Motorcycle rally back at Triple S

BY JIM BISSETT

JBissett@DominionPost.com

Thunder, off in the distance and Mother Nature doesn't have a thing to do with it.

It's MountainFest, throttling its way back to Morgantown.

Make that, the rebranded Wild & Wonderful MountainFest, the return of the University City's iconic motorcycle rally.

The rally runs from Thursday, the Fourth of July, through Sunday on the grounds of Triple S Harley-Davidson, Gateway.

Look for appearances from MountainFest favorites from years gone by, such as Jack Schit, Bag Lady Sue, the Kentucky Headhunters and Bastard Bearded Irishmen.

The legendary Coal Bucket Saloon is setting them up again, also.

"We're back for the first time in five years and we're ready to put on a good festival," said Jamie Summerlin, the community booster whose Guidon Creative event-planning firm has taken over the MountainFest proceedings for the long-anticipated homecoming.

Costs and other factors put the rally on hiatus in 2019. Prior to that, the rally was a summer staple for 15 years at Mylan Park.

Bikers from across the region and all of the U.S., really, rumbled in for the party.

Granville exploring move onto county's primary ballot in 2026

BY BEN CONLEY

BConley@DominionPost.com

The town of Granville is looking to follow Star City and Westover onto the county ballot.

Granville Town Council will conduct a public hearing and vote on July 9 regarding an ordinance to hold a special election as part of the county's general election ballot, in November. The town's voters will be asked if they support a move in-cycle with the county.

Should council approve the ordinance and voters back the move with a simple majority in November, the town will hold its standalone election as normal on June 10, 2025. Winners in that election will serve a one-year term and all seats will be back up for election, with the town's traditional two-year terms, as part of the county's primary in May 2026.

"It's pretty cut and dry. We just want to make it more convenient for people to vote in our municipal elections. Star City took the lead on this, and it really does make a lot of sense to encourage participation," Granville Mayor Patty Lewis said. "We actually wanted to do this last year but we got started too late."

According to Lewis, 67 of the town's 646 registered voters participated in its 2023 election.

With the addition of Star City and Westover candidates, the May 14 primary marked the first time municipal elections were held in conjunction with a county-run election.

The impact on turnout was immediate and dramatic in both instances.

Chief deputies retire from Mon Sheriff's Department

BY ERIN CLEAVENGER

ECleavenger@DominionPost.com

For more than three decades, Mark Ralston and Vance Lipscomb donned the uniform of the Monongalia County Sheriff's Department. They officially suited up for the last time on Friday, announcing their retirement from the department.

Each logged more than 30 years, rising through the ranks to both attaining the title of chief deputy.

"It comes to a point where all of us retire." Sheriff Perry Palmer said.

"These guys have been with me for all my terms, and I owe a lot to both of them — their professionalism and their work ethic when you're dealing with 100-and-some people there's no way I'd be able to do it myself."

Alongside Palmer, Lipscomb, who logged 33 years with the department, handled civilian operations and Ralston, with 35 years, handled the law enforcement side.

Palmer attributed much of the department's success to the partnership among the three of

"I wouldn't be able to do it like I do now without them," he said. "It's something that's made this department what it is. And I'm sure the citizens appreciate that too, knowing they have this kind of longevity — people that stay around and stick around.

"Everybody should be proud of them and what they've done with this department and moving it forward."

Since the 90s, all three have worked their way up through the ranks as the department grew and changed.

Ralston was Palmer's supervisor on the afternoon shift when the sheriff first started with the department and Lipscomb rode with Palmer when he got out of the police academy.

In the mid-90s, they became part of the department's first Special Response Team (SRT) or SWAT team under former sheriff the late Joe Bartolo.

Their journey has gone from an aging building with two computers that once housed the sheriff's department to the state-of-the-art facility they now have. They didn't even have portable radios when they started.

"And then we got two to use among all three shifts," Ralston laughed.

Through all the changes and advancements in the department, they remained steadfast in their

"I've grown up here. This has been my entire life, so it's bittersweet," Lipscomb said. "You always long for this to happen, but when it gets here it's a little surreal because technically this will be the last day we wear a uniform.'

"The three of us have been together over half of our lives, coming up through together, it's different. So, it's more than just a job," Ralston said. "Like Vance said, it's bittersweet. This is all we know. I mean I was 21 when I started here." Looking back, Lipscomb and Ralston agreed it

MONEY

Pop tax ends run after 71 years

State finds other funds for WVU HSC, Marshall, WVOSM

BY JEFF JENKINS WVMetroNews.com

CHARLESTON — A 71-yearold West Virginia tax goes off the books today.

The one cent beverage tax, more commonly known as the pop tax, is no more. State lawmakers voted in the 2022 regular legislative session to remove the tax and its $14 million in annual funding.

The pop tax was first approved in 1951 with the goal of funding the construction of the WVU Medical School in Morgantown. The medical school was long ago built but the tax stayed on as WVU got used to the money it generated.

"It's really hard to get a tax off," state Revenue Secretary Larry Pack admitted recently. "Every once in a while the taxpayers get a win and this is a win for the taxpayers of West Virginia."

WVU is still getting its $14 million.

When lawmakers voted to eliminate the tax, they also came up with a way to continue the funding with money from the state Insurance Premium Tax. It now funds WVU health sciences with $14 million, Marshall University Joan C. Edwards School of Medicine with $5.5 million and Osteopathic School Medicine with $3.9 million.

Funds from that tax have gone to the state's general revenue account. Then-WVU Vice President Rob

Alsop said at the time the replacement revenue "helps get us comfortable and achieves their objective." The Insurance Premium Tax funding will represent about 40% of WVU's state funding for its

Researchers developing home sleep apnea test device

BY DAVID BEARD

DBeard@DominionPost.com

WVU researchers are developing a home sleep apnea testing device that could open doors for more to get tested benefiting them as patients, along with the healthcare community and the public in general. The device pairs a fingertip clip that resembles a pulse oximeter and a slim, flexible black plastic wristwatch connected by a short (Because patented and still in development, and the market is competitive, photos of it were not permitted.)

"It's a very ordinary looking device, because we didn't want to make it too intimidating for the patient," said Dr. Sunil Sharma, division chief of the Pulmonary, Critical Care and Sleep Medicine Fellowship Program in the WVU School of Medicine, who led the team to develop it.

It's estimated, he said, that 80% of apnea cases go undetected and unresolved. It's more magnified in West Virginia, which ranks low on heath metrics across the board, and where geography and other factors hinder access to care.

Not to mention sleep testing in sleep labs is expensive, he said. "Anytime these factors conspire against the patient, the disease is missed."

ostructive sleep In apnea, the airways partially or completely collapse resulting in a decrease in oxygen saturation. Symptoms include loud snoring and excessive daytime sleepiness, but people many asymptomatic.

And sleep apnea and lack of sleep can worsen comorbid conditions heart disease, stroke, afib, diabetes. So apnea going undiagnosed or untreated for too long does more harm.

other There are approved home sleep study devices. A quick internet search showed them some have similar finger clip-watch components, but more wires and connections. Others add belts and nasal cannulas.

The failure rate for those is high, Sharma said, because the patient can't sustain all the data channels with all the cable connections throughout the night. This one is simpler and more comfortable.

Researchers often overlook the reason for the study: bad sleep, he said. Sleep labs are too few and the demand too high, leading to long waits. And many patients don't enjoy being covered with wire leads like a Star Trek Borg drone and sleeping away from home in an uncomfortable

And with other home devices, patients will thrash in bed. "They can't sleep in consistent fashion. It's even harder to keep all of these devices on your body than a person who quietly sleeps."

So in researching this device, they thought they could improve the calibration signal to get all the data from multiple channels and consolidate it.

The technology — the device and software emerged from a five-year study Sharma and colleagues conducted at J.W. Ruby Memorial Hospital. Certain patients were tested for sleep apnea and those who were diagnosed received PAP — positive airway pressure therapy.

Patients who didn't adhere to the PAP therapy had significantly higher hospital readmissions and emergency room visits for cardiovascular and pulmonary treatment than those who did.

The study was published in April in the Journal of Clinical Sleep Medicine. Reduced readmissions save costs for the patients, the hosptial, the insurance payers. "I think if we're saving costs and we are making sure patients are not getting readmitted to the hospital, everybody wins," Sharma said.

wristwatch, The Sharma said, functions as a black box, collecting the data gathered from the fingertip clip. The patient can't see the data, which prevents them from curiously monitoring it during the night and disrupting their sleep.

But they are working on a new software program that will offer the patient concise, patient-friendly information, letting them know if they need a physician follow up, instead of having to wait days weeks for results. Sharma called it "patient empowerment."

Another advantage of this home device is it's designed to be used for several nights. This provides more accurate data than a snapshot from a single night, he said.

"I think it's a first step," he said. It's good for patients and researchers. Researchers are hamstrung by the costs of the devices and studies, so no large studies are available of how the community at large is affected by sleep apnea.

With this device, they may be able to expand studies from 50 or 60 patients to thousands, and see community-wide impacts.

Sharma said they don't envision this device replacing sleep labs. There will always be a need for that level of data for some patients.

"Our technology is not designed to compete with the sleep labs," he said. "Our technology is, there's so much disease out there that you can't even handle [in the labs]. It is not even being detected. If it's not being detected, then you can't pursue it."

So they are filling a void, he said.

Sharma has received a National Science Foundation Innovation Corps grant to continue the research. The grant will provide for collaboration among experts from WVU and other institutions. But they are also looking for other investors interested in advancing the work.

He summed up the project this way: "The community has a large burden of this disease that is undetected." You sleep one-third of your life, and that affects the other two-thirds. "If we fix that one-third, you'll have a better two-thirds of your daily living.'

"You make a lot of good friends when you start thinking back through the years and the statewide connections and national connections. You really make a lot of good friends throughout this type of employment."

"We didn't just get here. We've had so many great people that have come through here. As each sheriff has come on they've taken over and improved upon what the last sheriff has done," Ralston said.

"There are a lot of very good, professional deputies and civilian employees in this place and that's thanks to Sheriff Palmer and built upon by everything his predecessor did and all down the line." They also acknowledged the sacrifices their families have made over the years. As police officers, they have had to spend a lot of time away from family while carrying the inevitable mental baggage of the job, which can make family life difficult at times.

So, the three will likely end their journey together in December.

"Sheriff Palmer has extended us this offer and it's only fitting after all of us have worked together for so long that we all go out at the same time," Ralston said.

State must follow home-school procedures, but school system not to blame in girls death

BY BRAD MCELHINNY

WVMetroNews.com

The chairwoman of the Senate Education Committee said officials have to closely examine whether school systems are measuring up in checking on home-schooled students.

"They are overwhelmed with things they have to take care of. I completely agree with that. But it doesn't mean this is something we ignore because we're overwhelmed. In my classroom, I'm overwhelmed with a lot of things, but I also know there are things that have to get done and have to figure out a way to do them,' said Senate Education Chairwoman Amy Nichole Grady, R-Mason, a fourth grade teacher.

"So that's where we are now. We may be overwhelmed with things. We have a lot of things on our plate, but we still have responsibilities that we have to figure out how we can take care of it. Coming together and coming up with a plan is the best thing we can do. We can't just sit back and say 'Well, they're home-schooled and so we shouldn't have to worry about them.' That's not the more often than not families do not submit mandatory academic assessments for home-school students. From there, it's not clear that school systems follow

The issue of checking on home-school students has been at the center of public policy debate following the death of Kyneddi Miller, a 14-year-old girl found on the bathroom floor, "emaciated to a skeletal state."

Investigators Kyneddi had not attended school since late 2019 or 2020 and hadn't been outside the house more than a couple of times in the last four years. The girl's family submitted home-schooling documentation in February 2021, with her mother writing, "We think homeschooling is the best now with the COVID-19 in order to keep our family safe."

Any school system contact after that is in doubt. In response to recent requests for home-schooling assessments, the Boone County school system has told reporters "no public records exist." The chairwoman of the health committee in the House of Delegates asked in a memo if any academic assessments submitted Kyneddi Miller. County officials responded, "The answer to your inquiry is 'No.'"

Over the past couple of months, questions have focused on whether state agencies could have provided stronger oversight to intervene for the girl's wellbeing. A significant aspect of that concern is whether West Virginia's guidelines surrounding home-schooling provide enough impetus for school systems to check in on home-schooling students or for families to

The question is whether the requirement for some contact with the school system through the assessment could have been an entry point to know about the condition of a vulnerable student like Kyneddi. The public policy issue is also whether the law should be changed to mandate that school attendance officers follow up with possible truancy charges if families don't comply with assessment obligations.

The state Department of Education has compiled data on how many families home-school, as required. The department indicates the figures are the best data available, but for a range of reasons might not be

That said, only a quarter to a third of home-schooled students have the assessments submitted on their behalf. according state education department.

From 2020 to the current academic year, West Virginia had 32,873 students actively home-schooling. Of those, 7,774 students had academic assessments submitted that's just 24%.

Broken down further, students are supposed to have the required assessments submitted on their behalf in grades 3, 5, 8 and 11. There were 17,111 students in those grade levels who were actively homeschooling during the most recent four years. Of those, 6,341 students had the assessments submitted. That's a 37% compliance

"Ultimately, we are the ones in charge of education, and if they're supposed to turn in assessments to the board of education then we do need some sort of insight over what we need to do about Grady said on MetroNews' "Talkline."

Grady said the regular academic assessments are important "because it holds everybody accountable. It also allows teachers and allows the school system to see what homeschool families are doing."

Gov. Jim Justice and his administration have suggested that officials tighten the requirement for school systems to check in on home-schooled students to ensure participation in the assessment requirements. Other leading legislators have echoed that, but others say current law is adequate.

Delegate Kathie Hess Crouse, R-Putnam, distributed an opinion piece saying the state's academic assessment numbers raise more questions than answers "and puts the home-schooling community in a defensive position based on potentially flawed data.'

Crouse said the years that were the basis for the statistics notably included a period when schools were shut down for the COVID-19 pandemic, and many families turned to homeschooling temporarily. She questioned other aspects of the data, including the fact that assessments for the most recent academic year would not yet processed.

"Consequently, incomplete data presented out of context paints an inaccurate picture, shocking the public and legislators with claims of a lack of accountability. It is vital to bring all the facts to light and engage with legislators to counter misinformation with logical and factual arguments," Crouse wrote.

She pushed back against the possibility of a mandate for school systems to follow up on students whose assessments aren't submitted, saying school systems already have the power to

"Public school systems have opted not to utilize the law already in place and follow up, even though state home-school organizations have long noted that county superintendents can choose to do so," Crouse wrote.

Roy Ramey, leader of the West Virginia Home Educators Association, called Kyneddi Miller's death tragic but he said her death was not because of homeschooling.

"Policies have not been followed, and despite that if the policies were followed I want to make very clear to everyone out there it would not have changed this one bit," Ramey said. "Turning in the assessment or even if the school had followed up on the assessment not being turned in, none of that would have been related directly to the child neglect that rightfully caused this death."

Tropical Storm Beryl forecast to become a major hurricane

Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico Tropical Storm Beryl chugged toward the southeast Caribbean on Saturday as forecasters warned was expected to strengthen into a dangerous major hurricane before reaching Barbados late Sunday or early Monday.

A major hurricane is considered a Category 3 or higher, with winds of at least 111 mph. Hurricane watches were in effect for Barbados, St. Lucia, Grenada, and St. Vincent and the Grenadines, while a tropical storm watch was issued for Martinique, Dominica and Tobago.

"It's astonishing to see a forecast for a major (Category 3+) hurricane in June anywhere in the Atlantic, let alone this far east in the deep tropics. #Beryl organizing in a hurry over the warmest waters ever recorded for late June," Florida-based hurricane expert Michael Lowry posted on X.

Beryl's center is forecast to pass about 26 miles south of Barbados, said Sabu Best, director of the island's meteorological service's director. On Saturday, Beryl was located about 785 miles east-southeast of Barbados, with maximum sustained winds of 65 mph. It was moving west at 23 mph.

"Rapid strengthening is now forecast," the Miami-based National Hurricane Center said.

Warm waters are fueling Beryl, with ocean heat content in the deep Atlantic the highest on record for this time of year, according to Brian McNoldy, University of Miami tropical meteorology researcher. Beryl is the strongest June tropical storm on record that far east in the tropical Atlantic, noted Philip Klotzbach, Colorado State University hurricane researcher.

Beryl is the second named storm in what is predicted to be a busy hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30 in the Atlantic. Earlier this month, Tropical Storm Alberto came ashore in northeast Mexico with heavy rains that resulted in four deaths.

Lowry noted that only five named storms on record have formed in the tropical Atlantic east of the Caribbean. Of those, only one hurricane of record has formed east of the Caribbean in June.

An average Atlantic hurricane season produces 14 named storms.

"July Fourth starts America's weekend," Summerlin said, "and this is a great American event for Morgantown."

And one with memories, he said, just as great.

John Kay and Steppenwolf graced the main stage one year to perform the biker anthem, "Born to be Wild."

Weasel and Hell, Yeah (not their real names), became husband and wife on that same stage during another year.

And a couple of summers after that, Nancy and Butch, already married, rode in from Oregon, notching 2.663 miles on the odometer of their Harley-Davidson Tri-Glide along the way.

The revamped MountainFest is also bringing a serious element for its 2024 homecoming.

That comes by way of Sunday's concert with Nashville entertainer and MountainFest veteran Darryl Worley, whose show will also serve as a fundraiser for ALS.

ALS stands for amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a progressive disease that attacks the nervous system.

It's also known as "Lou Gehrig's disease," named for the legendary New York Yankees baseball player who contracted it in 1939. Both Summerlin and Clif Sutherland, who cofounded the original MountainFest, like the sense of community that rode into Morgantown and northcentral West Virginia the first time around.

And both don't see any of that changing, even though the rally will be on a smaller scale than in past years.

"We're blowing up on social media," Sutherland said.

elections conducted by Star City saw 121 and 109 voters participate. As part of the county ballot, 314 of Star City's 1,116 registered voters (28.14%) participated.

In Westover, 55 voters cast ballots in the 2020 municipal election. That number jumped to 127 in 2022. On May 14, 769 ballots were cast by Westover residents, representing just over 28% of the city's 2,718 registered voters. Monongalia County Clerk Carye Blaney has repeatedly said she's been a proponent of municipalities bringing their elections in line with the county since she took office in 2007.

She explains municipalities can make the move with no real extra cost or work for the county, but a tremendous savings of time and money for the municipality.

It's anticipated that a similar move will be one of the issues discussed as part of an upcoming charter review process by Morgantown City Council.

The city's 2023 election involving four of the seven city council seats drew 1,697 voters. That's 12.96% or roughly one-in-eight registered voters.

While Morgantown did put a charter change regarding the city's election process before its voters in 2021, those changes extended council terms from two to four years and staggered elections so no more than four seats were up every two years. It did not include an option to move the election date.

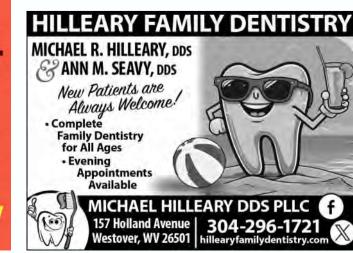

Conversations doing so have traditionally faced concerns about the city's issues getting lost in the tumult and partisanship of state and national races.

There's been a push within the West Virginia Legislature to mandate municipalities move in line with county elections.

"I hope we're willing to look at that," Morgantown City Councilor Danielle Trumble said. "I think if we don't do it willingly the state's ultimately going to make us."

UMWA condemns U.S. House subcommittee move

Against defunding enforcement of MSHA black lung silica dust rule

BY DAVID BEARD

DBeard@DominionPost.com

In April, miners and mining labor leaders met with U.S. Department of Labor Acting Secretary Julie Su in Uniontown, Pa., to celebrate DOL's final rule to protect miners from silica dust — exposure to which can lead to black lung disease.

On Friday, the miners and mine labor leaders criticized a move by a U.S. House of Representatives Appropriations subcommittee to not fund enforcement of the rule. The subcommittee advanced the bill providing funds for DOLand its Mine Health Safety and Administration.

The markup specifies, "None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to administer, implement, or enforce the proposed rule entitled 'Lowering Miners' Exposure to Respirable Crystalline Silica and Improving Respiratory 18 Protection."

In April, United Mine Workers of America President Cecil Roberts celebrated. "What does this rule do? It's not overly complicated. More people will be alive 10 years from now than there would have been if it wasn't for what we've done fighting for this rule. We were on the right side of this. We were doing the Lord's work here." On Friday, Roberts said, "MSHA's silica standard aims to reduce the amount of deadly silica dust in mine atmospheres, which is crucial for combating the worsening epidemic of black lung disease. It is difficult for me to understand how certain members of Congress could possibly be supportive of more miners dying a suffocating death as a result of being forced to breathe this dust.'

He continued, "These actions are a direct attack on the health and safety of coal miners. The epidemic of black lung disease is a critical issue that demands immediate action. I call on all members of Congress to reject this dangerous provision and stand up for the rights and health of miners."

MSHA proposed the rule last June. Its current standard for metal/nonmetal (MNM) mines is 100 micrograms per cubic meter of air for a full-shift exposure — meaning an eight-hour time weighted average. For coal mines, there is no separate standard for silica

MSHA's new standard would match the Occupational Safety and Health Administration standard adopted in 2016: for both MNM and coal mines, 50 micrograms per cubic meter for a full-shift exposure. If a miner's exposure exceeds the limit, the final rule requires mine operators to take immediate corrective actions to come into compliance.

