a more extended dryer vent rather than one that vents directly outside through the wall, a professional can clean nooks and crannies that a DIYer might never even know existed.

While your pro is there, ask about ways you can improve your vents or slow down excessive lint. Their tips and tricks can be a major boost for you.

Some dryer vent cleanings take about half an hour, though some could take 2 or 3 hours. On average, hiring for dryer vent cleaning work costs about $140.

Prices may also go up if the dryer vents out at a particularly complicated location that requires technicians to go up on ladders or crawl under decks.

Birds, squirrels and other wildlife often attempt to create nests in dryer vents, especially ones that exit at the roof. At that point, debris from your clothes can quickly create a blockage as it catches on the nesting materials.

If you decide to go the DIY route, you can buy a brush kit to clean out your dryer vent.

Dryer vent cleaning kits typically cost $20 to $50 depending on the length of the rods and the quality of the kit. They typically attach to a hand-held power drill.

Signs you need to clean your dryer vents include:

- Your dryer is taking longer than usual to fully dry your clothes. Dirty dryer vents make your system work harder and less efficiently.

■ Your dryer or laundry room is excessively hot. The system normally cycles out hot air, but blocked vents can prevent this and push the air into the room instead.

■ Musty smells.

■ Excess lint and debris showing up in the lint filter.

'Base Ball' game brings large sum at auction

"BASE BALL: THE NATION'S GREATEST AMUSEMENT." So says this 1930s Jennings slot machine, and we expect few people would disagree. And in terms of great amusements, games of chance aren't far behind. The O.D. Jennings Company brought them together for a trade stimulator, or as they call it, "Silent Salesman." This restored example sold at Morphy Auctions for $3,840. The machine tracks outs, runs and innings, but "hits" are made by spinning a combination of symbols. Play to win a roll of Jennings' Superior Mints.

Q: I have a bottle opener by Utica Club in good shape. Could you tell me its worth?

A: Utica Club started as a soft drink company in Utica, New York. During Prohibition (1920-1933), the company sold "near beers" and malt tonics. When Prohibition ended, they were the first brewery to legally sell alcohol again. Anything related to beer or breweries is worth something to breweriana collectors. Bottle openers sell for a wide range of prices. Simple "church key" types stamped with the brewery's name can sell for $10 or less. Larger, more elaborate figural bottle openers can be worth hundreds of dollars. A collector's club or auction house specializing in breweriana, like the National Association of Breweriana Advertising (nababrew.com), Tavern Trove (taverntrove.com) or Morean Auctions (moreanauctions.com) can help you find more information and prices for specific openers.

A: The Lux Clock Manufacturing Company was founded in Waterbury, Connecticut, in 1914 and was sold to the Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Company in 1961. The company is well-known for its wind-up, animated and novelty clocks. Today, its desk clocks are worth about $50 to $100. Animated clocks usually have higher values. The Evans Case Co. was in business from 1922 to 1960. They made lighters in a variety of styles and materials. Today, their lighters are worth about $40 to $75. They are worth more if they are made of valuable materials like precious metals and gemstones.

U.S. home sales fall for the 3rd straight month in May amid rising mortgage rates, record-high prices

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Sales of previously occupied U.S. homes fell in May for the third straight month as rising mortgage rates and record-high prices discouraged many prospective homebuyers during what's traditionally the housing market's busiest period of the year.

Existing home sales fell 0.7% last month from April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4.11 million, the National Association of Realtors said Friday.

Sales also fell 2.8% compared with May last year. The latest sales still came in slightly higher than the 4.07 million pace economists were expecting, according to FactSet.

"I thought that we would actually see a recovery this spring — we are not seeing it," said Lawrence Yun, the NAR's chief economist.

Despite the pullback in sales, home prices climbed compared with a year earlier for the 11th month in a row. The national median sales price rose 5.8% from a year earlier to $419,300, an all-time high on records going back to 1999. It's also up 51% from five years ago.

Home prices rose even as sales slowed and the supply of properties on the market hit its highest level in 4 years.

"It's somewhat of a strange phenomena," Yun said. "We had low home sales activity, prices are hitting record highs and homes look like they're still getting multiple offers."

The U.S. housing market has been mired in a slump going back to 2022, when mortgage rates began to climb from pandemic-era lows. Existing home sales sank to a nearly 30-year low last year as the average rate on a 30-year mortgage surged to a 23-year high of 7.79%, according to mortgage buyer Freddie Mac.

The average rate on a 30-year mortgage has mostly hovered around 7% this year as stronger-than-expected reports on the economy and inflation have forced the Federal Reserve to keep its short-term rate at the highest level in more than 20 years.

Federal Reserve officials said last week that inflation has fallen further toward their target level of 2% in recent months and signaled that they expect to cut their benchmark interest rate once this year. The central bank had previously projected as many as three cuts in 2024, which raised expectations in the housing market for mortgage rates to have eased further by now.

"Maybe the Federal Reserve interest rate cut policy, which was projected to happen, but did not happen — it's getting delayed and delayed — maybe that's causing the home sales recovery to be delayed," Yun said.

The elevated mortgage rates are keeping many homeowners who bought or refinanced more than two years ago from selling now because they don't want to give up their fixed-rate mortgages below 3% or 4% — a trend real estate experts refer to as the "lock-in" effect.

As of the end of last year, more than 50% of homes with a mortgage had a rate that was 4% or lower, and 87% had a rate at 6% or lower, according to Realtor.com.

Another factor that's constrained the housing market is a tight supply of homes for sale, though that's been easing this year, partly because homes are taking longer to sell.

All told, there were about 1.3 million unsold homes at

A housing development in Middlesex, Pa. On Friday, June 21, 2024, the National Association of Realtors reports on existing home sales for May.

the end of last month, an increase of 6.7% from April and up 18.5% from May last year, NAR said.

That translates to a 3.7-month supply at the current sales pace. In a more balanced market between buyers and sellers there is a 4- to 5-month supply.

"Let's wait to see if this leads to more home sales," Yun said. "So far, that's not the case, but at least the inventory is beginning to loosen up."