The rule also establishes an action level matching OSHA's: 25 micrograms per cubic meter across a full shift. When miners' exposures is above the proposed action level but below the permitted exposure limit of 50 micrograms, the proposed rule would require mine operators to conduct periodic sampling until miners' exposures are below the action level.

The proposed rule also includes medical surveillance requirements for MNM miners, modeled on existing medical surveillance requirements for coal miners, and requiring companies to establish medical surveillance programs to provide periodic health examinations at no cost to miners.

Roberts noted that subcommittee chair Rep. Robert Aderholt, R-Ala., represents a district with a significant number of coal mines and thousands of coal miners.

"This would indicate that he is prioritizing industry profits over the health and safety of the very workers he was elected to represent," Roberts said. "The miners in his district, many of whom already suffer from black lung disease, deserve better than this. I can only conclude that Aderholt is telling his constituents that their lives and health are of no concern to him."

The Dominion Post contacted Rep. Alex Mooney, who represents West Virginia's 2nd District — the northern half of the state — noting that he represents coal miners, many who have black lung. His office did not respond.

At some point, in whatever its final form, the bill will cross over to the Senate, so we also contacted Sens. Shelley Moore Capito and Joe Manchin.

Capito did not wish to comment at this time. Manchin's office said he opposes the defunding measure.

Roosevelt's stolen pocket watch back at his New York home

BY DAVE COLLINS
Associated Press

A silver pocket watch that belonged to President Theodore Roosevelt is back on public display at his home and national park site in New York, nearly four decades after it was stolen.

The FBI and National Park Service announced that it was recovered from an auction house in Florida and returned to the Sagamore Hill historic site on Long Island.

The watch was stolen in 1987 from an unlocked case at another Roosevelt historic site in Buffalo, N.Y. Who stole it and how remains a mystery. The auction house owner says he received the watch from a Buffalo art collector, who got it from another person years ago.

The silver pocket watch was a prized possession of Theodore Roosevelt, a keepsake given to him by his sister and her husband in 1898 before he became president that would travel with him around the world and end up at Sagamore Hill — his home on Long Island, N.Y., and now a national historic site.

But in 1987, it went from museum piece to pilfered prize when someone stole it from an unlocked case at the Theodore Roosevelt Inaugural National Historic Site in Buffalo, N.Y., where it was on loan.

It was a mystery that endured 36 years until it turned up at a Florida auction house last year and was seized by federal agents. On Thursday, it was returned to public display at Sagamore Hill as the National Park Service and the FBI triumphantly announced it was back home during a ceremony featuring Roosevelt's great-grandson, Tweed Roosevelt.

"This was feel-good news," Tweed Roosevelt, 82, said Friday in a phone interview. "For me, it kind of felt like almost as if a piece of TR's spirit being returned to Sagamore Hill, like a little bit of him was coming back. And so I felt that was really cool."

Growing up, he said he didn't know about the watch and only learned about it vaguely after it was stolen. He called it "unremarkable" in appearance, but priceless to his great grandfather.

"As it turns out, this isn't just any old pocket watch," he said. "It was a watch that TR placed great sentimental value on."

The mystery of the watch's disappearance, however, is not fully solved. It is still not clear who stole it and how. The Park Service and FBI only released details of its reappearance this week after an investigation. The agencies did not return messages seeking comment Friday.

Roosevelt, who was president from 1901-09, apparently had the watch with him at the Battle of San Juan Hill in Cuba during the Spanish-American War and during future exploits, including wild game hunting in Africa and exploring the Amazon in South America, according to the Park Service.

The watch, made by the now-defunct Waltham Watch Co. in Massachusetts, appears like many pocket watches of its day, with a plain silver exterior and no etchings. But the inside reveals its significance, with engraving that says "THEODORE ROO-SEVELT" and "FROM D.R. & C.R.R.," referring to Roosevelt's brother-inlaw and sister, Douglas Robinson Jr. and Corinne Roosevelt Robinson.

When it showed up last year at Blackwell Auctions in Clearwater, Fla., owner Edwin Bailey was excited by the engraving but skeptical it was real. It had no supporting documents with it, and the general mindset among art dealers and collectors is to verify before getting your hopes up, he said.

Bailey said he did not know the watch was stolen, and the person who brought it to him didn't know where it came from. He declined to identify the person, saying he never divulges the identities of his consigners. He only would say the person was an art dealer and collector in Buffalo in the 1970s and 1980s.

"It was exciting," Bailey said. "I've had a small handful of items that I say 'these are the best things I've ever handled.' I got to hold something that was personally treasured by a prominent American president. ... This was Teddy Roosevelt's watch. This was a Mount Rushmore guy's personal pocket watch."

PEIA: Cost for weight loss drugs is crushing

BY BRAD McELHINNY WVMetroNews.com

Officials with West Virginia's insurance program for public employees are considering how to strike a balance between the demand for weight loss drugs and the significant cost. A meeting of the Public Insurance Employees Agency Thursday returned to the question a couple of times in a broader discussion of financial pressures. Separately, a New York Times article this week highlighted that difficult balance, spotlighting West Virginia among states struggling to meet the challenge.

The national article noted that in March, PEIA canceled a pilot program to cover weight-loss drugs. The cost was mounting, even though the program was limited to about 1,000 people — adding up to about $1.3 million a month. Brian Cunningham, PEIA's director, told the Times that if the program were expanded to include up to 10,000 people as intended, the program could end up costing $150 million a year.

The drugs like Wegovy and Zepbound may be used to treat obesity or diabetes — or both — but some insurers, including most Medicaid programs only cover them when they are used to manage diabetes. The question for states as they try to balance public interest is how much to expand access for weight loss.

Discussion was blunt during the PEIA meeting, where Finance Board members discussed a range of reasons for rising costs just as the fiscal year reaches its conclusion. Overall, PEIA's expenses are $45 million beyond what the agency had anticipated, and that has driven an overall deficit of $35 million so far this fiscal year.

PEIA Finance Board members asked how much of that is due to the cost of drugs for weight loss and diabetes.

"Let me throw out just one number, if I may: $84 million," Cunningham said — then repeating the number: "$84 million. That's the spend on GLP-1s through May of this plan year, 11 months of the year. It's a combination of both drugs used for weight loss and drugs used for diabetes."

GLP-1 stands for glucagon-like peptide receptor agents — a class of medications that treat Type 2 diabetes and obesity. The well-known Ozempic drug is a GLP-1. So is Wegovy.

Other national news articles have focused on the high cost of these drugs and the financial bind for governmental or private insurance plans in covering them. An article for NBC News, like this week's New York Times piece, cautioned. "Weight loss drugs Wegovy and Zepbound remain out of reach for many who need them." Axios reported States clamping down on coverage of weight-loss drugs.

"How do we come up with a more permanent or longterm strategy around weight loss?" asked Doug Coffman, a PEIA board member from Harrison County who represents hospitals. "I mean. this is not a problem just for West Virginia, and it's not just state government. It's commercial, and it's all health plans that I've experienced. I think coming up with a strategy that is compassionate to our enrollees and protect us a little bit more financially is desperately needed."

Cunningham agrees.

"As it relates to GLP-1s across the board, we are working to put that strategy in place. We have to bend that curve."

He continued, "Now, again, those GLP-1s, they have a lot of uses. Some are labeled for weight loss. I agree that a compassionate strategy is needed, and all options are on the table there, as well."

Laura Davisson, the director of the weight management program at the West Virginia University Health System, said she agrees with the need to for a long-term strategy address obesity. She said she is willing to provide expertise as an obesity medicine specialist to PEIA and other healthcare organizations in the state so we can treat the problem of obesity in an appropriate and cost-effective way.

"These medications are expensive, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't use them here in West Virginia. where we lead the nation in obesity," she said via email in response to the discussion at the PEIA meeting. "We need to include every tool in the toolbox in a comprehensive obesity treatment strategy. To manage costs and get the most benefit, we need to get the right treatment to the right patients, whether that includes lifestyle changes, medications, or surgery.'

Davisson said she has worked with PEIA on the pilot of using anti-obesity medications in a small number of patients "and we got incredible results. Unfortunately, the money PEIA invested in these patients is going to be wasted when these patients all get their medical treatments stopped regardless of where they are with their treatment."

President Joe Biden and first lady Jill Biden arrive at Francis S. Gabreski Airport Saturday, in Westhampton Beach, N.Y.

Biden appeals to donors as concerns persist over his debate performance

BY JOSH BOAK AND STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. — President Joe Biden is looking to recapture his mojo and reassure donors at a Saturday fundraiser that he is fully up to the challenge of beating Donald Trump.

The 81-year-old's troubling performance at the first presidential debate Thursday rattled many Democrats, who see Trump after the Jan. 6, 2021, insurrection as an existential threat to U.S. democracy.

Biden and his wife, Jill, attended an afternoon campaign event in East Hampton, New York, the Long Island beach town where the real estate firm Zillow prices the median home at $1.9 million.

The couple then went to a second event in East Hampton at the home of investor Barry Rosenstein, whose wife, Lizanne, role model for what it is to get knocked down over and over and over again and get up."

"We can waste time comparing debate nights," she continued. "But you know what? It's more meaningful to compare presidencies."

Addressing the gathering, Biden quickly tore into Trump over his presidential record including his treatment of veterans and said of Thursday night's debate, "I didn't have a great night, but neither did Trump.'

Biden contended that the polling he's seen shows that Democrats moved up after the debate, saying of Trump: "The big takeaway was his lies."

The Biden campaign said it has raised more than $27 million on Thursday and Friday, including $3 million at a New York City fundraiser focused on the LGBTQ+ community.

Jill Biden told support-said the president was "a ers Friday that he said to her after the debate, "You know, Jill, I don't know what happened. I didn't feel that great." The first lady then said she responded to him, "Look, Joe, we are not going to let 90 minutes define the four years that you've been president."

The Democratic president still needs to allay the fears stirred by the debate as it seeped into the public conscience with clips and memes spreading on the internet and public pressure for him to bow out of the race.

Democratic donors across New York, Southern California and Silicon Valley privately expressed deep concerns about the viability of Biden's campaign in the wake of his debate performance.

But on Friday, there was no formal push to pressure Biden to step aside and some suspected there never would be given the logistical challenges.

Police shoot and kill a teen armed with a replica handgun

Associated Press

NEW YORK — An officer in upstate New York fatally shot a 13-year-old who was fleeing with a "realistic appearing firearm," authorities said Saturday.

Utica Police Chief Mark Williams said the shooting happened Friday night after officers in the city about 240 miles northwest of Manhattan stopped two youths a little after 10:00 p.m.

One of them fled on foot and pointed what appeared to be a handgun at the officers, he said during a news conference at Utica City Hall. Members of the community, including the youth's family, were attendance.

One of the officers fired a single shot at the teen "during a ground struggle," striking in the chest, Williams said.

The teen was given "immediate" first aid by the officers and taken to Wynn Hospital, where he died, the chief said.

He was identified as Nyah Mway, a 13-year-old Karen refugee born in Myanmar and an 8th grader at Donovan Middle School, Lt. Michael Curley, a department spokesperson, confirmed later Saturday.

Utica, a city of more 65,000 residents than located along Mohawk River, is home to more than 4,200 people from Myanmar, according to The Center, a nonprofit that helps to resettle the refugees.

The officers involved will be placed on administrative leave with pay, in keeping with protocol, he added.

The Supreme Court nears the end of another momentous term

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the last 10 days of June, on a frenetic pace of its own making, the Supreme Court touched a wide swath of American society in a torrent of decisions on abortion, guns, the environment, health, the opioid crisis, securities fraud and homelessness.

And, with the court meeting for the final time this term on Monday, an unusual push into July, the most anticipated decision of the term awaits: whether former President Donald Trump is immune from prosecution for his role in the Jan. 6, 2021, riot at the U.S. Capitol.

The court also will decide whether state laws limiting how social media platforms regulate content posted by their users violate the Constitution.

The immunity case was the last case argued, on April 25. So in one sense, it's not unusual that it would be among the last decided. But the timing of the court's resolution of Activist Bill Christeson protests in front of the Supreme Court as decisions are announced, on Capitol Hill in Washington, Friday, June 21, 2024.

Trump's immunity may be as important as the eventual ruling.

By holding on to the case until early July, the justices have reduced, if not eliminated, the chance that Trump will have to stand trial before the November election, no matter what the court decides.

The other major unresolved issue — state laws to regulate social media platforms — also could have an ideological tinge.

The court is weighing efforts in Texas and Florida that would limit how Facebook, TikTok, X, YouTube and other social media platforms regulate content posted by their users.

While the details vary, both laws aimed to address conservative complaints that the social media companies were liberal-leaning and censored users based on their viewpoints, especially on the political right.

Martin Mull, hip comic and actor from 'Roseanne,' dies at 80

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Martin Mull, whose droll, esoteric comedy and acting made him a hip sensation in the 1970s and later a beloved guest sitcoms including "Roseanne" and "Arrested Development," has died, his daughter said Friday. He was 80.

Mull's daughter, TV writer and comic artist Maggie Mull, said her father died at home on Thursday after "a valiant fight against a long illness.'

Mull, who was also a guitarist and painter, came to national fame with a recurring role on the Norman Lear-created satirical soap opera "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," and the starring role in its spinoff, "Fernwood Tonight."

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single retired grandfather in the South. My daughter, 50, has hitched her wagon to an alcoholic. She's circling the drain and going down with him.

My grandsons are adults and scattered around the country. They are lazy and none of them has a full-time job. We used to keep them during the summers until their midteens. Now I don't hear from them unless I call, and then it's just a bunch of one-word answers — "Fine." "OK" and "Yup."

My daughter has no retirement savings or company retirement plan. She doesn't call either. She lives four hours away. I'm certain my home, property and possessions are their planned retirement accounts. All I need to do is die. I worked my entire life, spanning a couple of full careers, and I owe nothing to anyone. I have visions of my possessions being destroyed by a couple of alcoholics or sold off for quick cash.

I have decided my estate will all be donated to my favorite charity, a worthwhile

MCHD WIC's Harrison County lead testing expands to Monongalia, Marion

Mon County Health Department

With the growing popularity of a grant-funded lead-testing pilot program in Harrison County, Monongalia County Health Department's Women, Infants and Children (MCHD WIC) will be expanding the service into Monongalia and Marion counties, to anyone 1 and older.

Harrison County testing has been conducted for more than a year in response to higher rates of lead in the public drinking water.

"The concern for water in Marion and Monongalia counties is not as strong, but there are still older homes or work exposures that can make exposure to lead possible," said Jason Nguyen, a registered dietitian nutritionist at MCHD WIC.

Some older homes still have paint on both the interior and exterior that contains lead.

Traditionally, children have been exposed to lead by consuming paint chips or playing in the dirt outside their homes that have been contaminated with lead paint, in addition to drinking tap water that has been circulated through old pipes that haven't been updated.

Lead has also been found in paint used to decorate older bedroom furniture.

Testing will begin Aug. 1 in Marion County and Aug. 2 in Monongalia County, said Cami Haught, MCHD WIC program manager.

In Harrison County, the service has been provided to WIC clients and their family members, but the expansion allows for the testing of any resident.

"We wanted to open it up to anybody who wants a lead test," Haught said.

Individuals who have insurance will be billed. Those who are uninsured will be covered by a grant from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention via the West Virginia Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program, part of the state Department of Health and Human Resources, said Heidi Staats, WIC's state director.

"The lead program has identified several counties as target areas based on the age of dwellings," Staats said. "Marion County falls within the designated area, lending to the likelihood of lead paint."

While Monongalia County also has older homes, there has been a lot of new construction, noted Paul Hoffer, a Health and Human Service aide for MCHD WIC. But Staats said Monongalia County was added in because of its larger population.

A fourth county, Ohio, will also conduct lead testing, with the WIC office there overseeing it beginning Monday.

"Ohio County was chosen because of the housing in the area," said Seth Rhodes, the childhood lead poisoning project director for the West Virginia Childhood Lead Poison Prevention Project.

In Ohio County, 77% of public housing was built before 1978, when the Consumer Product Safety Commission banned leadbased paint, Rhodes added.

In April 2022, regulations passed by the state Legislature mandated that children under

AARP awards grants to Preston organizations

BY JENIFFER GRAHAM
DPNews@DominionPost.com

Two Preston County organizations were recent recipients of the National AARP Community Challenge Grant Awards.

Arthurdale Heritage Inc. received $10,025 and the town of Reedsville, $5,000.

According to an AARP news release, the Community Challenge grant program is part of AARP's nationwide Livable Communities initiative, which supports the efforts of cities, towns, neighborhoods and rural areas to become great places to live for people of all ages, with an emphasis on those 50 and older.

Elizabeth Satterfield, curator and director of education for Arthurdale Heritage Inc., said the AARP grant funds will be used to add additional doggy stations, a bike rack, outdoor permanent trash cans and other amenities for visitors.

"We'll also be using some of the funds to repair one of the sidewalks, and add benches so seniors and visitors will have a place to sit down and rest," she said.

According to its website, Arthurdale was nation's first New Deal homestead subsistence project, which was championed by then-First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt. The first homesteaders arrived in 1934 and each property was 2 to 5 acres to allow families to raise food and livestock. Modern amenities not commonly available around the country at that time — electricity, indoor plumbing and a refrigerator — were provided to all 165 homes constructed by the federal government as a way to help families during the Great Depression.

MOVIE REVIEW

'Quiet Place' prequel fails to expand original story, world

WHEN "A QUIET PLACE" PREMIERED IN 2018, I THOUGHT IT WAS A UNIQUE GIMMICK and definitely a great theatrical experience, but I wasn't as blown away by it as many people were.
When the sequel rolled invested. But I loved Michael Sarnoski's movie chops in "Us," so I was willing to give "A Quiet

When a group from the hospice center where Samira (Lupita Nyong'o) is staying heads to New York City for a show, she is hesitant to go. But Nurse Rueben (Alex Wolff) convinces her to make the trip, promising they can

Lazy summer? Not at MCHD, which is offering new services

MAYBE SOMEBODY is experiencing the lazy, hazy days of summer, but not Monongalia County Health Department.

It's not that we don't like a little down time ourselves, but with six active programs combined with our passion for public health, things don't seem to be slowing down.

There are so many new and exciting opportunities coming soon to MCHD that a roundup of activities seems appropriate.

Offerings that are being launched in the next few months include both nutritional counseling and lead testing to any community member who wants it: an HIV PrEP clinic and a built-to-order customized RV that will serve as our new Smile Express mobile dentistry unit.

Here's a breakdown: ■ MCHD Clinical Services is taking appointments for our new HIV PrEP clinic that starts in July. PrEP stands for pre-exposure prophylaxis and is medication that can prevent HIV.

Anyone who is sexually active might want to consider if HIV PrEP is right for them, said Jennifer Goldcamp, MCHD's outgoing nursing director.

"PrEP is to prevent HIV transmission and that can apply to anyone having sex," Goldcamp said.

MCHD's new nurse practitioner, Haley Tucker, will be the provider seeing patients interested in PrEP. Call 304-598-5119 to make an appointment.

"We strive to have a welcoming environment for all individuals," Tucker said. "We appreciate and respect that medical care can be a sensitive experience. Our clinic takes pride in the confidential and empowering healthcare we provide to persons of all identities."

■ MCHD WIC, which operates in six counties, already began testing participants and their family members in Harrison County for high lead levels after a public drinking water issue there.

As of the beginning of August, that testing will be expanded to Monongalia and Marion counties, and it will be conducted for anyone who wants it, whether or not they are WIC clients.

High levels impact children more than adults, potentially impacting their growth and IQ. They are also more likely to ingest lead from old paint than adults, although anyone can be affected by lead that gets into water via an older pipe system. Plus, as of April 2022, the state Legislature has mandated that children under the age of 6 be tested for lead, preferably at age 1 or 2.

To make an appointment for lead testing at a WIC office, call 304-598-5181 in Monongalia County, 304-366-2387 in Marion County and 304-848-9680 in Harrison County.

■ Also in early August, registered dietitian nutritionists at Monongalia Health Department will be offering medical nutritional therapy counseling.

Anyone interested in improving their diet could benefit from this service, noted Cami Haught, one of the dietitians who will be providing counseling.

Specific groups who might be interested include people with diabetes, gastrointestinal issues, food allergies or eating disorder issues.

"It could also be helpful for those who want to manage their weight or their high blood pressure, or who have chewing and swallowing difficulties," Haught noted.

The nutrition counseling can be billed to insurance, with a referral from a physician, and there will be private-pay options.

"Nutrition is the foundation for health and wellbeing," she added.

Call 304-598-5181 to make an appointment.

■ Finally, we have an update on our new Smile Express mobile unit, which should be delivered to Monongalia County Health Department on or before Sept. 15.

MCHD launched Smile Express in September 2018 and now visits schools in five counties as well as drug recovery centers in Morgantown.

When opioid settlement funds became available, it provided Smile Express coordinator Tiffany Summerlin the opportunity to work with designers to create a custom-made mobile unit from scratch instead of retrofitting a traditional RV.

New features on "Smiley" will include a wheelchair lift as well as TVs in the two dental operatories that will be housed on board, in addition to the existing panoramic X-ray and cloud software that allows dentist Dr. Youseph Kassar to use teledentistry back at MCHD Dentistry so he can advise on patient care in real time.

'We are extremely excited to get this new clinic and we know that it will only increase the ability for our agency to serve more West Virginia residents who deserve access to dental care," Summerlin said.

UPDATE

Hiring changes expected to ease staffing issues at FCI Hazelton

BY MIKE NOLTING

WVMetroNews.com

The federal Bureau of Prisons is changing its hiring process, which could help relieve staffing shortages at the Hazelton Federal Prison in Preston County.

The change comes more than a year after protests and pickets were held due to increased safety concerns for because inmates of staffing issues

Hazelton. There are currently believed to be 90 job vacancies at the prison.

The BOP now allows for hiring at the local level.

American Federation of Government Employees Local 420 President Justin Tarovisky said before the change all hiring was done through the BOP headquarters in Grand Prairie, That process Texas. allowed top officials to disqualify candidates for minor clerical or form errors during the applicaand interview tion processes.

"It sounds like it's common sense but something that has needed to happen has finally happened and right now we have to see the results," Tarovisky said.

Before the change, candidates were not provided with an opportunity to clarify or make corrections when problems were encountered. Tarovisky said it's frustrating when people are qualified to perform a difficult job and are ready to accept the responsibility but are rejected because of a form-related issue.

"That doesn't mean you're plagiarizing; that doesn't mean you're flagrantly putting in disinformation," Tarovisky said. "It means you're you, and you might have made a mistake on your application, but it doesn't mean it's not true."

Keeping the process local will avoid long delays in the evaluation of the applications as well. The staff at the local hospital understands better guard shortages and the urgency to fill the positions.

"Instead of it being kicked back and having to go through the whole application process again, it's like, hey, change this up so we can get this ball rolling so our feet aren't stuck in the quicksand for four or five months, so we can get this fixed."

More than a year ago, Tarovisky, local union members, and union representatives from across the country held a picket at Pierpont Plaza near Morgantown, calling for change. The calls for change didn't stop, and Tarovisky said members of management wanted the same change but weren't to express that viewpoint.

"Unfortunately, this is the kind of battle I and many others, not only bargaining unit employees but managers within the BOP, aren't happy with it; they aren't coming out with a sign standing next to me, but I know how they feel, and we got it changed."

The shift is starting to be felt, as signaled by a hiring event at Hazelton and nev leadership. Under new leadership, at least seven candidates are moving through the hiring process.

Reedsville Town Clerk Danielle Spiker said the $5,000 grant will be used to add a drinking fountain to the town's park.

She said the fountain will be ADA-compliant, with three tiers.

"The top level can be used to fill outdoor bottles, the bi-level section is a regular fountain and there will also be a pet station." she said. "If the cost is more than the $5,000 provided by the grant, the town will pick up the difference."

According to the news release, this year, the AARP Community Challenge accepted applications across three grant opportunities, including flagship grants, capacitybuilding micro-grants for improving walk-ability, bike-ability and accessible home modifications and demonstration grants that focus on equitable engagement to reconnect communities, housing choice design competitions and improving digital connections to endure disasters.

With funding support from Toyota Motor North America, the program is increasing its investment in pedestrian safety projects that will improve streets and sidewalks, create vibrant pedestrian infrastructure, engage community members and much more. AARP is also bolstering its investment in community resilience, rural communities and addressing disparities.

Hoffer's job duties also include taking heights, weights and doing a finger stick to check hemoglobin on children. The lead test also is a finger stick so that lab work can be added on without any additional blood draws.

"The sooner we realize there is a problem, the sooner we can get it looked at and get the numbers down," he said. In Harrison County, many of the levels have come back low. Anything that is 3.3 or lower is considered acceptable, Hoffer said.

"Once the machine hits 5 or higher, we notify the Lead Poisoning Preven-Program tion Charleston," Hoffer said. "We also notify the child's doctor, and a lot of doctors have them go to a hospital for a blood draw to make sure it's accurate." When a high level of lead poisoning is detected, actions to take include finding the source of the lead poisoning and removing it. For instance, phosphoric acid can be used on old pipes to create a protective film that helps reduce lead exposure. Other steps can include vitamin C to the diet. "Those all help lower lead levels," Hoffer said.

Now, they must try to find a way to be rescued.

"Day One" suffers from the same problem that the second "Quiet Place" film had, which is that it doesn't build the world in any appreciable way. One of the things I was most looking forward to in this prequel was how people tried to fight back against the alien "death angels." In the first ten minutes, everyone seems to know that sound draws the monsters, and within a day, they understand that they can't swim. But somehow, we see no attempts to destroy them.

All of that might be fine if the movie played heavily on the silent aspect, but even that is undercut by regular ambient sound and a very present score. There never seems to be any tension because this offering lacks the utter silence of the first film. For a movie that bills itself as horror, no actual horror is present.

The performances are still quite good, especially the chemistry between Nyong'o and Quinn. There is one scene in their journey that is so charming it saves this from being a complete waste of time. But even so, the surrounding characters are underdeveloped and serve no purpose. Alex Wolff has some serious horror chops that go untapped, and while Djimon Hounsou is incredibly talented, he never has an opportunity to flex his acting muscles either. When movies have sequels and prequels, the question I ask myself is, "How does this further the story?" In plenty of cases, there is more to be explored, either through deeper character development or perhaps through additional world-building. That may or may not be done in a way that comes together, but the actual legitimacy of the movie still stands. Unfortunately, when I ask that question about "A Quiet Place: Day One," I come up empty. I guess that must be really good pizza.

With WVU men's hoops coach D&A: Darian DeVries

BY JUSTIN JACKSON

JJackson@DominionPost.com

The numbers game does not favor the recent history of the WVU men's basketball team, and therefore Darian DeVries' pre-

The Mountaineers have not had a 20-win season since 2020. There hasn't been a 25-win season since 2018.

There have been two last-place finishes in the Big 12 over the last three seasons, and an eighthplace finish nestled in between those.

Those are the kinds of numbers that scream, "nowhere to go but up," if you look at it a certain way, or they could have also told DeVries to look elsewhere.

In truth, DeVries admits he didn't have to make the move to Morgantown at all last March, when he became the Mountaineers' head coach.

Things were going just fine at Drake (Des Moines, Iowa), which is roughly just a 90-minute drive from his home in Aplington.

The Bulldogs were winning 25plus games per year, top-25 rankings were becoming within reach and his contract had just been extended for eight years in 2021.

So why WVU? Why now? Those are some of the questions asked of DeVries in a sit-down interview with The Dominion Post.

The Dominion Post: You had six successful seasons at Drake, what was it about WVU that made it feel like this was the right time for you to make a move?

Darian DeVries: My whole thing was making sure if I ever decided to leave that I was happy and my family was happy. It needed to be the right fit.

If you take the wrong job, not only are you and your family not happy, but it's like square peg, round hole type stuff. I didn't want to make something try to fit, you'll know when the right one is.

TDP: When you first went to success there, do you see similarities with that move to your move to WVU?

DD: When that opportunity came up at Drake, I thought it was a tremendous opportunity for myself and my family. A lot of other people didn't understand at the time why I wanted it. I knew there were things in place, the could certainly be there if you can ever get it going, and it certainly played out that way. There were other opportunities when I was at Drake, but they just didn't make sense to me. West Virginia was one that I felt was a great fit. I liked everything there was around it and where it can potentially grow. There is a great tradition here. people and the support around it I don't think just because a program has a down year here or there it changes who they are.

> TDP: Was there anyone who tried to tell you WVU maybe wasn't the right fit?

DD: I think everyone has opinions. I think any time you take a job like this, it's important to ask those people things.

Deep down, you have to know what's best for you. As I gathered opinions and gathered information from people, everything from the town, to the community, to the basketball program to the school, you factor all of it.

But, deep down, what does your gut tell you? After you get all that information, that's ultimately what you have to go with.

I didn't feel like I had to do it all. I felt like it was the right fit at the right time. I could have stayed at Drake for as long as they would have me. I was enjoying it. I'm not one of those guys who are just chasing the next biggest thing. That stuff is not that important to me, to be honest.

TDP: After arriving here, you ended up with only sophomore Ofri Naveh left on the roster. Was there any disappointment on your part on the players who decided to transfer?

DD: I had conversations with the guys, ultimately I told them they didn't choose to come here to play for me and vice versa.

I told them there would be no hard feelings if they wanted to explore other opportunities, and I had to make sure they were the right fit for us.

There was a follow-up with them. Some of them decided to hit the portal before that, which I was more than fine with. They had to find what was the best fit for them, and I would help them in any way I could.

That's the way it ended up with Ofri staying, and we went from Local product Aaron Jamison making most of summer following freshman year with WVU

BY MICHAEL GRIFFITH Sports@DominionPost.com

An opportunity is the one thing Morgantown native Aaron Jamison was hopeful for coming into his inaugural season with the West Virginia Mountaineer baseball program as a freshman on a talented roster.

After signing for his hometown team as a freshman at Morgantown High School, Jamison, a former Class AAA first-team all-state selection, wanted nothing more than to suit up for the Mountaineers and impact the

When injuries plagued the WVU roster early in the season, skipper Randy Mazey called on the freshman to step in as a designated hitter and center fielder.

Jamison appeared in 44 games with 17 starts in 2024. E totaled 17 hits, three doubles, a triple, three home runs, and 17 RBI while scoring 17 runs. He also stole eight bases in nine attempts.

"In my position, I had nothing to lose, so when I had an at-bat or went out on defense, I tried to be as confident as possible," he said. "Having that mindset and keeping focused on the simple goals definitely helped me have some success early."

Not only did he learn a lot on the field, but Jamison also enjoyed learning about the world of college baseball. "The everyday grind and knowing that you can get through anything that comes your way if you put your mind to it is what stood out to me," he said. "Being able to look at every-

Duvall lined the single off Kyle Nicholas (0-2) to the wall in center field, bringing home Williams, who started the inning on second. Braves players charged out of the dugout to celebrate.

Edward Olivares was tagged out at the plate when trying to score from third base on a wild pitch by Daysbel Hernández (2-0) in the top of the 10th. Olivares was initially ruled safe but the Braves challenged and a review showed

'Melon Man' Ross Chastain hopes to rekindle NASCAR magic at Nashville Superspeedway

Associated Press

LEBANON, Tenn. Firsts are never forgotten, and Ross Chastain hopes to tap the magic he found at the Nashville Superspeedway a year ago to jumpstart the second half of his sea-

Chastain earned the first pole of his career here, then went on to win the Ally 400 giving Trackhouse Racing its first victory at its home track. Starting from the pole and winning snapped a 42-race skid for Chastain, allowing him to celebrate in his signature style by smashing a water-

"That's a moment that I will never forget, let alone the win ...," Chastain said. "That played a role that night. That's a very unique track. It takes a very unique car set up and driving style from my side that, it applies to some other places, but, a lot of things came together that night."

The driver from a long line of Florida watermelon farmers hasn't won since the 2023 finale in Phoenix. He comes into Sunday's race at the 1.33-mile concrete oval ninth in points with two top fives among seven top 10 finishes, including 10th last week at New Hampshire.

Without a win, Chastain ranks 12th in the playoff chase. A victory back in Nashville would be a big boost going into the second half of the season.

"We're looking to rekindle that at other tracks as well," Chastain said.

Chastain appeared to be putting things together with crew chief Phil Surgen and their Chevrolet at the end of February finishing seventh at Atlanta, then fourth at Las Vegas to start March. Chastain followed that with a sixth-place finish at Phoenix.

He hasn't finished higher than seventh since, the last at Sonoma when he came in fifth. Chastain had some contact with Kyle Busch on the last lap, which dropped Busch from fifth to 12th. Chastain said it's not just one thing they're missing with the entire team trying to find what can take that next step.

Chastain said Saturday that they're working for consistency from start to finish and lap by lap.

"I feel like we're a really consistent 10th-place car," Chastain said. "A good restart, we'll go to six and a bad restart I go to 14th. So yeah, it's just a little bit ... it's just crumbs now is what we're looking for to get that top five. And then you see it. With top fives, then you win. You put yourself in position."

Chasing points and playoff positioning

Kyle Larson currently leads both the NASCAR points standings and playoff chase followed by his Rick Hendrick teammate Chase Elliott and Denny Hamlin in points. Hamlin has three wins tying him with Larson, William Byron and Christopher Bell who got his third last week in the rain at New Hamp-

Bell said Joe Gibbs Racing has a good package for tracks like the Nashville Superspeedway with their Toyotas with a bit of an intermediate combination.

"It basically is a concrete mile and a half, so it's like Dover and Vegas, Kansas. Charlotte kind of mixed together," Bell said. "So, those are all really good places for JGR, and our cars suit this race track."

Personnel changes for struggling Richard Childress Racing

With both Busch and Austin Dillon winless this season, Richard Childress Racing made a change before coming to Nashville. Competition executive Andy Petree announced his retirement from the 55year-old team. Keith Rodden, a veteran crew chief and race engineer, was named interim replacement.

Petree had been with the team since 1993 starting as crew chief for Dale Earnhardt's No. 3 Chevrolet and helping him to his sixth and seventh Cup Series championships in 1993 and 1994. With Petree as executive vice president, the team made seven playoff appearances from 2017-23.

A return to Nashville might help. Richard Childress Racing's entries have completed each of the possible 1,800 laps over the past three Cup races here.

Busch hasn't finished better than ninth since this track started hosting the Cup Series. He has led 76 of the 900 laps he has run, and he dominated a pair of Xfinity Series races here in 2009 and 2021. That second was his 100th career win on that series.

No Las Vegas

Riley Herbst is from Las Vegas, so he doesn't really buy the nickname of Nashville that some use — Nashvegas.

"I don't think anything compares to the strip and what Las Vegas has to offer," Herbst said. "I feel like it's the greatest city in the country by any means, but I have had a lot of fun down on Broadway, and hopefully I can come back here and have some more fun."

Nashville has hosted NASCAR's annual seasonending awards four times from 2019- 2023.

I'm home

Josh Berry is enjoying his first season driving fulltime on the Cup Series, It's his Cup debut Sunday at the closest Cup track for the driver from Hendersonville, Tennessee. Berry knows this concrete oval with two top fives in three Xfinity Series races here.

"It's exciting to be back here in Nashville," Berry

He finished third in the No. 4 Ford at New Hampshire last week for Stewart-Haas Racing, a team closing up at the end of this season. Berry currently ranks 19th in the driver standings and is 48 points back of the 16th and final playoff position.

Wimbledon 2024: Carlos Alcaraz and Jannik Sinner, Iga Swiatek and Coco Gauff are taking over tennis

Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England - There is a real shift happening at the top of tennis, a youth movement that long seemed inevitable but never actually arrived until now.

As the sport's attention shifts to the grass of Wimbledon, where play begins Monday, Carlos Alcaraz, Jannik Sinner, Iga Swiatek and Coco Gauff are the players whose names are on everyone's lips.

Alcaraz is the defending men's champion and owner of three Grand Slam titles at the age of 21 after his triumph at the French Open. Sinner, 22, is the topseeded man at Wimbledon and won the Australian Open in January. Swiatek, 23, is the top-seeded woman and just earned her fourth championship at Roland Garros and fifth major overall. Gauff, the youngest of the bunch at 20, is ranked a career-best No. 2, has reached at least the semifinals at the past three Slam tournaments and won her first such trophy at last year's U.S. Open.

While Swiatek has entrenched herself at No. 1 in the women's game, and is now 11-1 against Gauff, neither has been past the quarterfinals at Wimbledon, and there is a much more closely contested and intriguing rivalry developing between Alcaraz and Sinner (Alcaraz leads 5-4 after winning their semifinal at the French Open in five sets). Then there's this: For so long, people wondered when the men's game would evolve from the extended dominance of Roger Federer, Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, owners of a combined 66 majors, and that trio would cede space to others.

That time, it seems, is now - and Alcaraz and Sinner are beginning to separate themselves from the rest.

"These two guys will win many, many Grand Slams. How many? That's the question. Of course, they will be the best for 10 years, I imagine — Alcaraz and Sinner. I have no doubt about it," said Richard Gasquet, a threetime major semifinalist, including twice at Wimbledon. "They will be the future of the game. ... The new generation is coming."

Gasquet, a 38-year-old Frenchman who got to No. 7 in the rankings, knows all too well the difficulties of being a professional tennis player during the era of the so-called Big Three of men's tennis. The opponents in his three losses in Grand Slam semifinals? Federer, Nadal and Djokovic, once each.

But Federer, now 42, played the last match of his 20-Slam-trophy career in 2021. Nadal, 38, lost in the first round at the French

Open — where he claimed 14 of his 22 major championships — and then opted to miss Wimbledon so he could focus on preparing for the Paris Olympics that start in late July; he has dealt with a string of injuries that included a hip operation last year.

And Djokovic? owner of a men's-record 24 Grand Slam titles needed to pull out of the French Open before the quarterfinals after tearing the meniscus in his right knee and having surgery. But less than a month after the operation, he is preparing to play at the All England Club, where his streak of four consecutive trophies ended last year in a five-set loss to Alcaraz in the final.

Djokovic spent the week leading into Wimbledon practicing at the tournament site and said Saturday that his knee feels fine and he is "in a state to compete at the highest level."

Sinner was eliminated by Djokovic at Wimbledon each of the past two years, in the 2022 quarterfinals and 2023 semifinals. But Sinner won their two most recent matchups, at last year's Davis Cup Finals and in this year's Australian Open semifinals.

Both Alcaraz and Sinner excel at court coverage and big hitting. Both bring excitement, too, whether it's Alcaraz's creative shotmaking or Sinner's all-out dives along the way to his first career grass-court title at Halle, Germany, in June, a rare instance of a man winning his first tournament after making his debut at No. 1.

"No one has ever played like Alcaraz. No chance. And Sinner? The same thing," said Mats Wilander, a seven-time Slam champ in the 1980s. "They're like: 'Whoa! What and where did they come from?"

Alcaraz and Sinner realize they are well-positioned to take over.

They're also aware that they've only just started down a path to possible greatness.

"We have to see what we do from now on," Sinner said, "(and) do it year after year after year after year."

Bardet wins hot and hilly opening Tour de France stage in Italy while Cavendish struggles

Associated Press

RIMINI, Italy — Twotime podium finisher Romain Bardet won the opening stage of the Tour de France and claimed the yellow jersey for the first time on Saturday.

Combined with severe heat, one of the most challenging opening legs in recent memory created problems for Mark Cavendish and many other riders as cycling's biggest race began in Italy for the first time.

Tadej Pogacar, who is aiming to follow up his Giro d'Italia title with a third Tour trophy, and two-time defending champion Jonas Vingegaard both finished safely in the main pack, though.

Vingegaard's performance was especially encouraging, considering he was hospitalized for nearly two weeks in April following a high-speed crash in the Tour of the Basque Country. He sustained a broken collarbone and ribs and a collapsed lung and had not raced since.

Bardet, the Frenchman who finished second in 2016 and third in 2017 and is racing his last Tour. attacked with slightly more than 30 miles to go. He caught up with his DSM-Firmenich PostNL teammate Frank van den Broek, who was in an early breakaway, and the pair just barely held off the onrushing peloton in the flat finish.

Bardet surged ahead of his teammate at the line and pointed to him to say, "Thank you."

"It's crazy. I didn't know the course particularly well but Frank was really, really strong out in front and then I felt that I had nothing to lose," Bardet said of his rookie teammate, who was riding his first ever Tour stage. "He really deserves this win just as much as me, because he did all of the work."

It was Bardet's fourth career stage win in the Tour, and first since 2017. He had never worn the yellow jersey before.

France's Romain Bardet, right, crosses the finish line with teammate Netherlands' Frank van den Broek, left, to win the first stage of the Tour de France cycling race over 128 miles with start in Florence and finish in Rimini, Italy,

"The yellow jersey was the last goal of my career. But, to be honest, I had come to terms with it," said Bardet, who had announced he will retire this year. "I've been really close before. I've been within touching distance. I've iust never been able to do it. Today, I wasn't sure it was going to happen but I had a great teammate with

The 128-mile route from Florence to the Adriatic coastal resort of Rimini featured seven categorized climbs and more than 3,600 meters of ascending. The temperature soared to 97 F.

Cavendish vomited twice and dropped far behind on the very first climb, putting at risk his pursuit of breaking a tie with Eddy Merckx for the most career stage wins in the Tour. But he just finished within the time limit. Cavendish and Merckx have 34 wins each.

World champion Mathieu Van der Poel was dropped midway through the stage when Pogacar's UAE Team Emirates squad started accelerating at the front of the peloton up the fourth climb of the day.

The opening four stages are in Italy, marking the first time in the 121-year history of the Tour that the race has begun in France's southern neighbor.

Bardet and Van den Broek finished with the same time of slightly more than five hours.

Wout van Aert won a sprint for third, crossing five seconds behind, and Pogacar crossed fourth with the same time.

"It was incredibly hot, and then we had the wind in our faces, so it was a really extraordinary scenario that we were taking on," Bardet said.

In the overall standings, Bardet leads Van den Broek by four seconds with Van Aert 11 seconds back in third. Pogacar stands fourth, 15 seconds back the same gap as Vingegaard.