Despite the increase in available homes for sale this spring, sellers generally still have the edge on buyers.

Homebuyers snapped up homes last month typically within just 24 days after the properties hit the market. And 30% of those properties sold for more than their original list price, which typically means sellers received offers from multiple home shoppers.

First-time homebuyers who don't have any home equity to put toward their down payment continue to have a tough time getting into the housing market. They accounted for 31% of all homes sold last month, which is down from 33% in April, but up from 28% in May last year. They've accounted for 40% of sales historically.

Homebuyers who can afford to sidestep mortgage rates and pay all cash for a home accounted for 28% of sales last month, up from 25% in May last year. And about 16% of homes sold in May were bought by individual investors or homeowners looking to buy a second home, up from 15% a year earlier, the NAR said.

San Jose OKs new protections for mobile home park residents

BY ETHAN VARIAN

The Mercury News (TNS)

San Jose, the city with the most mobile home parks in California, has adopted new rules to protect tens of thousands of park residents from displacement by making it more difficult to redevelop the sites for other purposes.

Over the past decade, the city has worked to establish a new land-use category specifically for its 58 mobile home parks. The latest update means that when a developer or property owner wants to turn any of those parks into housing or another kind of development, they must first ask the City Council to change the zoning regulation to allow a project that's not a mobile home site.

Some parks became subject to that requirement earlier this year. Last week, the council unanimously agreed to extend the protections to the remaining 43 parks not yet covered under the added zoning.

"You're helping add layers of protection against displacement," mobile home resident Jill Borders told councilmembers before the June 11 vote. "You're helping answer the question that my 9-year-old daughter asked me after we were evicted: 'How can I be born and not have a place to live?'"

Mobile home parks have long provided a more affordable housing option for San Jose residents, often seniors and middle-income families. The homes, which residents own while leasing the land underneath, can cost around $350,000 to $400,000. Compare that to more than $2 million for a typical single-family house in the South Bay. An estimated 35,000 people live in 11,000 mobile homes across the city.

But in 2015, after residents at the Winchester Ranch Senior Mobile Home Park opposed developers who sought to convert their community into apartment buildings, mobile home owners across the city grew worried about getting pushed out. The Winchester Ranch residents eventually struck a deal that guaranteed them a spot at the new development.

Over the next few years, the City Council adopted new mobile home protections, including giving itself more authority to deny a permit for a mobile home conversion.

Now, by establishing a land-use category for all mobile home parks, anyone aiming to redevelop a park for another purpose must also get the council's approval to change the new zoning regulations. That would mean completing the lengthy and expensive environmental review process required for many developments under state law.

"This is an added layer of protection if the owner of those properties hypothetically wanted to redevelop them for some other use," said San Jose Mayor Matt Mahan.

Some in the local real estate industry, however, argue the new rules could hinder the city's effort to alleviate its intensifying housing shortage by making it much more complicated to convert mobile home parks into more dense condo or apartment complexes. Under state law, the city is expected to approve 62,000 new homes — about half of them affordable — over the next decade.

"San Jose has no chance of meeting its housing needs and obligations under state law if it is going to adopt policies like this that make it more difficult to redevelop and densify existing residential land," said South Bay land-use consultant Erik Schoennauer. Schoennauer, who represented the group that redeveloped the Winchester Ranch park, credited the conversion with increasing the number of housing units on the property from around 110 to almost 700. The developer also compensated mobile home residents and offered them the opportunity to live at the new apartment complex at a reduced rate.

"How we transitioned Winchester Ranch Mobile Home Park is a much better land use policy approach for our city," he said.

Before voting to approve the latest protections, councilmember David Cohen said the new rules are in keeping with the city's goal of preserving affordable housing.

Real estate Q&A: Can HOA change rules about paint color for our house?

BY GARY M. SINGER

South Florida Sun Sentinel (TNS)

Q: Two years ago, we filled out the appropriate form with paint samples for the house, trim, and a new roof and submitted it to our community association, which the board approved. Recently, the new board president sent us a letter telling us that although we were approved in April 2022, it was incorrect, and when we needed to paint again, we could not use the paint color that was previously approved. Can a new board change its mind after the fact and prohibit us from touching up our paint or repainting our house in the same color in the years ahead? — Blane

A: Homeowners associations can only tell residents what color to paint their homes if their declaration of covenants allows it.

If the declaration has a range of colors, the board or architectural committee must follow those rules and let owners pick from those options. They cannot do so if the declaration does not expressly give the board the power to choose colors.

In my practice, I have encountered many associations enforcing rules in good faith that the board thought existed because "that was the way it was always done" when they did not have the power to do so.

Carefully review your community's formative documents to see if your community even has the right to enforce color schemes.

If they can and your color is on the approved list, you can stick with it.

The rules agreed to in the declaration govern what residents can and cannot do and are not dependent on who happens to be serving on the board of directors.

However, if the documents do not allow your association to pick colors, it cannot start now. If the prior board incorrectly allowed you to paint your house an unapproved color, the new board cannot force you to repaint your house now.

While you should be able to touch up and maintain your current color for years to come, when it comes time to repaint your house, you will need to abide by the procedures and choose from your community's approved colors.

Average long-term mortgage rate falls again, easing to lowest level since April

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Home loan borrowing costs eased again this week as the average rate on a 30-year mortgage declined to its lowest level since early April.

The rate fell to 6.87% from 6.95% last week, mortgage buyer Freddie Mac said Thursday. A year ago, the rate averaged 6.67%.

This is the third straight weekly decline in the average rate, which has mostly hovered around 7% since April. Higher mortgage rates can add hundreds of dollars a month in costs for borrowers, limiting homebuyers' purchasing options.

Borrowing costs on 15-year fixed-rate mortgages, popular with homeowners refinancing their home loans, also eased this week, lowering the average rate to 6.13% from 6.17% last week. A year ago, it averaged 6.03%, Freddie Mac said.

"Mortgage rates fell for the third straight week following signs of cooling inflation and market expectations of a future Fed rate cut," said Sam Khater, Freddie Mac's chief economist.

Home loan rates are influenced by several factors, including how the bond market reacts to the Federal Reserve's interest rate policy and the moves in the 10-year Treasury yield, which lenders use as a guide to pricing home loans.

Yields have mostly eased recently following some economic data showing slower growth, which could help keep a lid on inflationary pressures and convince the Federal Reserve to begin lowering its main interest rate from its highest level in more than 20 years.

Federal Reserve officials said last week that inflation has fallen further toward their target level of 2% in recent months and signaled that they expect to cut their benchmark interest rate once this year. The central bank had previously projected as many as three cuts in 2024.

Until the Fed begins lowering its short-term rate, long-term mortgage rates are unlikely to ease significantly, economists say.

Even then, mortgage rates "are likely to remain well above the 3.5% to 5% range that prevailed in the decade before the pandemic," said Jiayi Xu, an economist with Realtor.com.

The average rate on a 30-year mortgage remains near a two-decade high, discouraging many would-be homebuyers. The elevated rates contributed to a lackluster spring homebuying season. Sales of previously occupied U.S. homes fell in March and April as home shoppers contended with rising borrowing costs and prices.

Another factor constraining the housing market is a tight supply of homes for sale. While it has risen this year, partly because properties are taking longer to sell, the inventory of homes on the market remains well below its pre-pandemic levels. A major factor is many homeowners who bought or refinanced more than two years ago are reluctant to sell now and give up their fixed-rate mortgages below 3% or 4% — a trend real estate experts refer to as the "lock-in" effect.

As of the end of last year, more than 50% of homes with a mortgage had a rate that was 4% or lower, and 87% had a rate at 6% or lower, according to Realtor.com.

A third helping 'The Bear' returns with Michelin-star dreams

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

Yes, Chef! One of the biggest dramedy hits of the '20s so far, FX's "The Bear," returns with its highly anticipated third season, streaming Thursday, June 27, on Hulu, with all 10 episodes of the fresh new season served up at once on premiere day. The titular restaurant reopens as a fine dining establishment this season, and Carmen "Carry" Berzatto (Jeremy Allen White, "Shameless"), Sydney Adamu (Ayo Edebiri, "Bottoms," 2023) and Richie Jerimovich (Ebon Moss-Bachrach, "NOS4A2") are under a mountain of stress trying to make it all work.

Members of the main cast returning this season are Abby Elliott ("Odd Mom Out") as co-owner of The Bear and Carry's sister, Natalie "Sugar" Berzatto; Lionel Boyce ("Hap and Leonard") as pastry chef Marcus Brooks; Liza Colon-Zayas ("IF," 2024) as line cook Tina Marrero; and Matty Matheson ("It's Suppertime!") as The Bear's handyman, Neil Fak. Other recurring cast members in the series are Oliver Platt ("Chicago Med") as Berzatto family friend and investor in The Bear, Jimmy "Cicero" Kalinowski; Edwin Lee Gibson ("Winning Time: The Rise of the Lakers Dynasty") as long-time line cook Ebraheim; and Molly Gordon ("Theater Camp," 2023) as Carry's long-suffering girlfriend, Claire.

The heat is on for The Bear — formerly known as The Beef — to make its mark on Chicago's culinary scene and start turning a profit, but last season's finale left one very important member of the kitchen in the cold. Plagued by stress-induced panic attacks while the team prepared tirelessly for the grand opening, Carry found himself locked in the walk-in fridge during the restaurant's family and friends soft opening service. Trapped unintentionally in the frozen cell, Carry faced everything that led him to leave the fridge door handle repair task unchecked on his to-do list.

The all-important fine dining kitchen education that the staff of The Beef gained before their restaurant became The Bear was put to use while Carry was incapacitated. Richie, having spent some time working his way up from polishing forks to understanding floor management and elite customer service in one of the Windy City's finest restaurants, stepped up and called out orders while Sydney got her hands dirty on the line. In five crucial minutes, the team pulled it off and service returned to its normal chaotic pace.

Tina thrived at culinary school, easily rising to the occasion as Sydney's sous-chef, while Marcus' time in Copenhagen studying under a talented pastry chef gave him inspiration for his part of The Bear's menu. Even with Carry's absence, the opening went relatively smoothly, with only the smallest of hiccups — which can only be expected from a restaurant with a so-called "chaos menu."

In the official trailer for the upcoming season of "The Bear," it's all about non-negotiables. Carry butts heads against everyone else, it seems, in his pursuit of perfection and a new dream of a Michelin star. While he contends with how he blew up his relationship with Claire from the fridge, Carry sends Sydney a legally binding partnership agreement. For the restaurant! Everyone ups their culinary skills to meet Carry's ever-increasing standards, and Cicero and Sugar have a spat over money.

No one from the cast and crew of "The Bear" is talking details about Season 3, but in an interview with Gold Derby, Platt commended the Emmy-winning writing of the series, saying, "You don't often see writing this muscular and efficient."

About the outstanding success of the series, Platt said, "The most remarkable thing about 'The Bear' is that it, for all intents and purposes, came out of nowhere. Obviously, FX has really talented programmers.

But honestly, if you asked them, I think they'd tell you they were shocked. I know they loved it, but there was no guarantee other people would."

That love from viewers has resulted in a whopping 81 award nominations and 71 wins for "The Bear," with White, Edebiri and Moss-Bachrach all being handed Emmys at the 75th annual ceremony in January for their work on the first season of the show.

While they were each known for their past work, the success of "The Bear" set those three cast members' careers, in particular, into the stratosphere. White spent a decade portraying Lip Gallagher in Showtime's "Shameless," perfecting his role as the aggrieved glue holding the family together. Edebiri was on the rise as a voice actor in Netflix's animated comedy "Big Mouth" and as a writer and star of Apple TV+ series "Dickinson," while Moss-Bachrach gave a very memorable performance as Desi in HBO's iconic sitcom "Girls."

No one thing makes a great show great, and like all hit TV, "The Bear" is the sum of all its parts. It has a talented roster of writers and performers, and on the surface, everyone loves a good workplace drama. But "The Bear" has a few things that make it special.