There was an early mishap for Czech rider Jan Hirt, who broke three teeth when he collided with a spectator's backpack in the neutral zone before the actual start of the stage. A key support rider for Evenepoel Remco Soudal-Quick Step, Hirt still managed to complete the stage.

Stage 2 on Sunday is also hilly, following a 124-mile route from Cesenatico to Bologna. The stage is dedicated to 1998 Tour champion Marco Pantani, who was from Cesenatico, and will pass by a museum dedicated to the Italian rider, who died in 2004.

Because of a clash with the Olympics, the Tour will finish in Nice on July 21, five days before the Paris Games open.

AP source: LeBron to sign a new deal with the Lakers

Associated Press

LeBron James is not opting into what would have been a $51.4 million contract for this coming season and instead will seek a new deal with the Los Angeles Lakers, a person with knowledge of the decision said Saturday.

The terms of the new deal could be finalized quickly, said the person, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because neither James nor the Lakers revealed the decision publicly. ESPN, The Athletic and the Los Angeles Times all reported the decision earlier Saturday.

The move is among those coming just ahead of the NBA's free agency period, which formally opens at 6 p.m. Eastern on Sunday, though at least $1.2 billion in contracts already have been agreed upon because of new rules that allowed teams to speak with their own players about new deals — in many situations — starting on the day after the NBA Finals.

Among those already having agreed to deals that cannot be finalized until the new league year opens on July 6: Toronto teammates Scottie Barnes and Quickley. Immanuel Miami's Bam Adebayo, Indiana's Pascal Siakam, New York's OG and

Utah Hockey Club makes NHL draft splashes by trading for Sergachev and Marino

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Ryan Smith, the energetic and determined owner of the NHL's newest franchise, was perhaps telegraphing the Utah Hockey Club's approach when asked to assess his team's gradual rebuilding timeline.

"I like the position that we're in," Smith said. "And so I think that's something that we're always checking in on. And that's the plan, until it's not the plan."

Smith made his comments on Friday, less than an hour before the first round of the NHL draft. Some 18 hours later, and about a halfhour into the second round Saturday, it became clear Utah's plans shifted noticerelocating from Arizona to Salt Lake City.

Making two trades minutes apart on Saturday, Utah acquired two-time Stanley Cup champion Mikhail Sergachev from Tampa Bay in a blockbuster and got fellow defenseman John Marino from New Jersey.

"Woke up this morning after I slept for a good two minutes and said, 'Let's shock the world," general manager Bill Armstrong

Whatever constraints existed under former Covotes owner Alex Meruelo have been lifted by Smith, the 46-year-old who made his fortune in the tech industry, and now is trans-ably into the fast lane since forming Utah's sports landscape as owner of the NBA Jazz and MLS team Real Salt Lake.

> A buzz rippled through the crowd at Sphere when NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly announced the Sergachev trade early in the second round. Utah sent defenseman J.J. Moser, forward prospect Conor Geekie, a 2025 secondrounder and the 199th pick in this year's draft.

> Daly was back at the microphone not long after to inform fans and the rest of hockey that Utah was not done, getting Marino and the 153rd pick from the Devils for No. 49 and Edmonton's second-rounder in 2025.

Though Smith and Armstrong cautioned they would not be free-spenders once free agency opens on Monday, that didn't mean they weren't going to improve the team in other ways during the two-day draft weekend.

The club entered the draft with 13 picks, and Armstrong delivered on his intention to use some of them as assets. After using the team's first pick by selecting forward Tij Iginla — son of Hall of Famer Jarome Iginla — at No. 6, Armstrong traded three picks to Colorado in moving up 14 spots to select center Cole Beaudoin at No. 24.

"It's worked out well, just as we drew it up," Armstrong said.

Trading Sergachev and his $8.5 million annual salary through 2031 could clear space for Tampa Bay to keep longtime captain and face of the franchise Steven Stamkos, a pending free agent. The Lightning also sent forward Tanner Jeannot to the Kings in a separate move, which frees up money for defenseman Victor Hedman's pending contract extension to keep him with the organization for the foreseeable future.

In Arizona, the Coyotes were known for being in a perennial rebuilding mode in making the playoffs just once in the past 12 years, while relocating from one arena to another before finally moving to Salt Lake City in April.

It's a whole new world in Utah, where the so-called Hockey Club (for this season) has already generated 30,000 season-ticket deposits for a made-for-basketball facility, the Delta Center, with a seating capacity of 16,200 for hockey — and not all directly facing the ice. A permanent name is coming before 2025-26, with Utah HC, Blizzard, Mammoth, Outlaws. Venom and Yeti the six possibilities.

"We're the youngest state (by demographic), and we're also the fastest growing. So if you look at both of those metrics, that's something the NHL is going to be able to look at and say, 'Wow, like we made the right move," Smith said.

For Smith, it's a matter of balancing his enthusiasm and patience.

"You're managing polar opposite emotions at all times. Like, you want to win now, but you want to win for the long term. And you want to create this culture," he said. "But we're young, and the future looks really bright."

TDP: There are obviously a lot of feelings, one way or the other, about former coach Bob Huggins. How do you carve out your own place in the program?

DD: First of all, I have a lot of respect for the success coach Huggins had here and over his entire coaching career.

I can't be coach Huggins. I wouldn't even want to try to be coach. He's his own man and did an unbelievable job.

All I can do is be me and coach and lead the program the best way I can. Hopefully that will be something that will continue to make the people here proud.

TDP: Your son, Tucker, had just had shoulder surgery when you were introduced back in March. How is he coming along?

DD: It's coming along good, and he's participating in all the non-contact stuff, so he can do all the five-against-zero stuff and the drills.

My hope is the middle of July to the end of July he'll be fully cleared. We'll see what that looks like. There's no sense of trying to rush him now. We'll wait and see where he's at once we get back from the July Fourth break.

He could potentially play in Italy (in late July). Again, if it feels rushed, we won't do it. We just want to make sure he's back with his strength and conditioning. I think we'll be in a good spot certainly by the beginning of the school vear.

TDP: You've signed 11 new players to the roster, with a mix of incoming freshmen and transfers. How can you get all of them on the same page going into the season?

DD: We have a good mix of veterans and freshmen. If we added 13 freshmen, you'd approach the year thinking we're going to go through some growing pains.

That's not our intention. Our intention is to win and win now. That's why these guys are here. This isn't a rebuilding year. We're coming in and this group has every intention of wanting to play in the NCAA tournament. That's their goal.

It's a long ways from that right now. I do like the mind set this group has right now. I want them to have that mind set. If they carry that out every single day, there's no reason they can't achieve that goal.

TDP: If you can get this team back into the NCAA tournament next season, with everything that's happened recently with coaching changes and news guys coming, what kind of story would that be?

DD: I think it would be a great story. It would say a lot about the guys in the locker room and how they came together.

We'll be real, there's not a lot of expectations on this group. That's OK. The only expectations we talk about that matter is the ones inside our locker room. Those are the expectations we're going to try and live up to everyday. If we do that, I feel very confident the results will come with it.

TDP: So when that first preseason poll comes out and if WVU is picked near the bottom, that won't become defeating in any DD: I think my first year at Drake, there were 10 teams in the league and we might have been picked 11th. We ended up winning the league that year.

Especially with the portal now, nobody knows what you have or don't have. Where we get picked, we get picked. That's not going to impact how we approach who we are and what we think we can be in the slightest.

'Middle College' for foster kids will change their lives

Early this month, Fairmont State announced its "Middle College" would launch this fall: an endeavor specifically designed to help foster kids make the transition from high school to a two-year, and maybe later a four-year, degree program.

Foster care often gets a bad rap sometimes unfairly, sometimes deserved — but even in the best-case scenarios, going through foster care can cause a lot of upheaval in a child's life. Living a life constantly in flux can make it difficult to concentrate on seemingly less important things—like school work. And since many foster kids move around a lot (either between foster families or between their birth family and foster families), they face repeatedly changing schools, which in turn make it easy to fall behind academically.

Nationally, only about 50% of foster children complete high school. Of those, only 2%-6% pursue associate's degrees and only 4% go on to receive a bachelor's degree. Middle College allows foster kids 16 or older to simultaneously complete their high school classes and work on a two-year associate's degree or earn credit toward a four-year bachelor's degree.

Perhaps the single best feature of FSU's Middle College is the stability it offers: Enrolled students live in a dedicated dorm open them year-round, so they always have a place to stay. In addition to the residence, Middle College students also have access to 24/7 on-campus support provided by residence hall staff, case managers, therapists and specialized supervisory staff through KVC West Virginia, a traumainformed foster care agency and mental health treatment provider.

We take for granted just how important it is to have safe, stable shelter; it's why American psychologist Abraham Maslow made it part of the foundation for his "hierarchy of needs," along with breathing, eating and sleeping. It's only when we have our most basic human needs met — sustenance and safety — that we can concentrate on higherminded endeavors.

Middle College creates a place that meets those basic needs so that attendees can focus on continuing their education. The tuition, fees, "campus living" and wrap-around services, according to FSU, are all covered by federal and state funding, so most of the program is offered for free.

The first cohort of 50 students will be welcomed this fall, and we hope to see the program succeed and expand in the future. If Middle College lives up to expectations, then it could truly be a game-changer — a life-changer — for West Virginia teens in foster care.

AIRLINE PRICING

Should 'skiplagging' to get a cheaper flight be banned?

SUMMER AIR TRAVEL IS IN FULL SWING, and people are getting ticket shock at what it costs to fly.

Airlines use a complex system to price their tickets. This complexity means that it is highly likely that the prices paid for most tickets on any given flight are different.

Such price differences are a consequence of the hub-and-spoke system used by legacy airlines such as Delta, United and American and dynamic pricing models that squeeze every last dollar out of every seat to make it more likely for airlines to stay profitable.

This economic pricing model is part of a larger yield management system, which prices tickets based on route competition, seat availability, anticipated demand and time until flight departure.

One consequence of this model is hidden-city ticketing, sometimes referred to as skiplagging. Hidden-city ticketing exploits the economic model employed by airlines. Airlines must compete on every route that they offer tickets for.

If a person wishes to fly from Roanoke, Va., to O'Hare International Airport, they can purchase a direct flight on United. Alternatively, they can purchase a connecting ticket on United from Roanoke to Madison, Wisc., with a stopover at O'Hare, and not use the Chicago-to-Madison segment. In doing so, they may save a little money.

For some people, this makes no sense. Why would someone buy more flying? Because direct flights, particularly out of or into hub airports, are valued by flyers and can be priced at a premium compared with connecting itineraries.

Airlines are not pleased when travelers exploit this loophole in their economic model. United's contract of carriage explicitly forbids such practices, threatening penalties that may affect a person's frequent flyer accounts and ability to fly in the future. Even legal action is proposed as a possible response and remedy.

Yet the concept of hiddencity ticketing has parallels to pricing models used in other service industries.

Cellphone, television and internet providers offer bundled packages that may include a collection of channels and services, some of which customers are not interested in. If users decided to individually purchase only those services they would like, they would find that their total cost may be higher. For these providers, it is considered a smart business strategy to be a one-stop service provider.

Certainly, there are differences between cellphone, television and internet providers compared with air travel. However, the principle of using less than what you purchase to pay less for what you want is the common thread woven through both.

So should hidden-city ticketing be banned?

As in most things in life, there are risks, and there are rewards. If a traveler wishes to exploit this loophole in air ticket pricing, they may be rewarded with a lower cost to travel. They will also be assuming some risk that their planned stopover airport gets changed due to a flight cancellation or disruption. Airlines have no obligation to deliver the same route that was purchased, just the same destination.

Airlines should be happy that some travelers have deciphered the intricacies of hidden-city pricing. It provides evidence that their yield management models are working and that they are reaping the benefit of the economic model that produces the most revenue from their full schedule of flights full schedule of flights.

Moreover, the number of people employing hidden-city ticketing is likely small compared with the total number of travelers they carry. This means that the economic impact of hidden-city ticketing is also negligible, even if the optics of people using the strategy may be what is at the core of the airlines' dislike of the practice.

Airlines have even attempted to sue travel websites that facilitate hiddencity ticketing. Ironically, such tickets can be purchased directly on airline websites. The only requirement is knowing what city to set as your final destination, while passing through a hub airport, which is your ultimate objective. With practice, finding such cities becomes quite easy.

Airlines can end hiddencity ticketing by pricing tickets linearly, with more travel costing more dollars. They could also price all direct-flight tickets based on the lowest possible hidden-city itinerary. In both cases, the revenue lost by the airlines would be so severe as to threaten their solvency, something that hidden-city ticketing will most certainly not do.

Hidden-city ticketing is not going away anytime soon. There is nothing intrinsically illegal about it, even if it gets under the skin of airlines. It is also a self-inflicted wound (and cost) of their highly successful economic model.

Congress recently reauthorized the Federal Aviation Administration. If the FAA really wants to help passengers, it should work across all airlines to create a standardized set of principles common across all contracts of carriage that all stakeholders can understand and agree to. It would also be a good time to remove threats against passengers associated with hidden-city ticketing, accepting that it will occur.

The most reasonable policy is to place the burden of responsibility on passengers who choose to use this ticketing approach, so if flights are disrupted, they, not the airlines, must accept the consequences of not flying through their connecting city. With such a sensible policy, hidden-city ticketing will likely remain a small fraction of all tickets issued.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN

Women history forgot (Part 2)

LAST MONTH WE DISCUSSED HOW THE FOUNDING FATHERS QUASHED THE OPPORTUNITY FOR EQUAL RIGHTS UNDER THE GUISE OF INDEPENDENCE. As John Adams responded to his wife Abigail in 1776, "we know better than to repeal our masculine systems"

This month, we review some of the oppressive laws to suppress women in the 19th century and nascent efforts to overcome them.

Under laws enacted across various states, when a woman married, she became slave and servant to her husband. If she owned property, it became his; her children belonged to him; husbands were free to use domestic abuse and marital rape under protection of law; and if she generated any income, it was to be turned over to her husband. When a husband died, his property was granted to the closest male heir and the wife was left with nothing. If he had no property to protect, it was her responsibility to find a way to support herself and her children.

In legal proceedings in a court of law, a woman could not speak to defend herself, and the judge and jury deciding her fate were not her peers, being strictly men. Under New Jersey law, a single woman could vote if she met certain requirements. However, if she married, her right to vote was forfeit.

It would seem a natural partnership for abolitionists and advocates of "morals" (anti-prostitution), prison reform, temperance, educational reform and women's rights to combine their voices. When Great Britain ended the practice of slavery in 1833, a Second Great Awakening swept across the ocean and inspired more activists in America.

Although raised by a wealthy South Carolina planter and slave owner, sisters Sarah Moore Grimke and Angelina Grimke were appalled by the immorality of slavery and by the educational and vocational opportunities denied to women but afforded to their brothers. By 1837, they were documenting laws that applied to American women in letters, public speeches and appearances before legislative bodies.

Sarah's 1837 letter, aptly titled "The Legal Disabilities of Women," presented the idea that the greatest obstacles to women's ability to be useful and contribute to society were the "laws which have been enacted to destroy her independence, crush her individuality; laws which ... she has had no voice in establishing and which rob her of ... her essential rights."

The 1830s also saw many efforts by Black activists to promote both abolition and sex equality. Orator Maria Stewart of Boston was the first American, Black or white, to speak in public about politics and women's rights in front of a mixed-sex audience in 1832. It was Stewart who put forth publicly,

Are the Ten Commandments the basis of our moral system?

SIGNED A LAW requiring the Ten Commandments to be displayed in public schools.

There are two problems with this. The first and most obvious is that the Constitution prohibits the government from making laws that mandate an establishment of religion. While the Ten Commandments may be central to the Judeo-Christian tradition, the government has no right to pass laws that discriminate against Buddhists, Muslims, Hindus, Taoists, Sikhs or

But there is a second problem: Whose Ten Commandments are going to be displayed? The original text does not number the commandments and contains more than 10 imperative statements. Even within the Judeo-Christian tradition, there are disagreements on how to parse them and what they mean.

The standard Jewish version holds that the first commandment is, "I am the LORD thy God," while the second commandment is, "Thou shall have no other gods before Me." For Christians, "I am the Lord thy God" is not a commandment but a preamble. So, the first commandment for Christians is not an identification of God but a prohibition of worshiping false gods.

Catholics and some Protestants differ on where to put the prohibition of graven images and how to interpret it.

According to the Exodus version of the commandments, observance of the Sabbath day (or in some versions the Lord's Day) is justified because God rested on the seventh day from all the labors associated with creation. But according to the Deuteronomy version, the Sabbath day is supposed to commemorate the Exodus from Egypt. In any case, Jews celebrate the Sabbath on Saturday and Christians on Sunday.

There is still confusion on whether the text means "Thou shall not kill" or "Thou shall not commit murder." Though most editions of the Bible have "murder," the King James edition has Adultery in the ancient world involved a man sleeping with a married woman. Nothing in the original text of the Ten Commandments prohibits a married man from sleeping with an unmarried woman, concubine or enslaved person.

While there is a commandment prohibiting false testimony in court, contrary to popular belief, it does not prohibit lying, at least not explicitly. Nor does it prohibit promise breaking. One can argue that both are contained in the spirit of the commandments, but that is a matter of interpretation.

According to some versions, there are two commandments dealing with coveting: one involving your neighbor's house and another involving your neighbor's wife. Other traditions combine them into one commandment.

Are the Ten Commandments the basis of our moral system? If they are, then it is odd that they say nothing about slavery, rape, torture or other heinous crimes. Jesus reduced the commandments to two primary ones: love of God and love of one's neighbor. But neither of these is mentioned in the original 10.

So which version does the governor of Louisiana want to put up in public schools and how will students be instructed about their meaning?

Your guess is as good as mine. It was disputes like these that led the Framers of the Constitution to decide that when it comes to religious matters, it is best for the government to step aside and let people make up their own minds.

In an age when many people complain about the intrusion of government into people's private lives, wouldn't it be better to put up the Bill of Rights, whose wording is beyond dispute, rather than the Ten Commandments?

Animals are under fire from fireworks

ONE OF MY FAVORITE DESTINATIONS IS our local Metropark. I love to find a quiet bench at dusk and listen to the symphony of owls and crickets mixed with the rustling of nocturnal animals scurrying about.

Years ago, I went to the park's annual Fourth of July fireworks show. Thousands of people oohed and aahed as flashes and booms filled the sky.

When the show was over, my car wouldn't start, and I had to wait for the traffic to clear before calling for help. I walked to a secluded area to listen to the familiar hooting, chirping and rustling. Not a sound. I sat in silence, ashamed, as I realized why it was so quiet.

Humans had bombarded the animals who live there with what must've been terrifying explosions, scaring them silent. Since then, I've learned just how detrimental fireworks are to wildlife and other animals and why it's time to replace them with animalfriendly celebrations.

A comprehensive study published in Pacific Conservation Biology explored the overwhelmingly negative impacts of fireworks on animals, including how noise and light disturbances significantly disrupt the migratory patterns and reproductive behaviors of various wildlife species while also severely distressing domesticated animals.

The study cited numerous instances in which fireworks had harmed specific animals, such as their role in the decline of Brandt's cormorant colonies along the California coast. Fireworks' ruckus leads to confusion and disorientation in these and other seabirds, causing them to abandon their nests, leaving their vulnerable eggs and chicks exposed to predators.

On the ground, fireworks cause animals to run for their lives, which, ironically, often leads to their deaths. In one case, a juvenile gray fox darted into the road after being startled by fireworks. She was hit by a car and became lodged in its grill, sustaining many painful injuries. Despite efforts to save her life, she died during surgery. Countless other animals frightened onto roadways by fireworks die alone and in agony.

It isn't just the commotion fireworks create that harms wildlife. Animals often ingest the plastic, wood and cardboard pieces that fall to the ground — or inad- aquatic life. vertently feed the debris to their babies — posing risks such as choking and poisoning. Additionally, these pyrotechnic explosions cause thousands of wildfires that kill untold numbers of animals every year.

Fireworks also unleash a cascade of toxins — including mercury, carbon monoxide, aluminum and sulfur — which can increase the amount of pollutants in the air by up to 42% and fall into lakes and rivers, harming

And fireworks terrify the animals who share our homes, causing some to become severely injured and lost in their attempts to escape the startling blasts. Dogs have smashed through windows and screen doors and dug under fences — and animal shelter intakes skyrocket in the days following the Fourth of July.

If you have a dog and there will be fireworks nearby, take your canine companion for a walk or to the park to tire them out before the blasts start, and please plan to stay home once they do. Play soothing music to drown out the unsettling sounds, close the windows and blinds and keep some new toys on hand as distrac-

A ThunderShirt — which works by providing gentle pressure to calm anxiety and fear can help your dog or cat cope with the disturbance. If your animals are severely stressed by fireworks, talk to your veterinarian. All animal companions should be microchipped and wear collars with identification tags.

Fortunately, a growing number of communities are recognizing the need for change. Exciting alternatives to fireworks displays, such as laser shows, offer all the spectacle without the fear and damage, and residents love them!

My holiday looks a little different now that I know all this. I start my day oohing and aahing as the annual parade marches through town, then I take a long walk with my playful pups and end the day with a vegan BBQ with friends. I've learned that glowing kindness far surpasses the glaring indifference of fire-

"Who shall go forward and take off the reproach that is cast upon people of color? Shall it be a woman?" Her speech advocated for the education of Blacks and women to elevate their positions and opportunities in society.