The most obvious, if you've caught even a few minutes of the show before, is the frenzied pace that the dialogue, sound and cinematography set, mimicking the chaos of a real kitchen and elevating the mundanity of preparing food. Finally, there are the incredibly bold and plentiful needle drops on very cool, atmospheric music.

Pull on your chef's whites and man your station because all 10 episodes of "The Bear" drop Thursday, June 27, on Hulu.

The 2024 NHL Entry Draft set to kick off at the Las Vegas Sphere

By Roberto Jozef
TV Media

The 2024 NHL Entry Draft is fast approaching, with the highly anticipated event set to take place at the Las Vegas Sphere, June 28-29 in Paradise, Nevada, with the spotlight on none other than Macklin Celebrini, who is widely regarded as the top prospect at this year's draft. Catch all of the 2024 NHL Entry Draft live on ESPN.

Expected by many to go first overall in the draft, Macklin Celebrini is a dynamic center from Boston University. As a freshman, Celebrini racked up 64 points (32 goals, 32 assists) in just 37 games, showcasing a complete 200-foot game that ultimately led to his nomination for the Hobey Baker Award (which he won). But, more importantly, these impressive stats led to Celebrini securing his position as the top candidate to be the No. 1 overall pick. Proving his ability to control the game on both ends of the ice, Celebrini has the star power to make him a franchise-altering prospect.

Beyond Celebrini, the draft class is teeming with diverse talent. Other notable names include offensive defenseman Zayne Parekh of the OHL's Saginaw Spirit (projected fifth overall); Cayden Lindstrom of the WHL's Medicine Hat Tigers, a highly touted center with excellent offensive awareness and skill set (projected third overall); and Artyom Levshunov, a freshman defenseman at Michigan State, who has caught attention from teams for his ability to play a complete game and with the skills to play in all situations (projected second overall).

With a good crop of NHL-ready prospects included alongside Celebrini, this year's draft is set to be one of the most unpredictable in recent memory.

FACTS

Full name: Macklin Celebrini
Birthdate: June 13, 2006
Birthplace: Vancouver, B.C., Canada
Height/weight: 6-0/190 pounds

Ghostbusters: Frozen Empire

Three years following their encounter with Gozer, Callie Spengler (Coon), her boyfriend, Gary Grooberson (Rudd), and her children, Trevor (Wolfhard) and Phoebe (Grace), relocate to New York City. There, they join with Winston Zeddemore (Hudson) and Ray Stantz (Aykroyd) to reestablish the Ghostbusters. After being presented with a brass orb inscribed with unusual markings by Nadeem Razmaadi (Nanijani), a slacker possessing untamed pyrokinetic powers, Ray suspects the object to be some sort of container for a formidable entity. When the phantom God Garraka escapes the orb, Ghostbusters both new and old must band together to save their city from becoming a frozen wasteland.

The Ministry of Ungentlemanly Warfare

In late 1941, the United Kingdom is struggling to stop Germany's offensive on Europe, and endures numerous bombings as a result. With their supply ships repeatedly destroyed and any attempts to receive aid continuously thwarted, veteran Brigadier Colin Gubbins (Elwes) launches Operation Postmaster, a black-ops mission designed to sabotage Germany's U-boat resupply operation on the Spanish-controlled island of Fernando Po, south of Cameroon. Enlisted by Gubbins to assemble a ground team, the actions of Gus March-Phillips (Cavill) and his allies ultimately end up changing the course of the war and set the stage for modern black operations.

The First Slam Dunk

Ryota Miyagi (Nakamura) is the point guard for Shohoku High School's basketball team. Ryota still carries the weight of his last interactions with his older brother, Sota, who passed away and who had inspired Ryota's passion for basketball. In his pursuit of the sport he loves so much, Ryota develops an unshakeable bond with his teammates, and together they challenge the inter-high school basketball champion, Sanoh Kogyo High School. The film is based on director Takehiko Inoue's Slam Dunk manga series.

'Outchef'd' Season 3 features some hot competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Season 3 of "Outchef'd" promises some good, hearty gameplay, with new episodes airing every Thursday on Food Network.

Despite a winding career path — as he first found stardom through the NFL, playing for the Carolina Panthers, Miami Dolphins and the New England Patriots — Eddie Jackson ("Yum and Yummer") found his home on the Food Network, having shifted to focus on his passion for food after retiring from the NFL in 2009.

Jackson, who was taught to cook by his grandmother and his father while growing up in Texas, first joined the network back in 2015 as a contestant on "Food Network Star." Not only did Jackson win the season, but he charmed the judges and audiences watching from home with a bright and bold personality, making stomachs across the country grumble with his flavorful dishes.

Nearly a decade later, Jackson now finds himself hosting his own series, bringing his unique blend of talents to an all-new format of culinary competition in "Outchef'd." This series — which reached more than 10.1 million viewers last season alone — follows Jackson as he "gives talented home cooks the surprise of their lives" (per Food Network) as they are asked to do battle against elite chefs, hoping to titillate the taste buds of visiting judges.

Throughout this third season, Jackson invites the likes of Rocco DiSpirito ("Rocco's Dinner Party"), Alex Guarnaschelli ("Ciao House"), Antonia Lofaso ("Beachside Brawl") and Michael Voltaggio ("Battle of the Brothers") to the kitchen — each a talented chef in their own right — and, in one episode, Jackson even joins the competition himself, entering a cook-off in an episode hosted by Ted Allen ("Chopped").

During this week's coming episode, airing Thursday, June 27, "Jackson challenges home cook Lydia Wexler to take on the renowned chef Michael Voltaggio in an intense salmon showdown," promises Food Network. "A panel of judges off the streets of New York City will determine if Lydia can outchef Michael and walk away with $5,000."

Following episodes will watch as one hobby cook is surprised by "an epic poultry power play" against celebrity chef Antonia Lofaso, another is launched into a halibut face-off against the world-famous Rocco DeSpirito, and a third is stunned by a seafood showdown against the one and only Alex Guarnaschelli in an epic "Outchef'd" finale.

Jackson knows a good game when he sees it and proves it in each and every episode of "Outchef'd," airing Thursdays on the Food Network.

"ZOMBIES: The Re-Animated Series" - Season 1
First introduced in the Disney Channel Original Movie series, the "Zombies" crew makes their animated debut in "ZOMBIES: The Re-Animated Series," coming to Disney+ this Saturday, June 29. "Every day is a surprise at Seabrook High—whether you're a cheerleader, a zombie, a werewolf or even a vampire!," says Disney. Following the day-to-day lives of high school seniors zombie Zed and cheerleader Addison, along with their zany group of friends, this brand-new season of adventures will see the teens tackle everything from cafeteria politics and football matches, to the ups and downs of living a "less-than-human" life.

With Milo Manheim ("School Spirits") and Meg Donnelly ("Legion of Super-Heroes," 2023) returning as the voices of Zed and Addison, respectively, the new series will also see the return of many familiar faces, including Willa (Chandler Kinney, "Pretty Little Liars: Original Sin"), Bucky (Trevor Tordjman, "Bunk'd"), Eliza (Kylee Russell, "Crushed," 2022), Bree (Carla Jeffery, "Southland") and A-Spen (Terry Hu, "The Girls on the Bus"), and will welcome newcomer Kahyun Kim ("Freaky Friday," 2018) as the voice of the awkward and upbeat Dae, who is both a witch and an alchemist. Produced by Aliki Theofilopoulos ("Phineas And Ferb") and Jack Ferraiolo ("Amphibia"), Season 1 of "ZOMBIES: The Re-Animated Series" will also feature brand-new songs in each and every episode, with the series' soundtrack releasing a day before the show's premiere, on Friday, June 28.

"Wahlburgers" - Season 1
You've probably heard of Mark Wahlberg ("Boogie Nights," 1997) and his brother Donnie ("Blue Bloods"), but as the youngest of nine kids, the youngest Wahlbergs have a whole lot to live up to, famous or not. This time, older brother Paul steals the show, serving up some good, hot eats in Season 1 of "Wahlburgers," coming to Disney+ this Wednesday, June 26. Even with the full support of his family (including two Hollywood heartthrob brothers), Paul still faces daily challenges running Wahlburgers—the Boston-based burger joint that bears their family's famous moniker. This beloved reality series follows Paul and the family as they are "caught up in a whirlwind of bustling kitchens, an impending expansion and everything in between," according to Disney, relying on each other to get through the hustle and bustle of feeding the hungry mouths of Dorchester. With a ten episode run for its

“Diane von Furstenberg: Woman in Charge” (2024)

Taking a deep dive into the non-stop life of cultural icon Diane von Furstenberg, the new feature-length documentary “Diane von Furstenberg: Woman in Charge” premieres Tuesday, June 25, on Hulu. Approaching the eve of her retrospective exhibition, which marks an incredible and distinguished 50-year career, the Belgian fashion designer looks back on her career, reflecting on “her pioneering path in a male-dominated realm,” in which she challenged the status quo “as an early visionary and influencer . . . with the bold inquiry, ‘Why can’t a woman do what a man does?’” (per Hulu). “With resolute determination, [von Furstenberg] faced various challenges — she was a single woman balancing a career, raising two children and bravely confronting cancer. These hurdles didn’t stop her; instead, she embraced them and they fueled her mission to inspire women everywhere to pursue their lives with equal passion and purpose and design their own lives. DVF was born to be a woman in charge. And she was born to inspire other women to take charge of their lives” (Hulu). Directed by Sharmeen Obaid-Chinoy (“Ms. Marvel”) and Trish Dalton (“Student Athlete,” 2018), “Woman in Charge” is produced by Obaid-Chinoy, Fabiola Beracasa (“The First Monday in May,” 2016), Tracy Aftergood (“Helen Be-

“The Invitation” (2022)

Inspired by Bram Stoker’s classic novel, “Dracula,” the Jessica M. Thompson (“The Light of the Moon,” 2017) directed film, “The Invitation” (2022), arrives on Hulu this Monday, June 24. Starring Nathalie Emmanuel (“Furious 7,” 2015) as struggling artist Evie, the film begins immediately following the tragic death of Evie’s mother, leaving the young woman struggling in both her career and her personal life, and desperate for answers. On a whim, Evie takes a DNA test to uncover more of her family’s history, and soon discovers a distant cousin living in England, Oliver Alexander (Hugh Skinner, “The Wipers Times,” 2013). Oliver invites Evie to come and meet her extended family, but the seemingly innocent trip turns dark when Evie begins to uncover the family’s dark and gothic secrets. Written by Blair Butler (“Polaroid,” 2019), “The Invitation” also stars Thomas Doherty (“Gossip Girl”), Sean Pertwee (“Equilibrium,” 2002), Carol Ann Crawford (“The Water Horse,” 2007), Alana Boden (“I Am Elizabeth Smart,” 2017), Stephanie Corneliussen (“Mr. Robot”), Courtney Taylor (“Abbott Elementary”) and Scott Alexander Young (“Tom Clancy’s Jack Ryan”).

Right Hand” makes its streaming debut this Friday, June 28, on Hulu. Acting as the debut screenplay for writer Jonathan Easley, this action-thriller toes the line between right and wrong, asking: how far is too far when it comes to protecting your family? Trying to live an honest life, Cash (Orlando Bloom, “Kingdom of Heaven,” 2005) has moved to live in a small Appalachian town, where he’s been raising his recently orphaned niece without any instance of trouble — that is, until a sadistic kingpin, Black Cat (Andie MacDowell, “Groundhog Day,” 1993), forces Cash into her illegal dealings. Cash must decide what he’s willing to sacrifice to save the town he lives in, and the only remaining family he has. An edge-of-your-seat, heart-clenching tale, “Red Right Hand” features an all-star cast that also includes James Lafferty (“One Tree Hill”), Brian Geraghty (“The Hurt Locker,” 2008), Scott Haze (“Jurassic World Domination,” 2022), Alexandra Park (“The Elephant Princess”), Nicolas Logan (“I Care a Lot,” 2020), Jeremy Ratchford (“Cold Case”), Chapel Oaks (“Pain Hustlers,” 2023), Mo McRae (“The First Purge,” 2018), Evan Gamble (“Hap and Leonard”) and Daniel David Stewart (“Catch-22”).