Only later came the Seneca Falls Convention of 1848, organized by Lucretia Mott. This Quaker minister was known for her calm, dignified speeches for abolition, but those speeches soon incorporated women's rights, emphasizing that all individuals should enjoy the same rights and privileges.

Seneca Falls, which inspired the next generation of women's rights activists, resulted in the Declaration of Sentiments, modeled after the Declaration of Independence. However, the Sentiments said "all men and women are created equal" and were adopted by women and men, among them renowned abolitionist Frederick Douglass. Suffrage for women (the right to vote) was controversial and the only Sentiment not adopted unanimously. An inspiring speech by Douglass is credited with saving it.

Sadly, some of the most vocal of that second generation of activists — white women — lost sight of Mott's and Douglass' message that race and sex inequality and injustice were inextricably linked. More on that next month.

Debt better than billion-dollar climate disasters

THERE'S GOOD DEBT AND THERE'S BAD DEBT. Good debt is a $465 million government loan for your fledgling electric-car company that helps it become the world's biggest automaker. Bad debt is maxing out your credit cards to buy cartoon apes in 2022.

Depending on your politics, you might consider a government taking out loans to finance the clean-energy transition to be bad debt. But economists keep pointing out that a little bit of deficit spending to fight climate change today will save a whole lot of deficit spending tomorrow, to not only fight a rear-guard action against global heating but also to clean up the expensive mess it will make.

Unfortunately, the politics of green government spending aren't exactly having a banner year. European parliamentary elections hit green parties particularly hard, the U.K.'s Labour Party has scaled back its climate plans, and the deeply climateunfriendly Donald Trump stands a real chance of winning a return to the White House in November.

A lot of this anti-green momentum comes down to popular anxiety about high living costs in the wake of the COVID pandemic. Though clean energy is on the whole cheaper than fossil fuels, the transition can be costly in the short term, and poorly designed plans can saddle lower- and middle-income people with the burden, as my Bloomberg Opinion colleague Lara Williams has written.

It's become an effective wedge issue for right-wing politicians around the world. Inflation has also forced central banks to boost interest rates, making green investments much more expensive and raising the costs of servicing government debt that ballooned during the pandemic.

Whether voters or politicians care or not, the climate is changing, and the costs of that change are mounting. The U.S. alone suffered a record 28 climate-related disasters last year costing $1 billion or more each, according to the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

It's matching that pace so far this year, even before what will probably be an active Atlantic hurricane season, turbocharged by sauna-like ocean water and the La Niña weather pattern. Adjusted for inflation, the U.S. has averaged 20 such disasters per year over the past 5 years, compared with an average of just three per year in the 1980s.

Many of the costs of disaster cleanup are borne by, you guessed it, those cash-strapped governments. They're also on the hook for shoring up military bases, critical infrastructure, nuclear facilities and more against increasingly chaotic weather, while fighting forest fires and helping farmers and ranchers, to name a few of the expensive obligations detailed in a White House report in March.

Climate change's biggest fiscal hit to governments may not be disaster clean-up and prevention but increased health care spending. Most of the estimated 2.2% boost to annual government spending triggered by unabated climate change will be chalked up to higher health care costs, according to an estimate by ETH Zurich climate economist Lint with investing the money now, Barrage. Hotter weather exacerbates heart disease, diabetes, asthma, mental illness and other chronic conditions, while encouraging the spread of infectious diseases from dengue fever to toxic mushrooms.

Hotter weather also saps worker productivity and cognitive development in children. Throw that in with all the other climate-fueled nightmares, and economic activity will suffer. A heating planet could leave global GDP 20% lower by mid-century, according to one study. It might already have shaved 37% off GDP since 1970, according to a recent National Bureau of Economic Research study. That's a lot of lost tax revenue for governments, particularly if they stubbornly refuse to tax the carbon spewed while powering their economies, cough the United States of America cough.

The net result is that delaying climate spending now will lead to even more climate spending in the future, when prices will be even higher and the need will be even more dire.

"Kicking the fiscal can down the road on measures that could accelerate the green transition will probably lead to greater macroeconomic and fiscal adjustments further down the line," Capital Economics economist Hamad Hussain wrote in a report last

Hussain cited a 2021 study by the U.K.'s Office for Budget Responsibility, which estimated that delaying transition plans by a decade would cut that country's long-term GDP by 3% compared even as public spending would end up 50% higher. The government's debt-to-GDP ratio would be 23% higher by 2050 if it delayed green spending by a decade than if it acted earlier.

"Pandemics, climate change and public debt dynamics are all subject to amplifying feedback mechanisms and tipping points that can result in spiraling and irreversible costs that put a premium on acting early," the OBR wrote. "In making the transition to net zero, delaying decisive action to tackle carbon emissions by 10 years could double the overall cost."

Zeroing out global emissions by 2050 to avoid the worst climate outcomes will cost $215 trillion, Bloomberg NEF recently estimated, a 10% increase over their estimate just a year earlier. That's a bargain relative to the costs of inaction, but much of it will be borne by governments. Given that the benefits won't immediately fill up a gas tank or a cereal bowl, it won't be an easy political sell.

As it stands, green spending is losing the race against global heating. Failing to make these investments now is the fiscal equivalent of maxing out our credit cards on cartoon apes and then making only the minimum monthly payments, racking up huge interest charges in the process. It's a great way to go bankrupt.

Fourth of July not that much fun for dogs

I HAVE NOT ENJOYED THE FOURTH OF JULY for a very long time.

That's not because I'm all bahhumbuggy about patriotism. I love America as much as the next person.

But I love dogs and have been a fur-parent for over a decade. And if you have canines, there's a good chance your July 4 is marked more by stress and anxiety than any exuberant celebration of independence.

Through the years, my pups have experienced varying shades of scared when the explosions start. The T was terrified. Fancy and Gertie would be unsettled all night. Moo oscillates between shaking and barking. Tulip cowers in the corner.

My dear Pops was downright inconsolable.

When the blasts began, he would try to wedge his wide, 60-pound body into the smallest space possible. He would tremble uncontrollably. He would pant. He would whine. His eyes would widen. He would stress yawn and lick his chops, salivating from fear

This was not an otherwise skittish animal. Pops was brave, dignified. He had lived a hard life before finding his way to me and he knew how to take care of himself

But fireworks (and, to be fair, thunderstorms, too) would turn him into a ball of woe, so frightened it sometimes seemed he wouldn't survive it. It was obvious he didn't believe he would.

I honestly can't describe it fully.
I can say it broke my heart.
Sadly, Pops is no longer with me. A rare form of mouth cancer took him away just shy of two years into our time together.

The knowledge of that fear, however, and the fear so many animals not just pets, but wildlife, as well — feel during fireworks displays makes it impossible to relish the tradition.

Adding to the problem, the booms from at-home versions commence around my neighborhood a full week before the holiday and continue for most of the month.

It's hard on some humans, too — people with PTSD can be painfully affected by the noise.

Obviously, fireworks on the Fourth aren't going anywhere. As much as I'd love to see the U.S. move toward silent displays like some other countries have done, there are folks who love them, and that's totally OK.

They are pretty. They look fun. But they upset my kids, so forgive me for wishing they'd stop (or at least pipe down).

For those of you in the same boat this week, check out the column on page 5-C for some tips to help soothe your scared furbabies.

And please, pretty please, keep them securely indoors. Frightened pets run — and then they get lost.

This Thursday, hold them close. Tell them they're good boys and girls. Reassure them as best as you can and don't skimp on the treats.

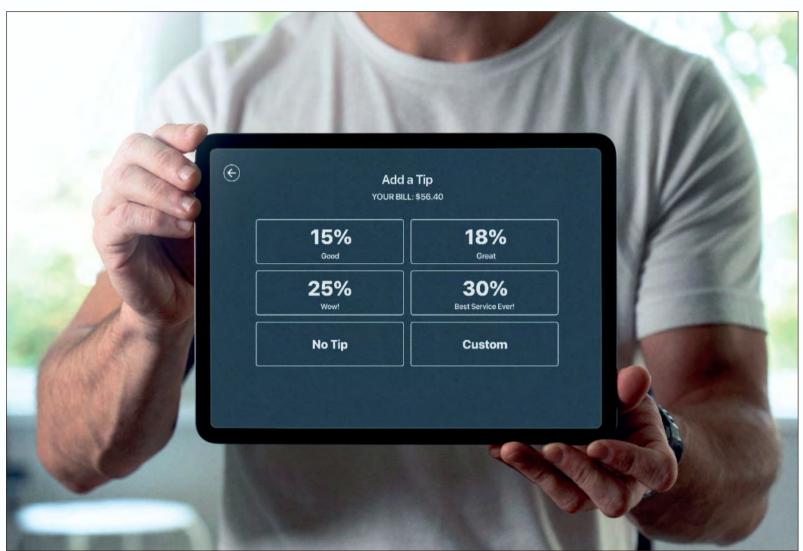

Happy Fourth of July, America. And to my fellow dog moms and dads, good luck.

Moo, Tulip and I will see you on the other side.

TIPPING POINT

Has the custom of giving a gratuity gotten out of control?

MetroCreative photo

More than a third (35%) say tipping culture has gotten out of control, and a similar number (34%) are annoyed about pre-entered tip screens.

BY TED ROSSMAN

Associated Press

Would you tip a robot? That's essentially what I was asked to do when a self-checkout machine at Newark Liberty International Airport prompted me for a tip. I picked a premade sandwich out of a refrigerator, scanned it at a self-service kiosk and was presented with an on-screen tip prompt.

I didn't feel an ounce of guilt hitting the "no tip" button, but this is the sort of thing that's giving tipping a bad name. Another outrageous example was when I was asked to tip while making a reservation at a pickyour-own strawberry farm. Situations like this are often considered part of "tip creep."

What is tip creep and why is it growing?

Tip creep refers to being asked to tip in unconventional places. The most widespread example that has caught on in recent years is at coffee shops, but self-checkout machines and pick-your-own strawberry farms fit the bill as

There's a fun "what's the weirdest place you've been prompted to tip?" forum on Reddit. A dermatologist's office, a car mechanic shop and a movie theater ticket counter are three of my favorites. Those all feel pretty excessive. Doctors, in particular, are highly paid professionals bound by strict regulations and ethical codes. They should not be soliciting tips under any circumstances.

The proliferation of tip prompts has hit counter-service transactions the hardest. In these settings, you used to have to go out of your way to tip (dropping bills or coins into an old-fashioned tip jar). Now you have to go out of your way not to tip at many coffee shops and other businesses.

That's particularly true when you pay with a credit or debit card and the cashier flips the payment terminal around with suggested tip amounts of 15, 20 and 25%. Sometimes it's awkward not to tip in these settings, which leads to "guilt tipping" – hitting one of those buttons yet wishing you hadn't.

Is inflation to blame?

Inflation is a key contributor to why consumers are annoyed about these interactions. Many people feel like they're already paying a lot for the product or service and grumble about forking over even more dough.

But inflation also helps explain why businesses have their digital hands out. They're looking for ways to supplement their employees' wages without having to foot the bill. Tipping has become a hidden surcharge.

About six in 10 Americans have at least one negative opinion about tipping, according to Bankrate's 2024 Tipping Culture survey. The most common complaint is that businesses should pay their employees better rather than relying so much on tips (37%). More than a third (35%) say tipping culture has gotten out of control, and a similar number (34%) are annoyed about pre-entered tip screens.

Who we should always tip

It's important to distinguish between a quick food pickup and a sit-down dining experience. We should tip for service at a full-service restaurant. Unfortunately, our survey revealed that 33% of diners skip the tip at least some of the time, including a whopping 65% of Gen Zers (ages 18-27) and 44% of millennials (ages 28-43). That's shocking, and it's taking money out of servers' pockets.

The federal tipped minimum wage is just $2.13 per hour. It hasn't changed since 1991. The typical waiter or waitress literally depends on tips to make a living. Yet tips have steadily eroded in recent years.

In 2019, prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, Bankrate found that 77% of sit-down restaurant-goers always tipped the waitstaff. That stepped down to 75% in 2021 and 73% in 2022, according to an earlier Bankrate survey. Last year, tipping really fell off as inflation took a big bite out of consumers' wallets. Just 65% of diners

An unbreakable bond with our four-legged companions

I CAME ACROSS THIS INCRED-IBLE FACT IN A RECENT ARTICLE ABOUT WOLVES: The earliest discovery of a human grave that also included the remains of a dog dates back to 14,000 years ago. Incredible that even that long ago a dog was important enough to be buried with its master. We've had this bond of loyalty and trust for millennia.

I continued reading about the ways dogs bond with us and how we can tell this deep bond is there. Of course, I thought about Pierre. It's absolutely true, he is closely bonded with us but, being Pierre, he exhibits that bonding in his own unique ways. Like most dogs, he shows his joy in greeting me each morning or when I return from an errand by happy tail wagging, but sometimes he adds a toothy "smile" that a stranger would take as aggression.

Licking and grooming are ancient wolf pack instincts. We call it kissing even though this act of bonding brims with slobber as well as affection. "Kissing" is on the list of ways dogs bond, but again Pierre gives it a twist. Instead of kissing (licking) me, he puts his muzzle up and waits for me to plant a gentle kiss on top of his head.

Wolves sleep in packs close to those they trust. Pierre does the same. He usually sleeps with Rob, except when a thunder storm comes during the night. Then, for some reason, he deserts Rob's bed and scratches, barks, whines at my door until I let him in. Once he settles beside me on my bed he apparently feels safe enough to sleep through the loudest thunder claps.

I've read studies that suggest dogs can distinguish hierarchy in a family. Like wolves, they recognize the pack leader. Probably because I am the one who trained Pierre and feeds him, he considers me pack leader. He displays this by following my commands, while he accepts Rob's directives only when the spirit moves him. That's not to say he gives me total obedience, but he usually complies if I let him know by my voice and demeanor that I mean what I sav.

A way of bonding that Pierre takes to an extreme is following me from room to room. As I write this I am typing with one hand. My other hand is engaged in petting Pierre who is sitting on the floor beside me. He follows me up here unless Rob or I manage to interest him in gong outside. If he is in the house he is in the same room with me, sometimes demanding attention, other times sitting or lying quietly beside me.

Like most other dogs, Pierre shows his bond by bringing us toys, sticks, even stones. Wolves in their pack share whatever they have and Pierre follows that instinct. I can take food out of his dish while he is eating, pry forbidden articles out of his mouth. He will give me a look that says, "Why are you doing this?" but he will not growl nor bare his

The best illustrations of bonding are the prolonged stare our dog gives us and the cuddling between dogs and humans. When we look into our dog's eyes and hold his gaze, when we cuddle together and pet our dogs gently, oxytocin (often called the hormone of attachment) is released in both dog and human. This is the same hormone that elicits bonding between mothers and their infants.

Pierre trusts us to love him, care for him and keep him safe. He gives back that love in double measure.

TIPPING

always tipped in 2023. We saw a slight increase this vear. to 67%.

It has been a similar story for hair stylists, barbers, food delivery workers and taxi/rideshare drivers. At present, only 55% of Americans always tip their hair stylist or barber, compared with 63% in 2019. Just 51% always tip for food delivery (versus 63% in 2019) and 41% always tip a taxi or rideshare driver (eight percentage points lower than the 49% who did so in 2019).

We should tip in all of these situations — ideally 20% of the bill. Maybe a little less for food delivery or a ride, but at least 10 to 15%. The workers' livelihood depends on it. In America, it's part of the social contract at sit-down restaurants, hair salons and when you utilize gig economy services such as delivery rideshares. These drivers are typically independent contractors who pay for their own gas and car insurance and earn a sizable percentage of their income from tips.

When it's OK to skip the tip

Etiquette expert Thomas Farley, who goes by the tagline "Mister Manners," told Inside Edition that simple counter-service orders do not typically warrant tips — unless the barista truly goes above and beyond.

"Perhaps you're at your favorite coffee shop and they know your order and the barista spends 15 minutes getting it exactly the [right] way, they know your name, those employees definitely deserve a tip," Farley added. Farley also says that most home repairs don't require a gratuity. "For service professionals like plumbers, my feeling is that unless there are extenuating circumstances and they came out in the wee hours of the morning, there's no expectation to tip," he explained to CNBC. "You're probably paying on an hourly basis, most likely a very high amount."

The bottom line

Tipping can be annoying, confusing and controversial, but it's here to stay. In our most recent survey, only 14% of Americans said they would be willing to pay higher prices in order to do away with tipping. And technology has made it easier than ever for businesses to embed tip prompts into the point-of-sale process.

While you may be frustrated the next time you're asked to tip for a simple takeout order, remember that it's okay to hit the notip button sometimes. But please make sure to tip at places like sit-down restaurants where tips make up vast majority of

Could my lash extensions be causing my itchy, dry eyes?

Q: I started wearing eyelash extensions a couple months ago, but it seems my eyelids look a little redder near the edges, and my eyes feel itchy and drier. Is this fairly normal or should I be concerned?

A: These days eyelash extensions have become very commonplace. Unfortunately, in eye care we frequently see many complications. I suppose the general public is unaware, but among eye doctors we know that complications

Number one, these synthetic lashes are being glued onto your natural eyelashes. As you might expect, the artificial lashes and the glue that holds them are places to gather things. Things like eyelid skin that naturally sloughs off every day. Unfortunately, we are finding very commonly that tiny mites (think about dust mites that live in our pillows) living among the artificial and natural lashes.

Most common are tiny organisms called "demodex folliculorum." These tiny mites love to live inside our eyelash follicles at the base of our lashes, and in the oil glands of the lids. Demodex mites secrete whitish waste that builds up in the eyelashes as whitish debris or collarettes "glued" to the base of our lashes. That metabolic waste from the mites causes our eyelid skin to become irritated and red. For some patients we even see blood vessels growing excessively near the eyelid edges.

Fortunately, demodex is treatable in a couple ways. For years we have used an ophthalmic grade of tea tree oil, applied along the lid margins (never in the eye!) to gradually kill the mites. Now we have a new medication called Xdemvy that appears to be more effective in actually ridding you of the mites. This sixweek eyedrop treatment is painless and very effective. While patients who prefer to continue wearing lash extensions may need ongoing lid hygiene, the new treatment works. When they realize the complications and discomfort often caused by extensions, many women choose to discontinue their use. Obviously, that would be our preference

Nonetheless, I imagine lash extensions are here to stay. Extra eyelid hygiene is necessary for virtually every patient using them. Medical treatment is the first step to rein in the mite infestation in the lashes and ongoing hygiene with ophthalmic lid cleansers are required to prevent a re-infestation. I had to laugh when one patient told me that her eyelid regimen each night was a lot like flossing her teeth! Sometimes extra maintenance is needed to look better and keep our body healthy.

PETS

Dog afraid of fireworks? Tips to help soothe them this July 4

BY AKC CHIEF VETERINAR-IAN DR. JERRY KLEIN

Associated Press

On and around the Fourth of July, pets can experience an increase in anxiety due to loud noises from the holiday festivities.

Veterinary clinics and emergency centers receive an influx of calls due to this increase in stress and even about pets who have ingested fireworks.

However, with a little planning, you can try to help your pets tolerate this time of year, even if they may not understand or share your enthusiasm of this holiday as much as you do.

Here are some ways to help sooth your dog's anxiety and keep them safe.

■ Create a haven for your dog. It is a good idea to create a place where your dog will feel more comfortable during times of overstimulation. Try setting up a crate in a quiet space away from windows, such as a basement or a larger closet, so that they can't hear or see the fireworks. Their crate, if they feel comfortable and safe, is often a good choice to prevent them from causing danger to themselves or their environment.

You can also throw a loose cloth or blanket over the crate to give the sensation of dark and calmness.

- Make sure to provide your pup with familiar toys and treats. Consider freezing bone broth into ice cubes to keep your dog occupied.
- Play white noise. You can try leaving a fan, television or radio on to help mask the sounds of the fireworks. There have been some reports that classical music can have a calming effect for dogs. Try the "Through a Dog's Ear" music series that has been shown to work.
- An anxiety vest may work in some cases — if you don't have one, try a snugly fitting T-shirt.

■ Comfort your dog. If you can, try staying home with your dog or leaving them in the hands of a trusted person to verbally sooth your pup. Be careful about giving wrong verbal clues when interacting with your dog. Often, it's not the word used but the tone that matters in how your dog understands and reacts to you. Sounding frantic in any way, even if you're saying "It's OK, it's OK, it's OK" in a higher-than-average pitch may make your dog think that there really is something to fear. You need to sound and stay calm to best

- reassure your dog. ■ Walk and exercise them before the fireworks. Have your long walk or play session before dusk to increase the chances that you'll tire your dog out as to avoid the sounds altogether. When you do go out, make sure your dog is secure on a leash before your walk.
- Keep your dog away from the fireworks. Don't take your dogs to fireworks shows and don't leave them outside alone in the yard during fireworks, especially if there are firecrackers being used in close proximity. It's best to keep your dog inside during the commotion especially if you fear they might not react well and to keep them under control and feeling more safe and secure.