"My Lady Jane" - Season 1

Within the annals of history lies the story of Lady Jane Grey, who was crowned Queen of England for nine days in 1553 before being removed from the throne in favor of "Bloody Mary" Tudor, accused of treason and later beheaded. But now, series creator Gemma Burgess, author of the Brooklyn Girls trilogy, is turning history on its head and telling the story the way it should have happened in the new comedy "My Lady Jane," making its debut on Prime Video Thursday, June 27. Set in an alternate fantasy Tudor universe, the series, based on the bestselling book by Cynthia Hand, Brodi Ashton and Jodi Meadows, is a radical retelling of English royal history. In this world, King Henry VIII's son Edward (Jordan Peters, "Everything I Know About Love") doesn't die of tuberculosis, Lady Jane Grey (portrayed by Emily Bader, "Paranormal Activity: Next of Kin," 2021) is not beheaded and neither is her husband, Lord Guildford Dudley (Edward Bluemel, "Killing Eve"). But, the brilliant and headstrong Jane still finds herself crowned queen — and the target of a number of nefarious characters who are after both her crown and her head. But, this time, the damsel in distress is saving herself. Also starring in the series are Dominic Cooper ("Preacher") as Lord Seymour; Anna Chancellor ("The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy," 2005) as Jane's mother, Lady Frances Grey; Rob Brydon ("The Trip") as Lord Dudley, Guildford's father; Jim Broadbent ("Iris," 2001) as the portray the King's sisters, Princess Mary and Princess Bess, respectively.

Duke of Leicester, Jane's uncle; Henry Ashton ("Outlander") as Guildford's brother, Stan; Isabella Brownson ("Napoleon," 2023) and Robyn Betteridge ("The Wheel of Time") as Jane's sisters Katherine and Margaret; and Kate O'Flynn ("Bridget Jones's Baby," 2016) and Abbie Hern ("Enola Holmes 2," 2022)

"Orphan Black: Echoes" - Season 1

Based on the hit Canadian sci-fi series "Orphan Black," AMC's new spinoff, "Orphan Black: Echoes," premieres Sunday, June 23, via the AMC+ Prime Video channel. Set in the near future, "Echoes" follows a group of women whose lives intertwine in unexpected and mysterious ways. Leading them on a thrilling journey, the group begins to "[unravel] the mystery of their identity and uncovering a wrenching story of love and betrayal" (per AMC). Front and center in the show is the story of Lucy, played by Krysten Ritter ("Jessica Jones"). Lucy is described by AMC as "a woman with an unimaginable origin story, trying to find her place in the world." Alongside Ritter, who also acts as an executive producer for the series, "Orphan Black: Echoes" stars Keeley Hawes ("Line of Duty"), Amanda Fix ("North of Normal," 2022), Avan Jogia ("Zombieland: Double Tap," 2019), Rya Kihlstedt ("Superman & Lois") and James Hiroyuki Liao ("Unforgettable"). Anna Fishko ("Fear the Walking Dead") is the creator, writer, showrunner and executive producer, while original series co-creator John Fawcett ("Sight Unseen") directs and executive produces.

Get a look into the final year of life of renowned entertainer Judy Garland, portrayed by Renée Zellweger ("Chicago," 2002) and by Darci Shaw ("The Irregulars") in flashbacks, when the 2019 biographical drama "Judy" becomes available to stream Wednesday, June 26, on Prime Video. As an adaptation of Peter Quilter's play, "End of the Rainbow," the film follows the legendary performer through her relocation England to be a part of sell-out run of concerts in the winter of 1968 in London, all the way to her passing during the summer of 1969. In between, Judy struggles with her deteriorating health and how it affects her ability to perform. Directed by Rupert Goold ("True Story," 2015) and adapted to film by Tom Edge ("Lovesick"), the film also stars Jessie Buckley ("Men," 2022), Finn Wittrock ("The Big Short," 2015), Rufus Sewell ("Dark City," 1998), Michael Gambon ("Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban," 2004), Richard Cordery ("Les Misérables," 2012), Bella Ramsey ("The Last of Us"), Royce Pierreson ("The Witcher"), Andy Nyman ("Death at a Funeral," 2007), Phil Dunster ("Ted Lasso"), Daniel Cerqueira ("The Woman in Black," 2012), Arthur McBain ("Napoleon," 2023), John Dagleish ("Christopher Robin," 2018), Gemma-Leah Devereux ("Smother"), David Rubin ("Walking with Cavemen"), Lewin Lloyd ("The Aeronauts," 2019), Fenella Woolgar ("Call the Midwife") and Gus Barry ("Hetty Feather").

"A Family Affair" (2024)

Exploring the ways in which we never truly stop "coming of age," the multi-generational family comedy film "A Family Affair" premieres Friday, June 28, on Netflix. Zara Ford (Joey King, "We Were the Lucky Ones") is the harried assistant to Chris Cole (Zac Efron, "The Iron Claw," 2023), a conceited movie star and nightmare boss. When Zara's mother, Brooke (Nicole Kidman, "Big Little Lies"), falls into a relationship with Chris, it puts Zara in a horribly awkward position. As the trio move through their lives, "they face the complications of love, sex and identity" (per Netflix). Directed by Richard LaGravenese ("The Divide"), "A Family Affair" is Carrie Solomon's ("The Good Fight") screenwriting debut. Kathy Bates ("The Great Lillian Hall," 2024), Liza Koshy ("Players," 2024), Sherry Cola ("Good Trouble"), Gissette Valentin ("The Walking Dead: World Beyond") and Olivia Macklin ("The Young Pope") round out the cast.

"That '90s Show" - Part 2

Back in Wisconsin for another summer in Point Place, "That '90s Show" kicks off its second installment Thursday, June 27, on Netflix. Now set in 1996, this spinoff of "That '70s Show" finds Leia Forman (Callie Haverda, "Shut Eye") back with her grandparents, Red (Kurtwood Smith, "RoboCop," 1987) and Kitty ("The Ranch"). While Leia and Jay Kelso (Mace Coronel, "Nicky, Ricky, Dicky & Dawn") are excited to be back together after nine long months apart, tensions rise as secrets between Leia and Nate (Maxwell Acee Donovan, "Gabby Duran &

The Unsittables") threaten to tear the group apart. Will the summer of fun end before it can even get started? Also starring Ashley Aufderheide ("Emergence"), Reyn Doi ("Side Hustle") and Sam Morelos ("Descendants: The Rise of Red," 2024), the series comes from creators Gregg Mettler ("That '70s Show"), Bonnie and Terry Turner (both of "3rd Rock from the Sun") and first-time producer Lindsey Turner.

"Owning Manhattan" - Season 1

After years on Bravo starring in both "Million Dollar Listing New York" and "Sell It Like Serhant," real estate mogul Ryan Serhant makes his way to Netflix for the all-new reality series "Owning Manhattan," which debuts Friday, June 28, on the streamer. Serhant and his real estate firm take center stage in this gripping reality show that explores the high-stakes world of New York City real estate. Over the course of eight episodes, Serhant and his team — made up of powerhouse real estate agents like Chloe, Genesis, Jeffrey and Jonathan — try to secure NYC's most exclusive luxury listings from their competition. To motivate his team to greater success, Serhant adds some incentives to the proceedings, such as giving $10 million to the first agent to sell the most expensive apartment in the world. However, internal competition comes with its own set of drama and turmoil. The first season of "Owning Manhattan" comes from executive producers Fenton Bailey, Randy Barbato, Tom Campbell (all of "RuPaul's Drag Race"), Bianca Barnes-Williams ("Tidying Up with Marie Kondo") and Kelley Montalvo ("Burn the Ships," 2017).

"Worst Roommate Ever" - Season 2

From Blumhouse Television comes a new season of terrifying stories about the worst roommates to ever exist. Season 2 of "Worst Roommate Ever" is available to stream Wednesday, June 26, on Netflix. Based on the New York Magazine article of the same name written by William Brennan — who served as a co-executive producer on the first season — this anthology docuseries covers the "terrifying true stories" that constituted "the worst cohabitation experiences one could ever imagine" through a mix of testimonials from the victims, live-action snippets and animated recreations of events (per Netflix). While not much is known about the new season, a sneak peek video released at the end of May documents the strange behavior of a man named Scott that would terrorize his roommate and the roommate's cats. Outside of that, Cynthia Childs ("BTK: Confession of a Serial Killer") is credited as director and a producer for the season, while Jason Blum ("Get Out," 2017), Mary Lisio ("30 Days") and Jeremy Gold ("Totally Killer," 2023) all return as executive producers. In addition, Jordana Hochman ("Queer Eye"), Gretchen Palek ("Chef vs. Wild") and Scoop Wasserstein ("The Outfit," 2022) serve as producers for the new season.

Patton Oswalt hosts "The 1% Club"

All American

Wedding bells ring during this new episode, as Lyla (Greta Onieogou) and Jordan (Michael Evans Behling) prepare for their big day. Lyla admits she misses her mother, while Spencer (Daniel Ezra) shifts focus from the NFL draft to the upcoming nuptials.

Summer Baking Championship

(FOOD) 8 p.m.
Host Jesse Palmer celebrates Shark Week by tasking the bakers to make cookie bars shaped like beach-inspired items such as surfboards, flip flops or sunglasses. Then, they must bake shark cage desserts good enough for a great white.

Mysteries of the Unknown

(TRAV) 8 p.m.
It's a mix of mysteries when Don Wildman looks into the short political career of NYC Mayor William Gaynor, who was shot in the throat and died three years later. Then, a double agent spies for his freedom. And, a Liberty Head coin becomes very valuable.

The 1% Club

(46) (53) 9 p.m.
Patton Oswalt hosts this new game show that focuses on logic and thought processes to move forward. Beginning with 100 contestants, Oswalt asks questions of increasing difficulty, ending at what only one per cent of Americans get right.

POV

(13) (24) 10 p.m.
One of the most celebrated films to debut at the 2023 Sundance Film Festival, Elaine McMillion Sheldon's "King Coal," kicks off this 37th season. Stunning cinematography and gorgeous prose, it captures the life of a coal miner's daughter in Appalachia.

Ashley McBride and Jelly Roll host "CMA Fest"

CMA Fest

Get a front-row seat to the ultimate country music fan experience with this three-hour concert special. Hosted by country superstars Jelly Roll and Ashley McBryde, this special highlights the best performances from the 51st CMA Fest in Nashville, Tenn.

America's Got Talent

⑨ (11) (12) 8 p.m.

As more amateur performers step up to the "AGT" stage, judges Simon Cowell, Heidi Klum, Howie Mandel and Sofia Vergara have the difficult task of filtering the good from the bad. Which dreams will continue? And which will be crushed? Terry Crews hosts.

Beat Shazam

Put those skills to the test. During this game show, teams of two race against the clock to identify some of the greatest songs of all time. The winning duo then plays against Shazam, the music identification app, for the chance to win $1 million.

Deadliest Catch

(DISC) 8 p.m.

Sig and Johnathan hightail it to an underwater canyon in hopes of beating the hoard of migrating king crab. Jake looks to impress aboard the Titan Explorer after leaving Sig. And, Rick ends up on Keith's naughty list when his promotion plan goes awry.

One South: Portrait of a Psych Unit

(HBO) 9 p.m.

The psychiatric unit at Zucker Hillside Hospital in Queens, N.Y., specializes in treating young adults. And while it may look like a college dorm, patients arrive every day in crisis. This two-part film follows the process from intake through discharge.

Wednesday Best Bets

2024 NBA Draft

(ESPN) 7:30 p.m. 8 p.m.