- Make sure your pet has proper identification. The Fourth of July is believed to have the highest number of dogs run away.
- Make sure that your pet has a form of identification. If your dog has an identification tag on their collar, make sure that information is accurate and current. Better yet, have your pet microchipped by your veterinarian. If they are microchipped, already make sure the information on is up to date and accurate. This way, if they escape, there's a better chance they'll get returned to you promptly and safely. ■ Desensitize your dog to the sound of fireworks. If you suspect your dog will freak out at the sound of fireworks, try playing sounds of fireworks (very softly) so your dog is used to hearing them. "Counter-conditioning" combines pairing sounds of noises like fireworks or thunder with a treat that your dog likes. Start the volume low, so your dog can notice it but doesn't show signs of stress like panting, pacing, leaving the area or trying to hide. Other tips including increasing the volume gradually, varying the source of the sound, and using different recordings.

■ Talk to your vet about medications. If your pet's anxiety is severe, consider making an appointment or phone call with your veterinarian well in advance of the holiday so you can discuss a medication that could help. This is the time to discuss questions on the available choices of overthe-counter CBD, dog-calming treats or dog anxiety vests. Your veterinarian may recommend different prescription anti-anxiety medications available.

If you do decide that antianxiety mediation is your pet's best bet, there are a few things to remember to make sure you request the medication early enough from your veterinarian, at least a week or so before you need it. Remember to give them a practice dose of the medication before the big night to see how your pet responds to it. Lastly, never share the medication with another pet or give more than the recommended amount prescribed or sooner than listed on the directions. If you do so, you may end up spending the holiday at your local veterinary emergency clinic.

BINGO: Wednesdays at 6 p.m. Doors and kitchen open at 5 p.m. with the first game starting promptly at 6 p.m. Food is available for sale including chili dogs, nachos, soft pretzels, chips, candy, soda, and usually another sandwich. We use paper cards and daubers. Join in the fun.

CARDS AND GAMES: Tuesday and Thursday mornings are especially active for our card plays and anyone is invited to join in. Playing usually starts around 9:30 a.m. On Tuesday evening there is Pinochle and other cards players are also welcome. If you are interested in other days of the week, get a group together and stop in.

DULCIMERS: They get together on Tuesday mornings to play and practice. They welcome anyone who would like to learn also. Judy Werner leads this group, and it is enjoyable to just sit and listen.

SWING DANCE: Morgantown Swing Dance has joined us, and they give lessons and dance at 7 p.m. Thursdays. These lessons are free, but donations are accepted.

TAI CHI: We will be hosting Tai Chi for Arthritis classes at 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. These will be taught every Friday morning in conjunction with WVU School of Public Health. The classes are designed to help those with arthritis move but it is also great for those who have balance issues and even those who just need a low impact workout.

MOUNTAINEER WATCH PARTIES: Join us whenever the Mountaineers play. We have a big screen TV and ESPN+ so that we have you covered whether they are home or away.

FOURTH ANNUAL CONCERT IN THE PARK SERIES: We are excited to announce the line-up for our Concert in the Park Series.

Morgantown is a great place to live – here's why

IN 2024, I HAVE WRITTEN THESE SUNDAY COLUMNS FOR THE DOMINION POST. EXCEPT FOR MY INTRODUCTION BACK IN DECEMBER, I'VE ENSURED THEY'RE NOT ABOUT ME. They're about real estate or issues that affect the industry. Today, I'm writing about something that illustrates why our area is a great place to live, but it's also very personal.

At first, I didn't want to go public, but I went online to control rumors. After thinking about it, a major life experience made me truly appreciate this place most of us call home.

Last week, I went down in the heat while working out on the rail-trail. At first, I thought it was a heat injury, which I've experienced before. This time, I was without my phone or wallet and eventually realized I physically wasn't going to make it back to the office at Seneca Center. I was getting worse by the minute with no one in sight on the trail due to it being really hot that day. I seriously struggled to make it to the ParMar convenience store on Beechurst Avenue. I had no money on me, but the employees realized something was very wrong, so they let me have a Gatorade. As I started drinking, I dropped to my knees but eventually, I completely collapsed on their floor. The manager, Amy Shaver, and employee, Benafsha Aveen, quickly called 911 and this very likely saved my life, because what I didn't yet realize is I was having a major heart attack.

As soon as EMTs had me in the emergency department at Ruby, a dozen or so docs and nurses surrounded me. Within minutes, they had me in the Heart & Vascular Institute for an emergency procedure to place a stent in an artery that was at least 70% blocked. It was a torturous couple of hours. but once I had the stent, my breathing began calming down. I had a second procedure a couple of days later.

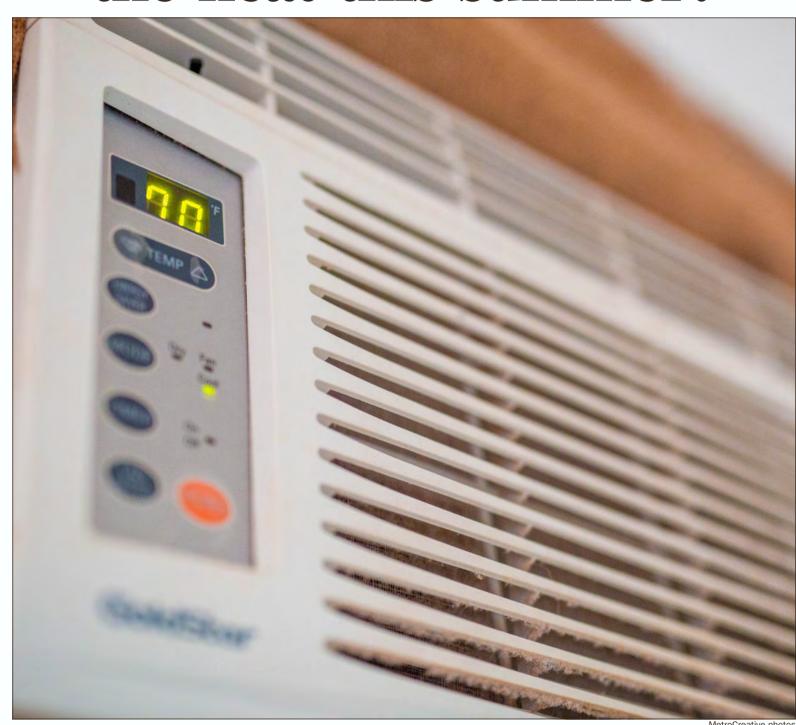

Amy and Benafsha of ParMar and the EMTs were truly excellent but let me say this: The heart and vascular team at Ruby is like the "Special Forces" (an Army reference) of the hospital! They were blazingly fast and efficient. They are a well-oiled machine. It was like a scene from a TV show or movie. The medical staff in general was fantastic, and I especially appreciated my first ICU nurse, Emily (I'm working on getting her last name so I can send her a card).

We live in a mostly rural state. Yes, we have medical facilities in most communities, but most of those who live in those areas come to Morgantown for specialty care or for trauma cases. I was so fortunate that I was a five-minute ambulance ride from both Ruby and Mon Health. Had I lived far away, I can't say I'd be typing this column today. There are multiple reasons this is a great community, but the access to top-notch medical care is huge. Don't take that for granted!

For any who may be wondering, yes ... I went back and paid for my Gatorade!

Ask Angi: How can I beat the heat this summer?

Your home likely depends heavily on air conditioning to keep cool when the heat index reaches three digits. But this means that when air conditioning goes out, repairing it becomes a much more urgent need. Here are some tips on what to do when you have A/C trouble.

BY PAUL F. P. POGUE

The first of the summer heat waves has already hit much of the nation, and it won't be the last. Your home likely depends heavily on air conditioning to keep cool when the heat index reaches three digits. But this means that when air conditioning goes out, repairing it becomes a much more urgent

Here are some tips on what to do when you have A/C trouble.

Confirm the problem

Quite often, your air conditioner failing might be connected to some other problem entirely. Check your circuit breaker to make sure that it hasn't tripped. (Since air conditioners are among the biggest power draws in your house, they're more likely to exceed your breaker's limits during service contract, if you have flows into a drip pan under the sure your thermostat is working correctly and that its power source is in order. Some thermostats work on batteries, others are directly wired into the

Additionally, make sure the outdoor unit has clearance from bushes and plants around it so it can ventilate correctly. An overheating outdoor unit can trigger the circuit breaker or a safety switch.

Make sure everything is clean and up-to-date

Just like an oil change for the car, air conditioners require frequent maintenance. If you haven't already hired a pro to take a look at your A/C, call in one now for an inspection and cleaning. A proper air conditioning servicing job costs about $100 (or it may be part of your one). The tech will check your systems, inspect it for any problems, and clean and tune up certain components.

The best time to perform this service is in the spring, before you turn it on for the first time of the year. The second-best time to do it is right now.

Check the safety switches

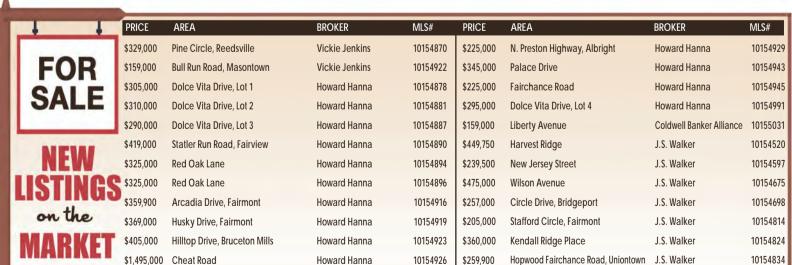

Most air conditioners have a number of fail-safe systems built into the unit. Any one of these could trigger in order to prevent a potentially hazardous situation. For instance, both indoor and outdoor units usually have a disconnect switch that completely shuts down power flow to the unit, so HVAC techs can work safely.

Your AC tends to collect a lot of water. It usually drains through a pipe, but if that pipe gets clogged, the water overunit. If the drip pan is close to overflowing, or installed in the wrong place, the system shuts down automatically. The good news here is that repairing it is often as simple as dumping the drain pan.

Call a professional

If one of these solutions doesn't address your problem, odds are that you have a refrigerant issue, a mechanical failure or some kind of electrical issue. These are tasks that are well beyond the ability of most DIYers, especially since refrigerant can be hazardous and requires extensive training and certification to work with it safely. This is a job for a professional.

Identifying the designer is imporant in assessing value

IDENTIFY THE DESIGNER of an antique and it will usually sell for more. Sometimes an attribution is enough. This Aesthetic Movement table ebonized finish. incised gilt decoration and flower panels sold for an impressive $6,144 at Neal Auction. While you can't dismiss its visual appeal after all, it was made during the Aesthetic Movement of the late 19th century, the time of "art for art's sake" — its attribution to New York firm Kimbel & Cabus was probably a factor in its selling.

The Kimbel & Cabus firm was active from 1862 to 1882 and famous for exhibiting their furniture at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876. The ebonized table is typical of their designs, with its dark finish, elaborate gilt and incising, sturdy square shape and natureinspired decoration. Very little information about the survives. firm They marked their furniture with paper labels that have worn away over time, so the only way to identify their furniture is to match it to the pictures in their one surviving trade catalog. That is why this table is attributed to them, not confirmed. Because they are so difficult to identify, Kimbel & Cabus furniture pieces are extremely rare, and therefore valuable.

Q: I have quite a large collection of Roseville pottery. Do you know where I can find current prices?

A: For current prices, we recommend checking local stores or looking online. There are several books on Roseville Pottery that are helpful for identification, like "Warman's Roseville Pottery" (second edition, Denise Rago, 2007) or "The Collectors Encyclopedia of Roseville Pottery" (Volume 2, Revised Edition, Sharon & Bob Huxford and Mike Nickel, 2001), but they are old enough that prices are outdated. The website Just Art Pottery (justartpottery.com) is a good source for information and prices. It has a section for Roseville. Another way to find current prices is to check recent auction results. Look online for auction houses that specialize in art pottery and search their archives of past auctions. Rago Auction (ragoarts.com) has a strong reputation in the art pottery world. Remember, with pottery, condition is an important factor in price.

Q: I need help identifying an antique witch ball passed through generations of my family. I don't know anything about it.

A: Witch balls are hollow balls of blown glass that are suspended in the air or placed on a pedestal, usually as garden decorations. They became popular decorations in the mid-1800s. There is plenty of folklore surrounding the name "witch ball." Some say it is because witches can use them as divination tools; others say they offer protection from witches' spells and evil spirits, either by reflecting them away or trapping them inside the ball. Yet another story claims that they were originally called "watch balls" because you could see their surroundings reflected in the glass, making them useful for monitoring a room, if kept indoors, or seeing who is approaching the house, if kept outside. They are also called gazing balls. They are made in many different colors and patterns; glassblowers may have made them as whimsies, which were pieces made in their spare time to practice techniques, use up glass remnants or give as gifts. Like many 19th-century glass forms, they experienced a revival in the 1920s and '30s. Antique witch balls sell for about $100 to

The maker of this decorated table is not known but believed to be Kimbel & Cabus, an important furniture company in the American Aesthetic Movement.

$350. The value is higher if you can identify a maker and narrow down the year it was made.

Q: I have a necklace that's a long string of red faceted beads. Can you tell me what it might be worth?

A: Your necklace sounds like the art deco style that was popular in the 1920s and 1930s. Its value will depend on what the beads are made of. We have seen similar necklaces with plastic beads sell for $30-$75; glass, about $50; gemstones, $100-$300. Check any metal parts, like the clasp and any chain links or bead separators, for a maker's mark or any information about the type of metal. Costume jewelry by a famous maker can be worth more than some pieces with precious stones. Costume Jewelry Collectors Int'l (costumejewelrycollectors.com) is an organization dedicated to providing educational resources for collectors and can be extremely helpful.

TIP: Watch out for fake Bakelite jewelry being made in Taiwan and other Asian areas. The new plastic is heavier than old Bakelite, and if held under water, it smells very different from old Bakelite. Metal pins or decorations are riveted to old Bakelite but glued to new fakes.

Few have flood insurance to help recover from recent devastating Midwest storms

BY MICHAEL PHILLIS AND MARGERY A. BECK

Associated Press

SOUTH SIOUX CITY. Neb. — Rick Satterwhite's house backs up to the Missouri River, but flood insurance hadn't really seemed necessary – until this week, when he had to pump water out of his basement after a round of destructive storms.

It's not the first time he's had to dry out his basement from floodwater, but bad storms are getting more frequent, he said. Satterwhite watched with dread Monday as the river came within 2 feet (61 centimeters) of his backdoor in Dakota City, Nebraska, after torrential rain produced record-setting Midwestern floods, destroying hundreds of properties.

"I talked to our agent today," Satterwhite said. "We're going to get flood insurance now."

Satterwhite is hardly alone. As the Midwest begins to recover, many won't have flood insurance, which must be purchased separately from homeowners insurance. Federal data shows that across the flooded states of Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa and Minnesota, the government has only issued about 26,500 flood insurance policies combined.

Lack of insurance can burden homeowners with out-of-pocket repair costs and place more need on nonprofits and the government, said Emily Rogan, senior program officer at United Policyholders, an insurance consumers counties covered by the governor's disaster proclamations, less than 1% of single-family homes have flood insurance from the government, which issues the vast majority of poli-

Many think flooding won't happen to them and is hardly worth the cost of another bill, according to Tom O'Meara, CEO of Independent Insurance Agents of Iowa. Iowa property insurance rates have skyrocketed in recent years after a series of expensive weather disasters, he said. Avoidance of flood insurance comes as climate change increases flood risk, creating conditions that produce wetter rainstorms.

And this past week's storms also badly flooded smaller rivers that don't frequently overflow, catching people off guard.

"I don't think people have a personal experience with floods like this very often," said Nathan Young, associate director of the Iowa Flood Center.

In 2022, the average annual price of federal flood insurance was $935. Federally-backed mortgages and many banks require flood insurance in high risk zones identified by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, but those maps don't consider flooding from all sources, like rain. FEMA's recentlyupdated pricing reflects more factors, and the agency says these prices not flood maps – are the best indicator of risk.

In Iowa, hundreds are being helped at American Red Cross shelters. Workers ask people about their loved ones and basic needs. Then they help victims assess the damage and what can be done. This is when some people first realize they needed to buy a separate flood insurance policy, said Charles Blake, disaster services senior executive with the

ple who do have policies

Others like Ben Thomas consciously avoid flood insurance and assume risk themselves. For nearly two days, Thomas pumped water out of his basement on the north side of the Little Sioux River in Spencer, Iowa, moving between his house, his parents' riverfront property across the street and other neighbors.

"I don't believe that insurance is the answer to life's problems," he said. "I would say we made a very well informed decision, but in this case, we got burned."

While he doesn't regret his decision not to buy an expensive policy, he acknowledged residents might feel differently on the south side of the river, where some homes are unlivable with water on the main floor.

The National Flood Insurance Program covers up to $250,000 for a building and offers policies to protect contents worth as much as $100,000. That's not always enough to replace an entire destroyed house, and even though the private market is small, it provides policies that can fill the gap.

There is some help available for the uninsured. The federal government's disaster declaration for parts of the flooded area allows it to issue grants and low interest loans to help with temporary housing, some home repairs and essentials like cleaning supplies and baby formula.

"We can still help," said John Mills, a FEMA response team spokesperson, but flood insurance provides much more money.

FEMA's new pricing method increased rates for about three quarters of policy holders, but others saw decreases for the first time. Selling more policies is a struggle nationwide; slightly fewer people are buying them this year.

One problem is that FEMA is prohibited from discounting premiums for low-income residents, according to Rob Moore, director of flooding solutions at the Natural Resources Defense Council.

'Only Congress can fix that," he said.

And when rebuilding starts, that's the easiest time to mitigate the risk of the next flood, said Chad Berginnis, executive director of the Association of State Floodplain Managers.

"Instead of rebuilding the same way you did immediately, stop, think about what you can do to protect yourself," Berginnis said. "Nobody wants to elevate their house or do flood proofing projects on a sunny day.'

Workers switching jobs find the grass isn't always greener elsewhere

Bloomberg News (TNS)

Switching jobs typically makes workers happier. Now, it's more likely to leave them more miserable than before.

People who left a job for a new one reported being less satisfied at work than those who stayed put, according to a survey from the Conference Board, a sharp reversal from their sentiments just a year earlier. In 2022, those who switched jobs scored higher on all 26 separate components of job satisfaction, from wages to work-life balance and culture. But in the most-recent tally, those who quit said they were less pleased than those who remained on the majority of those elements, particularly job security, interest in work and their colleagues.

The decline could stem from those who took big pay bumps to switch employers during the pandemic when hiring surged and quitting was rampant but who failed to take into account other key aspects of the job such as skills training and opportunities for career development. In 2022, wage gains for job switchers soared, according to data from the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, as employers dangled signing bonuses and other perks to get people in the door. Those days are now largely over, evidenced by the April payrolls report, which showed some cooling underway in the job market.

"We were pretty surprised," said Schweyer, a principal researcher at the Conference Board. "If you left a job in 2021 or 2022, you might have been offered a raise of 20% or even more, and you're thinking, 'I'll take that.' But they might not have looked at other factors, like is there a career path, and what's the culture like? So when they get there, they realize the grass not necessarily greener."

Overall job satisfaction was the highest since the research organization started tracking the measure in 1987, and was higher for those who had the flexibility to work remotely all or part of the time. The least-satisfied workers, according to the November survey of 1,699 people, were those in their jobs between six months and three years — largely those who switched jobs sometime during the pandemic. Those workers were most unhappy with their employers' bonus plan, promotion policies and train-

Five ways to help you escape from a money rut

Sometimes, climbing out of a money rut starts with a pep talk — to your-

"I like affirmations and speaking out loud," says Giovanna Gonzalez, a financial educator and author of "Cultura & Cash." Her favorite affirmations are statements like. "I am not a reflection of my money mistakes," "I can improve my financial situation," and finances are within my control."

If you find yourself repeating frustrating money patterns, such as overspending or struggling to pay off debt, that kind of attitude shift can help get you on a different path, Gonzalez "Mindset is so important, and sometimes we end up being very hard on ourselves for making bad money choices. If we don't forgive ourselves, it can be a barrier to doing better."

Financial experts also recommend using the following methods to climb out of a money rut:

PICK AN EXCITING GOAL

Sometimes, our money goals can inspire us to think bigger and more creatively about our financial lives. Elaine King, a certified financial planner and founder of the firm Family and Money Matters in Miami, says she finds people often need a "money motivation" or an exciting goal to inspire them to adopt better financial habits.

"It has to be something you really want, like traveling. Maybe you really want to go to Europe or get a car or a graduate degree or start a business," King says. Give yourself a dollar amount and a goal date, and then you can start working toward it by aside setting small amounts of money from each paycheck.

Gonzalez recommends making the objectives visible in your home. When she was planning for a trip abroad, she put a large map on her wall to keep the goal front and center. She says changing the background on your phone to represent the target, such as a screenshot of a debt payoff sign or a dream home, can also work well.

BREAK BIG TASKS INTO SMALLER ONES

If your goal is overwhelming, divide it into smaller pieces, suggests Don Grant, CFP and partner at Sabre Wealth in Wichita, Kansas. If you have $30,000 in high-interest consumer debt, for example, then break it into smaller wins of paying off $5,000 at a time by different dates, for exam-

"If you're wondering, 'How am I ever going to pay it off?' that would be the definition of being caught in a rut," Grant says. "It helps tremendously to break it into small chunks and celebrate the small wins that you have."

UNLOAD DEBT THAT'S DRAGGING YOU DOWN

With some progress under your belt, you can settle on a sustainable approach to knock out the debt, says Sharon Lechter, author of "How Money Works for Women." She suggests selecting either the snowball method, where you first pay off the smallest debts and work up the momentum to tackle the bigger ones, or the avalanche method, where you pay off the debt with the highest interest

"You will feel empowered because you took the first step," Lechter adds.

TAKE A CLOSE LOOK AT SPENDING PATTERNS

Examining your current spending habits can inspire some small tweaks that lead to increased savings, Lechter says. She suggests categorizing how you spend your money over the last 12 months and then comparing those averages with ballpark recommendations. For example, the 50/30/20 budget suggests spending 50% of your after-tax income on needs, including minimum payments on debts; 30% on wants; and 20% on savings and debt payments beyond those minimums.

If you notice habits that lead to overspending, such as going to a weekly happy hour that turns into a multihour expensive meal, then Grant suggests starting a new routine instead. Taking yourself out of pricey situations and replacing them with other activities makes it easier to spend less, he says.

King recommends trying "a couple months of detox and just buy the things you need. Subscriptions, gym membership, extra clothes, shoes, restaurants — you don't need them." Severely restricting your spending for a short period can help you reset going forward, she adds.

FIND SOMEONE TO ENCOURAGE YOU

"Don't be afraid to reach out for help," Grant says. That help might come from a financial professional such as a CFP or a trusted friend or family member who can motivate you along the way. "If you tell people who care about you, they will help you and encourage you," he adds.

Lechter suggests surrounding yourself with people who also want to make a positive change in their own lives. "Those friends and family will be proud of you," she says, versus feeling threatened or envious.

And they can also help you celebrate when you reach a milestone, like paying off the last credit card or saving enough to go on a big trip.

DAVE RAMSEY

Compassion and reasonable boundaries

Dave.

How do you manage a situation where you feel an employee may be taking advantage of you when it comes to time off? I have one person who seems to have endless things pop up throughout the year, and she's always asking for extra time off. This year, she has already used up her paid time off (PTO), knowing she has fertility treatments scheduled later in the year that would require time off. I've always wanted my business to remain famoriented and employee-friendly as we grew. But I'm starting to feel my heart harden, too, like she may be taking advantage of me.

— Kate

Kate. The fact that you're conflicted about this shows you have a good heart. Team members are individuals, not units of production. We all have unique hopes and dreams, and you should recognize and respect that. But it sounds like this particular employee also has a habit of making dumb mistakes where her time off is concerned.

I've experienced this kind of behavior from time to time as my company's grown. And as time's gone by, I've started listening to my gut to differentiate actual needs from stupidity. I try to treat other people the way I'd like to be treated, instead of just through the lens of what I want or what's good for Ramsey Solutions.

If a team member is going to make a series of bad choices, I'm going to assume at some point they don't really want to work here. You can be the nicest, sweetest person in the world and still do dumb things that make you unemployable. But holding someone accountable for their actions doesn't mean you lack compassion.

We've had situations at my company where someone runs through their PTO, then something comes up. We evaluate the situation, and we might extend some grace and give them extra paid time off. Sometimes we might give time off, but it's unpaid. Other times, it might be out of the question to give the time off (or for the person to keep their job at that point). Every situation's different, and we decide things like that on a case-by-case basis.

Now, there's absolutely nothing wrong with this lady's desire to have a family. I think that's a great thing. But she knew these treatments were in her future when she took the other PTO. You're showing great concern and compassion for your employee, Kate, but it's almost like you want her to win more than she wants to win.

God forbid, but let's pretend this lady's husband was in a bad car wreck. She's going to need time off to help take care of him. Of course, she gets extra PTO. No question, that deserves some grace. And if any of your other employees don't understand that or like it, they can hit the road. But that's not the case, is it? This lady had a planned life event, and she messed up her time off situation all by herself.

I think in this situation, you probably let your compassion go a little too far, and now you're having a hard time with the consequences. If it were me, I'd give this lady a little extra PTO for the treatments, but I'd also have a gentle but firm talk with her about managing time off more wisely.

GET THE JOB

Consider Learning a Trade

Not all quality employment opportunities require a degree from a fouryear university.

Consider the range of highly tions in skilled trades that can be acquired through technical schools and apprenticeships.

The advantage of pursuing these careers is that you can establish a successful path without accumulating student debt. Moreover, your work will always be in demand.

Workforce studies have shown that there are tens of millions of good-paying jobs in the United States that do not require a bachelor's degree. At the same time, those with this higher level of education aren't necessarily guaranteed a higher salary. For instance, workers with associate degrees in highly specialized fields like chemical technology may surpass the median earnings of others with a bachelor's degree. Training for these in-demand roles can begin during high school, where students may receive instruction in classes like auto-repair fundamentals or woodworking. Upon graduation, apprenticeships become available. Others may choose to attend a technical college or trade school for more advanced lessons.

Some valuable skills are consistently needed, generation after generation, and they include plumbing, electrical

PLUMBING

Technology has revolutionized every element of our lives, including plumbing. To obtain a license, plumbing technicians must complete a year of training at a technical school and subsequently embark on an apprenticeship. During this process, they acquire knowledge beyond just drains and pipes. Modern plumbing incorporates cutting-edge technology such as smart appliances and tankless water

ELECTRICIANS

Those with a passion for this field and a high school diploma or equivalent can enroll in technical school to kickstart their journey toward becoming an electrician. The training program covers a wide range of topics, including everything from basic wiring techniques to the latest programmable systems used in a range of settings from homes and offices to factories. Typically, students complete two years of school-ing before embarking on an apprenticeship program. After this crucial step, they move on to obtaining the necessary licensing to work as a professional electrician.

CONSTRUCTION Similarly, construction jobs now rely heavily on computeri- plumbers.

est smart-enabled systems. including troubleshooting, installation and repairs. Given all the modern-era tech ved, even the most fied individuals in this field require additional training. It typically takes two to three years for technologists to earn certification, followed by a paid apprenticeship. VETERANS BENEFITS Your life history may work

They can leverage veteran benefits to acquire further training or learn adaptive skills that facilitate their entry into the civilian job market

Veterans can quickly estab lish a stable career where their skills are consistently in demand if they are willing to work with their hands and take part in training, then go about serving apprenticeships and obtaining certification. These careers often offer lucrative pay rates, occasionally reaching six figures. Key areas of demand typically include electricians, construction and

A 'slap in the face:' Farmworker groups decry law preventing heat rules

Orlando Sentinel (TNS)

Agriculture is the second-largest industry in Florida after tourism, and Central Florida has three of the state's top 10 producing counties: Polk, Orange and Lake.

Although states such as Washington, Minnesota, California, Oregon and Colorado have laws protecting those who toil in the heat. Florida lacks such standards for its 2 million outdoor workers. A law that takes effect on July 1 will kill any chance that cities and counties can respond to the problem.

Among other things, HB 433 prevents local governments from enacting heat protection requirements. Supporters say federal safety standards are sufficient and non-uniform local ordinances would burden employers. The bill, backed by business groups and opposed by workers' rights organizations, passed on the last day of the 2024 legislative session and signed into law by Gov. Ron DeSantis in April. The law's passage was a

"slap in the face" to farmworkers, said Jeannie Economos, who coordinates safety programs for the Farmworker Association of Florida.

"Industry folks that pushed through this preemption bill ... have been saying that employers already protect their workers," said Economos. "If were true, wouldn't be hearing complaints from workers all the time that they need protections." Last year was one of Florida's hottest summer on record, and this year will once again bring unusually brutal heat, the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration predicts.

With heat comes heat stroke. Emergency department visits soared alongside temperatures in 2023, breaking records in many states with 119.605 total heat-related visits nationally, a recent Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report found. AdventHealth Central Florida confirmed a 20% surge in patients seeking care for heat-related illnesses during the region's hottest months last year.

"Extreme heat is affecting the health of all Floridians ... and the most vulnerable populations are outdoor workers. The ways to prevent and treat heat illness are very simple, but if we don't implement them or have a working knowledge of them, it's a deadly disease," said Shauna Junco, Florida Clinicians for Climate Action Board president.

Warning signs of heat illness include hot, red, or damp skin, fast pulse, dizziness, nausea, headaches, fainting or a body temperature above 103 degrees fahrenheit. Without intervention, these symptoms can escalate to organ damage or death.

Beyond heat's immediate effects, research suggests that heat exposure over time can cause or worsen conditions such as heart attacks, stroke or kidney failure. This is why heat is often called the "silent killer" and its impact is believed to be underestimated, Junco said.

"It's insidious," Junco said. "It's often not recognized that heat is what caused someone to die or to have an exacerbation or acute worsening of a chronic medical condition."

A study by Emory University and Farmworker Association of Florida researchers found Central Florida agricultural workers' core body temperatures exceeded the safety limit of 100.4 degrees Fahrenheit on 49 of 86 workdays.

In another study, researchers found that a majority of workers were dehydrated, one-third of workers experienced acute kidney injury on at least one of the study days, and the odds of kidney injury increased 47% for each 5-degree Fahrenheit increase in the heat index.

High class crime

'Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F' continues Detroit cop's hijinks in Los Angeles

By Sarah Passingham

TV Media

One of film's most beloved and unorthodox police detectives is back on his beat, 30 years since audiences last saw him take down crime in Los Angeles' most famous ZIP code. Eddie Murphy ("You People," 2023) stars in the brand new action-comedy "Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F," premiering Wednesday, July 3, on Netflix.

Murphy reprises his role as Detective Axel Foley — who first made his iconic appearance in 1984's "Beverly Hills Cop," which was followed up by sequels in 1987 and 1994 — a Detroit police officer whose work often takes him to sunny California and the glamorous, storied suburb of Beverly Hills to chase down drug lords, weapons kingpins and counterfeiting rings.

Joining Axel yet again is his trusty partner, Lt. Billy Rosewood, portrayed by Judge Reinhold ("Fast Times at Ridgemont High," 1982). Joseph Gordon-Levitt ("Mr. Corman") is Bobby Abbott, a detective with the Beverly Hills Police Department and ex-boyfriend of Axel's estranged daughter, Jane (Taylour Paige, "Zola," 2020).

So, what brings Axel back to the 90210 from his home in the Motor City this time, four decades since his first mayhem-filled assignment? Axel's daughter Jane, a criminal defense attorney, receives a threat to her life, prompting her father to team up with old and new partners and pin down the danger.

In an official trailer for the film, Axel, Billy and Bobby drive chaos all over Beverly Hills, from crash landing a helicopter on a golf course, to chasing down bad guys in a snow plow and steering a cargo truck through a palatial home's sitting room. The crime-fighting crew will get to the bottom of this case at any cost.

Reprising their roles from previous Beverly Hills Cop franchise films are Paul Reiser ("Mad About You") as Police Chief Jeffrey Friedman; John Ashton ("Gone Baby Gone," 2007) as Sgt. John Taggart; and Bronson Pinchot ("Chilling Adventures of Sabrina") as former foe, Serge.

Joining the cast in this installment is Kevin Bacon ("Leave the World Behind," 2023) as Capt. Grant, who welcomes Axel back to the force — but can he be trusted?

Axel has dealt with crooked cops before, so it wouldn't be the first time he found corruption went all the way to the top.

In a recent appearance on "The Daily Show," Bacon told Jordan Klepper, "I'm not afraid of being a bad guy in the movie," summing up his philosophy on being hated on screen by saying, "to me, it's just great parts and I just want to be them. And I'm exorcising some demons."

A newcomer to the Beverly Hills Cop franchise, Gordon-Levitt talked to Empire about his role in the upcoming film, saying, "this character is a bit straight-laced — I am an actual Beverly Hills cop, whereas Axel Foley is a cop from Detroit who finds himself in Beverly Hills — but he's not a simple straight man."

Anyone going toe-to-toe with Murphy is the straight man by default, but Gordon-Levitt shared that his character isn't just there to question Axel's hijinks. "I also get my licks in. I wouldn't be living up to this crazy opportunity if I wasn't going to have a few myself. We got to do some really fun stuff."

Murphy's TV and film career has spanned over 40 years, with memorable performances across nearly every genre in entertainment — not to mention his music career's peak at number two on the Billboard Hot 100 chart with his 1985 single, "Party All the Time." Murphy was an instant star, credited with revitalizing the sketch-comedy staple "Saturday Night Live" during his four season tenure on the show from 1980 to 1984.

Murphy's success on TV and in wildly popular stand-up comedy specials "Delirious" (1983) and "Eddie Murphy Raw" (1987) led to a blockbuster film career in the 1980s. Beyond the Beverly Hills Cop films, Murphy starred in hits like 1983's "Trading Places" and "Coming to America" in 1988, before courting a younger audience in the following decades with the Nutty Professor film series and his voice acting work as the sidekick in animated film classics like "Mulan" in 1999 and the Shrek films.

After making a

nium, Murphy experienced a career renaissance with a best actor nomination at the Golden Globe Awards for his portrayal of blaxploitation film star Rudy Ray Moore in 2019's "Dolemite Is My Name." Now, Murphy is reintroducing his comedy blockbuster work to the fans he made in the last 20 years of his career by reviving his past work in sequels like the upcoming "Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F" and 2021's "Coming 2 America."

Speaking to Vanity Fair in 2020 about his perspective now on choosing new projects, Murphy said, "I had a little crossroads where it was like, it's time to back off, and sit on the couch and just be Dad. Now, I just want to do stuff where there's an emotional hook, and it's something that I'm really into, and not just doing it because, you know, somebody flashed a big dollar sign in front of you."

Strap yourself in for a wild ride chasing bad guys all over L.A. when "Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F" premieres on Netflix Wednesday, July 3.

Teen prospect Miles Russell gets set to make his pro debut

By Roberto Jozef

TV Media

Golf fans are in for a treat this week as 15-year-old sensation Miles Russell prepares to make his PGA Tour debut at the 2024 Rocket Mortgage Classic, June 27-30 at Detroit's own Detroit Golf Club. The tournament broadcasts live on CBS.

As the PGA Tour heads to Detroit, all eves will be on Russell, the youngest champion in Junior Players Championship history. Now, as one of the youngest players to ever make the PGA Tour cut, the Jacksonville Beach, Florida, native is set to make his pro golf debut in a highly competitive tournament.

"Ever since I first started playing golf, my dream has been to compete on the PGA Tour and test my game against the best players," Russell said in a statement. "I'm looking forward to making the most of the experience later this month."

Leading up to his debut, Russell was the American Junior Golf Association player of the year in 2023. In 2024, Russell has continued his impressive play, posting a 5-under 66 at the LECOM Suncoast Classic in April, finishing the final round on an impressive run with seven birdies in 10 holes, making him the youngest player to complete a top-25 finish on either the PGA Tour or the Korn Ferry Tour since at least 1983.

While much of the focus will be on the 15-year-old phenom Russell, Rickie Fowler will try to defend his Rocket Mortgage Classic title. However, this season has seen Fowler struggle considerably since winning at the Detroit Golf Club in 2023.

Speaking to reporters at the Rocket Mortgage Classic media day, Fowler remained optimistic as he looks to become the first two-time champion at the tournament.

"A lot comes down to process and having self-belief. Things have been very close," Fowler said via Zoom. "We've had a lot of good rounds. I just haven't been able to piece them together and put a good week together," said Fowler.

New Releases

The First Omen

In 1971, American novitiate Margaret Daino (Free) arrives in Rome at the Vizzardeli Orphanage as part of her training prior to taking her vows. There, she is introduced to the senior members of the church, including Cardinal Lawrence (Nighy), Father Gabriel (Barhom) and the Abbess, Sister Silva (Braga). Shortly after her arrival, Margaret attends a disco with her roommate and fellow novitiate Luz (Caballero), where she encounters a mysterious man and blacks out. As she begins to experience increasingly disturbing sights and violent encounters, Margaret is warned by Father Brennan (Ineson) about a conspiracy within the church to restore faith by bringing about the birth of the Antichrist. Director: Arkasha Stevenson. Stars: Nell Tiger Free, Tawfeek Barhom, Sônia Braga, Ralph Ineson, Charles Dance. Bill Nighy, Nicole Sorace, Ishtar Currie-Wilson, Maria Caballero, Rachel Hurd-Wood. 2024. 119 min. Supernatural

The Boys in the Boat

In 1936, Joe Rantz (Turner) is an engineering student struggling to afford his tuition fees at the University of Washington. Unemployed, he lives in his car, barely able to scrape together enough money for the bare necessities. After hearing from fellow struggling student Roger Morris (Strike) that the rowing team comes with a job and boarding, the two boys try out and, despite not being rowers, make the junior varsity team. The team's coach, Al Ulbrickson (Edgerton), is under pressure to beat their University of California, Berkeley, rival and make it to the 1936 Olympics. After Coach Ulbrickson takes a chance on the experienced but wilful Bobby Moch (Slattery), recruiting him as the team's coxswain, UW's eights rowing team proves themself a force to be reckoned with.

Lights Out

Michael "Duffy" Duffield (Grillo) is a homeless veteran struggling to reintegrate himself back into society in the aftermath of his wartime experiences. Drifting from town to town, he makes just enough money to travel to his next destination. Currently situated in Los Angeles, he gets into a fight at a roadhouse bar when another patron tries to cheat him in a game of poker. Max (Phifer), a former convict and the manager of fighters for an underground fight club, witnesses this and approaches Duffy, offering him the opportunity to make some money for them both in the illegal operation, run by a sinister crime boss and a corrupt police detective. 'The Great American Recipe' returns with new judges

By Caroline Collacutt

TV Media

With eight new home cooks, two new judges and one new location, there's a lot changing in the "GAR" kitchen. Get caught up on what's coming this season, as all-new episodes of "The Great American Recipe," air weekly on Mondays on PBS through August 12.

Celebrating the diverse tastes and traditions of American cuisine, this competition series returns with its third season, sharing eight episodes in which home cooks will prepare their most beloved recipes for the judges, who will determine who moves on to the next round. With several fun, unexpected twists, this new season honors tradition and change all in one

This season's line-up of competitors includes Mae Chandran (Malibu, California), Marcella DiChiara (Franklin, Massachusetts), Tim Harris (Fort Mill, South Carolina), Doug Heilman (Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania), Jon Hinojosa (San Antonio, Texas), Adjo Honsou (St. Louis, Missouri), Ingrid Portillo (Charlotte, North Carolina) and Kim Sherry (Anchorage,

Now filming in Nashville, Tennessee, the "GAR" studio has opened its doors to new judges Tim Hollingsworth ("Tournament of Champions") and Francis Lam ("Top Chef Masters"), who will join returning judge Tiffany Derry ("Bobby's Triple Threat") and host Alejandra Ramos ("Today Show") in this latest endeavor.

Hollingsworth, an award-winning chef and restaurateur, first opened his Los Angeles-based flagship restaurant, Otium, in 2015, offering diners a sophisticated — yet still accessible — contemporary menu, featuring eclectic, vibrant flavors and twists on American classics. Hollingsworth went on to co-found Chain alongside B.J. Novak ("The Office") — an immersive dining experience reinventing chain restaurant favorites — and, alongside his current judging duties, plans to expand the Otium brand to other major cities.

Throughout his career, Hollingsworth has claimed many achievements, including the 2010 James Beard Foundation Rising Chef of the Year Award and placing sixth in the 2009 Bocuse d'Or. Hollingsworth also competed on and won Netflix's "The Final Table" in 2018, earning himself international fame.

Current host of the public radio program "The Splendid Table" and a former Eat" columnist for the New York Times Magazine, the series also welcomes chef Francis Lam, who graduated first in his class from the Culinary Institute of America in 2003. While studying at the institute, Lam wrote extensive emails detailing his experiences, eventually landing the budding food writer a position at the Financial Times. The next year, Lam was introduced to Gourmet editor Ruth Reichl and then began his climb towards writing for Food & Wine, Salon and Bon Keep up with the competition with "The Great American Recipe," airing Mondays on PBS.

"Shark Beach With Anthony Mackie: Gulf Coast"

Swim safe this summer: National Geographic's 2024 Sharkfest kicks off Monday, July 1, on Disney+, with features also available on Hulu, after airing on the linear National Geographic channel the day before. Kicking off Sharkfest this year is "Shark Beach With Anthony Mackie: Gulf Coast," which follows actor Anthony Mackie ("The Falcon and the Winter Soldier") as he navigates the waterways of New Orleans, where he was born and raised. As Mackie "explores the growing rumors that shark encounters may be on the rise in the Gulf of Mexico" (per ABC), he works with a team of experts, consulting the latest in scientific research. to find better ways for humans and sharks to coexist in the waters surrounding Louisiana. Following up on July 1 is "Shark vs. Ross Edgley," which follows "ultra-athlete swimmer, world record holder and shark advocate Ross Edgley ... [as he attempts] to pit his mind and body against four of the most formidable sharks in the ocean" (ABC). Other Sharkfest features this year include: "Baby Sharks in the City" (July 2), which explores a great white shark nursery off the coast of New York City; "Shark Attack 360" (July 2), which uses forensic evidence to look into why sharks attack: "Attack of the Red Sea Sharks" (July 7), which takes a deeper look at a series of deadly attacks in Egypt; and many more.