Being opportunistic comes in handy for professional basketball teams when the best and brightest NBA prospects are selected today at the Barclays Center in Brooklyn, N.Y. Names expected to be called include Bronny James, Alex Sarr and Reed Sheppard.

Walker

(22) 8 p.m.

In this series finale, Cordell Walker (Jared Padalecki) attempts to balance family and work, hoping to help his two kids (Violet Brinson, Kale Culley) grow into the young adults they want to be, while reconnecting with brother Liam (Keegan Allen).

Hope in the Water

(13) (24) 9 p.m.

Friday Best Bets

WWE Champion Cody Rhodes features in "WWE Friday Night Smackdown"

The Big Bakeover

(22) 8 p.m.
Season 1 of "The Big Bakeover" continues with a new episode, following Nancy Birtwhistle as she attempts to save struggling bakeries from "bakruptcy." This week, Nancy plans to help a recently divorced cookie artist save her struggling business.

WWE Friday Night SmackDown

(46) (53) 8 p.m.
Live from the most famous arena in the world, Madison Square Garden in New York City, qualifying matches for the men's and women's Money in the Bank ladder matches continue to roll on. Who will punch their ticket to this annual spectacular?

Guy's All-American Road Trip

(FOOD) 9 p.m.
A camp breakfast becomes a battle of the cooks to see who makes the best sweet and savory dishes for Guy Fieri, his wife, Lori, and his sons, Hunter and Ryder on their RV trip. Then, a campground carnival makes a feast of Lebanese and Mediterranean food.

20/20

(4) 9 p.m.
Fridays are the perfect day for a news run-down. Anchors David Muir and Deborah Roberts bring correspondents Juju Chang, John Quiñones and Diane Sawyer on-board to discuss everything from past and current political scandals to ongoing police investigations.

Zillow Gone Wild

(HGTV) 10:30 p.m.
It's been an amazing mix of wild and wacky. After 24 houses that made host Jack McBrayer clutch his chest, the final eight advance to be the wildest of them all. The field continues to get narrowed until one is crowned the "Zillow Gone Wild" Champion.

X Games Ventura 2024

④ 1 p.m.

Expect the air to be rarefied when the world's best X Games competitors — including several Olympians — gather in sunny Ventura, Calif., to go head-to-head in everything from skateboarding, to BMX, to Moto X and more, looking for glory.

U.S. Olympic Trials

Men and women compete for coveted spots on the U.S.'s Gymnastics team ahead of the 2024 Paris Olympics. Broadcast live from the Target Center in Minneapolis, Minn., the event will see some of the sport's very best stick seemingly impossible landings.

Problemista

HBO 8 p.m.

An aspiring toy designer from El Salvador, Alejandro (Julio Torres), comes to New York City to make his dreams come true. As he chases his fanciful ideas, his erratic employer, Elizabeth (Tilda Swinton), helps sponsor him so he can stay in the country.

The Killer Inside: The Ruth Finley Story

LIFE 8 p.m.

When Ruth Finley's (Teri Hatcher) husband Ed (Tahmoh Penikett) suffers a heart attack, she begins receiving disturbing threats. With the city gripped by the terror of the BTK killer, she is soon abducted, but quickly released, baffling investigators.

Boxing

ESPN 10 p.m.

One of the more dominant stars of the light welterweight division returns to the ring as 26-year-old Teofimo Lopez (20-1, 13 KOs) defends his WBO title in Miami against 34-year-old Canadian Steve Claggett (38-7-2, 26 KOs). More boxing on the card.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: With the sequel coming out in a few weeks, I rewatched "Inside Out" with my kids. Who voices the sad character?

A: Phyllis Smith voices Sadness in the hit Disney Pixar film "Inside Out" (2015), and the story of how she got there is anything but sad.

Smith had worked for casting companies for years, and one of her jobs was reading lines for actors while they auditioned. In 2004, she was helping with auditions for a new NBC pilot called "The Office" when everything changed. Director and producer Ken Kwapis ("The Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants," 2005) was there, and he liked her readings so much he created a character for her to play on the show — aptly named Phyllis.

Her role grew over the course of the show, and she ultimately won loads of awards as part of "The Office's" acting ensemble.

It's led to numerous gigs since, including big-screen comedies "Bad Teacher" (2011), "Alvin and the Chipmunks: Chipwrecked" (also 2011) and 2021's "Barb and Star Go to Vista Del Mar."

Of course, it also led her to 2015's "Inside Out" and now its sequel, "Inside Out 2," released just this month.

Those films have absolutely stacked voice casts. But notably for Phyllis Smith fans, they're particularly full of alumni from the wave of beloved late-'00s NBC sitcoms that "The Office" kicked off. This includes Amy Poehler of "Parks and Recreation" fame and Mindy Kaling, who co-starred in "The Office" as Kelly. "Inside Out 2" also features Yvette Nicole Brown, part of the ensemble of NBC's "Community."

Q: Why haven't I seen Patricia Richardson in a while? Is she still working?

A: There are a couple of reasons why Patricia Richardson, who played the mom, Jill, in "Home Improvement" from 1991 to 1999, has seemed scarce since.

creasing amount of time to her off-screen work with the SAG-AFTRA actors' union. But mostly it's just about knowing where to look.

She's done some guest spots on big series over the last few years, such as "Grey's Anatomy" and "Last Man Standing" (reuniting her with her "Home Improvement" co-star, Tim Allen). But the most time-consuming role she's taken on recently hasn't been on broadcast or even on streaming. Lately, she's been busy playing Maddie Hall in all three "County Line" movies so far, which aired on the lesser-known INSP cable channel.

INSP offers largely western-themed programming and aims to be a channel the family can watch together. It created the "County Line" movies to suit that goal, and you can see it in the cast: they star Tom Wopat, of the classic western show "The Dukes of Hazzard," and Richardson, an icon of family TV thanks to "Home Improvement."

As I said, there have been three so far — 2017's "County Line" and 2022's "County Line: All In" and "No Fear." There's no word yet on more, but INSP is clearly devoted to the series.