"Bluey Minisodes"

Bringing more tail-wagging fun and heartwarming stories to families, seven brandnew "Bluey Minisodes" make their debut Wednesday, July 3, on Disney+. Further exploring the beloved world of "Bluey," the smash-hit Australian children's series about the adventures of blue heeler pup Bluey and her family, these new shorts, running one to three minutes each, "highlight funny and sweet moments featuring Bluey and Bingo, leaning into playful interactions and games" (per Disney). The premiere, titled "Burger Dog," sees Bluey and her little sister, Bingo, dancing to annoying music, while their dad, Bandit, does everything he can to stop it. Later episodes include "Bingo 3000," "Muffin Unboxing," "Letter," "Hungry," "Three Pigs" and "Animals." "Bluey Minisodes" comes from original series creator Joe Brumm ("Tinga Tinga Tales").

"Hercules" (1997)

He put the "glad" in "gladiator." His daring deeds make great theater. There's nobody braver and sweeter. And you can witness his exploits in the Disney animated classic

"Hercules," available now on Disney+. From directors Ron Clements and John Musker (both of "Aladdin," 1992), the film follows Hercules, voiced by Tate Donovan ("Argo," 2012) as an adult and Josh Keaton ("The Spectacular Spider-Man") and Roger Bart ("The Producers," 2005) as a teenager, as he tries to find his place in the world after discovering he's the son of Greek gods Zeus (Rip Torn, "Men in Black," 1997) and Hera (Samantha Eggar, "The Collector," 1965). Hercules is joined on his heroic adventure by childhood friend Pegasus (Frank Welker, "The Transformers") and half-goat, halfman trainer Phil (Danny DeVito, "Batman Returns," 1992). However, Hercules' heroics gain the attention of Hades (James Woods, 'Vampires," 1998), the Greek god of death and Zeus' conniving brother. Hades seeks to eliminate Hercules before enacting his plan to overthrow Zeus and conquer Mount Olympus for his own. With a screenplay by

"The Tunnel to Summer, the Exit of Goodbyes" (2022)

Directed by Tomohisa Taguchi ("Akudama Drive"), the feature-length animated film "The Tunnel to Summer, the Exit of Goodbyes" makes its streaming debut Tuesday, July 2, on Hulu. Based on the Japanese light novel of the same name, written by Mei Hachimoku – also called "Natsu e no Tonneru, Savonara no Deguchi" – and its subsequent manga, "The Tunnel to Summer, the Exit of Goodbyes: Ultramarine," this adaptation features a voice cast including Oji Suzuka ("Listen to the Universe," 2019) as Kaoru Tono, Marie litovo ("Thus Spoke Kishibe Rohan") as Anzu Hanashiro, Tasuku Hatanaka ("My Hero Academia") as Shohei Kaga, Arisa Komiya ("Yohane the Parhelion: Sunshine in the Mirror") as Koharu Kawasaki, Haruka Terui ("Frieren: Beyond Journey's End") as Ms. Hamamoto, Rikiya Koyama ("Undead Unluck") as Kaoru's father and Seiran Kobayashi ("Chuzai Keiji") as Karen Tono. Set in a small, fictional Japanese town, the film follows high school student Kaoru (Suzuka) as he befriends a transfer student from Tokyo, Anzu (litoyo). Both struggling with problems at home, the two soon discover the "Urashima Tunnel" — a tunnel capable of granting wishes, but only at a cost and decide to utilize its powers, hoping to change their circumstances once and for all.

"Garden State" (2004)

With a soundtrack that epitomizes the early 2000's hipster scene, 2004's "Garden State" is available to stream on Hulu as of Monday, July 1, Written, directed by and starring Zach Braff ("Scrubs"), this romantic comedy follows the miserable, heavily medicated Andrew (Braff) as he returns home for his mother's funeral. forced to see his estranged family for the first time in a decade. Back in his New Jersev hometown, Andrew rekindles friendships with old friends Mark (Peter Sarsgaard, "Shattered Glass," 2003), Dave (Alex Burns, "Van Wilder," 2002) and Jesse (Armando Riesco, "The Chi"), and later meets a woman named Sam (Natalie Portman, "Black Swan," 2010) — a pathological liar who openly admits to her own dishonesty. Andrew and Sam slowly build a relationship with each other, as Andrew, a man totally out of touch with his feelings, collides with someone who seems to be overflowing with them. Based on Braff's own life experiences, "Garden State" also stars Jim Parsons ("Big Bang Theory"), Jean Smart ("Babylon," 2022), Method Man ("Power Book II: Ghost"), Michael Weston ("State of Play," 2009), Jackie Hoffman ("Glass Onion," 2022), Ian Holm ("Brazil," 1985), Amy Ferguson ("Inherent Vice," 2014), Ato Essandoh ("Jason Bourne," 2016), Ann Dowd ("Hereditary," 2018) and Ron Leibman ("Kaz").

"The Monuments Men" (2014)

Based on the 2007 non-fiction book "The Monuments Men: Allied Heroes, Nazi Thieves and the Greatest Treasure Hunt in History" by Robert M. Edsel and Bret Witter, the 2014 film, "The Monuments Men" arrives on Hulu this Monday, July 1. Starring Matt Damon ("Good Will Hunting," 1997), Bill Murray ("Lost in Translation," 2003), Cate Blanchett ("Carol," 2015), John Goodman ("Barton Fink," 1991), Jean Dujardin ("The Artist," 2011), Hugh Bonneville ("Downton Abbey") and George Clooney ("The Ides of March," 2011) — and also written and directed by Clooney — the film portrays an Allied group who are asked to find and collect priceless pieces of art during the height of World War II, hoping to save the pieces before they can be stolen or destroyed by the encroaching Nazis. This Amy unit, nicknamed the "Monuments Men," was composed of art historians, curators and museum directors, with each member responsible for returning the precious artworks to their rightful owners. "The Monuments Men" also features Bob Balaban ("A Mighty Wind," 2003), Dimitri Leonidas ("Centurion," 2010) and Justus von Dohnanyi ("Downfall," 2004).

"Space Cadet" (2024)

Blast off on an all-new adventure when Prime Video's newest comedy film, "Space Cadet," premieres on the streamer Thursday, July 4. Florida party girl Tiffany "Rex" Simpson (Emma Roberts, "American Horror Story") lives a fun and carefree life, but she's always dreamed of going to space. With her life not going according to plan and determined to turn things around for herself, Rex, with the help of her best friend, Nadine (Poppy Liu, "Hacks"), submits an embellished application to NASA's ultracompetitive astronaut training program. Using her quick wits to get through the program — and hopefully to the top of her class — Rex will have to get through her training and blast off before she can be caught as a fraud. Written and directed by Liz W. Garcia ("Memphis Beat"), "Space Cadet" also stars Tom Hopper ("Black Sails"), Gabrielle Union ("Truth Be Told"), Kuhoo Verma ("Plan B," 2021), Desi Lydic ("Awkward."), Sebastian Yatra ("Once Upon a Time... Happily Never After"), Yasha Jackson ("The Flight Attendant"), Andrew Call ("Z:The Beginning of Everything"), Troy lwata ("WeCrashed"), Josephine Huang ("Ramy"), Dave Foley ("The Kids in the Hall"), Sam Robards ("Twisted") and Joshua Harto ("The Dark Knight," 2008).

"Animal Crackers" (2017)

more. However, did you have beloved childhood snack on your movie adaptation bingo card? Well, look no further than 2017 animated comedy "Animal Crackers," available now on Prime Video, for your fill of animal-shaped cookie antics. Directed by Scott Christian Sava ("Caper: A Spirited Beginning," 1997), Tony Bancroft ("Mulan," 1998) and Jaime Maestro ("Wish Dragon," 2021), and written by Sava and Dean Lorey ("Harley Quinn"), "Animal Crackers" follows dog biscuit taste tester Owen (John Krasinski, "The Office") and his wife, Zoe (Emily Blunt, "Edge of Tomorrow," 2014), as they deal with the trials and tribulations of running a run-down circus. When Owen's uncle Bob (James Arnold Taylor, "Star Wars: The Clone Wars") and aunt Talia (Tara Strong, "The Powerpuff Girls") seemingly pass away in a fire, his conniving uncle Horatio (Ian McKellen, "The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001) tries to take the circus for himself. However, Owen and Zoe have a secret weapon: a magical box of Animal Crackers that allow them to change into any animal they eat in cracker form. Rounding out the all-star voice cast are Danny DeVito ("Batman Returns," 1992), Sylvester Stallone ("Rocky," 1976), Patrick Warburton ("The Emperor's New Groove," 2000), Raven-Symoné ("That's So Raven"), Harvey Fierstein ("Mrs. Doubtfire," 1993), Wallace Shawn ("The Princess Bride," 1987), Gilbert Gottfried ("Alladin," 1992). Kevin Grevioux ("Underworld," 2003) and newcomer Lydia Rose Taylor.

"Close Encounters of the Third Kind" (1977)

Experience what many consider one of the greatest science fiction films of all-time in "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." available to stream now on Prime Video. This classic, written and directed by Steven Spielberg ("Schindler's List," 1993), along with writing credits for Hal Barwood ("Warning Sign," 1985), Jerry Belson ("The Tracey Ullman Show"), John Hill ("Quantum Leap") and Matthew Robbins ("Guillermo del Toro's Pinocchio," 2022), stars Richard Dreyfuss ("Jaws," 1975) as Roy Neary, an electrician from Indiana. After having a chance encounter with a UFO on night, Roy becomes obsessed with aliens to the dismay of friends and family. Eventually, Roy decides to take a cross-country trip to find the answers he seeks. Apart from Dreyfuss, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" also stars Francois Truffaut ("Day for Night," 1973), Teri Garr ("Young Frankenstein," 1974), Melinda Dillon ("A Christmas Story," 1983), Bob Balaban ("Capote," 2005), J. Patrick McNamara ("Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure," 1989), Warren Kemmerling ("Family Plot," 1976), Roberts Blossom ("Home Alone," 1990), Cary Guffey ("Chiefs"), Lance Henriksen ("Aliens," 1986), Merrill Connally ("Rush." 1991), George DiCenzo ("Back to the Future," 1985), Gene Dynarski ("All the President's Men," 1976), Josef Sommer ("Dirty Harry," 1971), Carl Weathers ("Predator," 1987) and Philip Dodds.

"Sprint" - Season 1

Make your way to the starting line and get excited for the 2024 Summer Olympic Games with the new documentary series "Sprint," premiering Tuesday, July 2, on Netflix. From executive producers Paul Martin. James Gay-Rees and Warren Smith from Box to Box Films, the team behind hit series including "Formula 1: Drive to Survive" and "Break Point," "Sprint" follows some of the fastest athletes from all over the world. Digging deep into the psychology of the sport and the minds and motivations of the athletes, all of whom are constantly working hard to be the fastest person on the planet, the series takes "an exclusive behind-thescenes look at the high stakes and mental toughness of the sprinters who devote their entire lives to crossing the finish line in record time, where their professional futures are decided in just fractions of a second" (per Netflix). Following top sprinters as they travel around the world and through the 2023 world championships, the series features athletes including Sha'Carri Richardson (U.S.), Noah Lyles (U.S.) and Shericka Jackson (Jamaica), among many others from the U.S., Jamaica, the U.K., Ivory Coast, Kenva and Italy. Produced in association with the Olympic Channel, "Sprint" is directed by Phil Turner ("SAS: Who Dares Wins").

"The Imaginary" (2024)

Enter a world of make-believe and wonder with Japanese animation studio Studio Ponoc's animated feature film "The Imaginary" when it premieres Friday, July 5, on

Lamont Marcell Jacobs and Noah Lyles as seen in "Sprint"

Netflix. Based on the beloved and award-winning novel of the same name by A.F. Harrold and illustrated by Emily Gravett, the movie follows Amanda (voiced in the English version by Evie Kiszel, "The Magician's Garden," 2021), a young girl with a wealth of creativity, who dreams up Rudger (Louie Rudge-Buchanan, "Crosshairs," 2022), an imaginary boy only she can see. Together, the pair explore the world on all kinds of thrilling and grand adventures. But when Rudger suddenly finds himself alone and in The Town of Imaginaries, a place where forgotten Imaginaries go to live and work, he soon finds himself facing a mysterious threat. Featuring "groundbreaking hand-drawn animation ... heightened by first-of-their-kind techniques of light and shadow" (per Netflix), "The Imaginary" is directed by Yoshiyuki Momose ("Modest Heroes," 2018), with a screenplay by executive producer Yoshiaki Nishimura ("The Tale of The Princess Kaguya," 2013). The film's English version features a voice cast that also includes Hayley Atwell ("Agent Carter"), Sky Katz ("Raven's Home"), Kal Penn ("Designated Survivor"), Jane Singer (Mass Effect 2), Jeremy Swift ("Ted Lasso"), LeVar Burton ("Star Trek: The Next Generation") and Ruby Barnhill ("The BFG," 2016).

"Supacell" - Season 1

From rising British multi-hyphenate Rapman ("Blue Story," 2019) comes Season 1 of "Supacell," which is available to stream now on Netflix. This six-episode series follows five ordinary Black South Londoners as they deal with their newly-developed super powers. As the five come to terms with how these powers impact their daily lives, a new threat emerges to threaten their status quo and the lives of their loved ones. In order to save the love of his life, Michael Lasaki (Tosin Cole, "Doctor Who") takes it upon himself to unite these five superpowered individuals. The series also stars Adelayo Adedayo ("Some Girls"), Yasmin Monet Prince ("Hanna"), Eddie Marsan ("The World's End," 2013), Nadine Mills ("The Strangers," 2019), Eric Kofi-Abrefa ("Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom," 2018), Calvin Demba ("Kingsman: The Golden Circle," 2017), Josh Tedeku ("A Town Called Malice"), Rayxia Ojo ("Call the Midwife"), Giacomo Mancini ("Top Boy"), Michael Salami ("Hollyoaks") and Travis Jay ("Deep Fake Neighbour Wars"). In addition to Rapman, who serves as creator, showrunner, writer and lead director on the show, Sebastian Thiel ("Dreaming Whilst Black") directs three episodes, while Anna Ferguson ("No Offence"), Mouktar Mohammed ("Blue Story," 2019) and Steve Searle ("Gangs of London") executive produce.

DJ Hollywood as seen in "Disco: Soundtrack of a Revolution"

MLB Baseball

CSN (TBS) 8 p.m.

The Philadelphia Phillies are suddenly looking sharp following a series sweep when they hosted the Chicago Cubs last month. But can Thairo Estrada and the Cubs get redemption when the Phillies make the trip to their home turf of Wrigley Field in Chicago?

Doubling Down With the Derricos

тк 8 р.т.

Moving can often come with some big feelings. This week, as Deon and Karen pack up the house, they must deal with their kid's emotional reactions. Meanwhile, Darian looks forward and makes some drastic plans for her future, and GG gets her MRI results.

Disco: Soundtrack of a Revolution

13 24 9 p.m.

"Stayin' Alive" may have been an anthem for the ages when it was released in 1977. However, within a couple of years, the end was near as oversaturation and crass commercialization began to drive antidisco sentiment to new heights in this series finale.

Password

9 11 12 10 p.m.

In this modernized version of the iconic word-guessing game following the likes of "Password Plus" and "Super Password," celebrities team up with everyday contestants to play along. This week, Wiz Khalifa and Jimmy Fallon join the fun.

Hard Knocks: Offseason With the New York Giants

⊞ 10 р.т.

It's shocking that the New York Giants will be playing its 100th season this year. The premiere of this five-part original series goes behind the scenes to look at the steps it's taking in the off-season to prepare for this historic milestone.

Jacob Batalon in "Reginald the Vampire"

The Price Is Right

2 6 7 8 p.m.

Celebrating active-duty military, veterans and their families, this Fourth of July special episode welcomes The Band of The Golden West from Sacramento, Calif., performing with airmen-musicians under the command of Lt. Col. Cristina Moore Urrutia.

MasterChef

46 53 8 p.m.

The amateur chefs are dropping like flies as the generational mix is separating the good from the "not-as-good." Gordon Ramsay, Aarón Sánchez and Joe Bastianich are sharpening their knives as this larger-than-ever competition heats up.

Chicago Fire

9 11 12 9 p.m.

It's a sentimental moment as Firehouse 51 sees the return of familiar faces as it prepares to say goodbye to Brett (Kara Killmer). While a call at the expo center sends people scrambling, Violet (Hanako Greensmith) hurries to prepare the wedding venue.

Hope in the Water

13 24 9 p.m.

Farmed fish has a bad rep thanks to years of pollution and neglect. However, new technologies and ancient techniques may hold the answers. Actress Shailene Woodley joins a team of divers who turn "zombie" urchins into food in this series finale.

Reginald the Vampire

SYFY 10 p.m.

The life of every vampire on the planet is definitely going to come to an end unless friendly neighborhood vampire, Reginald (Jacob Batalon), can step up and figure a way out.

Murder at the Motel

A&E 10 p.m.

After a long day of traveling, there's nothing like the respite of a roadside motel. That is, so long as you wake up to check out the next day. In each new episode, hear real-life stories from victims and victims' families regarding deadly motel crimes.

RuPaul hosts "Lingo" Lingo

2 6 7 8 p.m.

Love word games? Good things as host RuPaul will have contestants' tongues tied unravelling words in a race against time. Guess wrong, but have another letter from the right word, they go again. If not, the challenger gets a chance to win.

Dateline NBC

9 11 12 9 p.m.

Anchor Lester Holt brings together NBC's award-winning correspondents to investigate compelling stories, breaking news events and mysteries with in-depth investigations, giving viewers a thorough look at the topic. Andrea Canning and Hoda Kotb contribute.

Where there's smoke, there's something heating up. Guy is on the road in Boulder, Colo., checking out a pizza place that knows how to spice things up. Then, Mesa, Ariz., offers tantalizing turnovers, while a BBQ joint in Memphis, Tenn., fans the flames.

Roots of Comedy With Jesus Trejo

13 24 10 p.m.

This fascinating documentary series offers viewers a backstage pass to the highs and lows of comedy, with installments exploring how comics mirror our society. During this new episode, Samoan comic Adam Pasi performs for his parents for the first time.

The Proof Is Out There: Alien Edition

(HIST) 10:05 p.m.

Ahoy! Journalist Tony Harris and his team determine that finding aliens might just be a number game. And with 70 per cent of the Earth covered in water, it might make more sense to start looking under the waves to find unidentified submerged objects.

Saturday Best Bets

Anthony Michael Hall, Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo and Dana Barron in "National Lampoon's Vacation"

2024 Tour de France

9 11 12 8 a.m.

The Tour continues with coverage of Stage 8 broadcast live from the route. Today, the race begins in Semur-en-Auxois, France, and ends in Colombey-les-Deux-Églises, just south of Paris. While the terrain is mostly flat, the bikers face a 114-mile ride.

WNBA Basketball

2 6 7 1 p.m.

They may have the most popular female basketball player in Caitlin Clark, but the season has been brutal for the Indiana Fever. And things might not get better soon as they welcome the surging New York Liberty to Gainbridge Fieldhouse in Indianapolis.

National Lampoon's Vacation

(AMC) 7 p.m.

Despite his best intentions of spending time with his wife (Beverly D'Angelo) and kids (Anthony Michael Hall, Dana Barron), Clark Griswold's (Chevy Chase) family vacation to Wally World quickly devolves into a series of unfortunate, yet hilarious, events.

Jaws 2

SYFY 7:30 p.m.

Years after the attacks that left the island reeling, Sheriff Brody (Roy Scheider) finds new trouble in the waters. Mayor Vaughn (Murray Hamilton) seeks to restore the town's reputation, but the disappearance of a pair of divers hints all is not right.

Three Wise Men and a Baby: Extended Cut

(HALL) 8 p.m.

A must-watch from the 2022 holiday season that sees three brothers (Tyler Hynes, Andrew Walker, Paul Campbell) take a merry stroll to self-discovery when they are forced to work together to care for a baby. This extended cut adds deleted scenes.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison

TV Media

Q:Why do TV shows use stand-ins for scenes if the actual stars are already there? It seems unnecessary since they have to shoot a scene multiple times from different angles to avoid showing that it's a stand-in.

A: Being "already there" is not the same as being ready and willing to do a simplistic shot. And doing that shot is not always the best use of an expensive actor's time.

That's the short answer for why films and shows might use a body double, sometimes called a stand-in, on camera.

In a given production, there are a lot of scenes that require a character to be on screen but don't require any real performance from the actor and don't show the actor's face. In cases like these, it makes more sense to use a double.

Note that the terminology is a little loose here. The term "double" or "body double" is more common when you're talking about being on camera. "Standin" is more commonly used to refer to people who are around before the cameras roll, to literally stand where the actor would stand, for the purposes of planning shots and lighting.

Body doubles, interestingly, are sometimes called "fake Shemps," in honor of Shemp Howard, one of the Three Stooges. Howard died suddenly in 1955, and a double was used to finish four Stooges shorts he was committed to doing. For the curious, they were: "Rumpus in the Harem," "Hot Stuff," "Scheming Schemers" and "Commotion on the Ocean," all released in 1956.

Q: Who is the actress who played Mary Todd Lincoln in "Manhunt"? And what's she doing next?

A: In "Manhunt," the Apple TV+ miniseries about the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln, Lincoln's wife was played by Lili Taylor.

Taylor's best known for starring in the weird and controversial indie film "I Shot Andy Warhol" (1996), but she's been a fixture of the big and small screens since 1988 when she came to fame as part of the ensemble of another cult favorite, "Mystic Pizza."

As for what's next for Taylor after "Manhunt," first off, it's not clear if her other streaming series will be back.

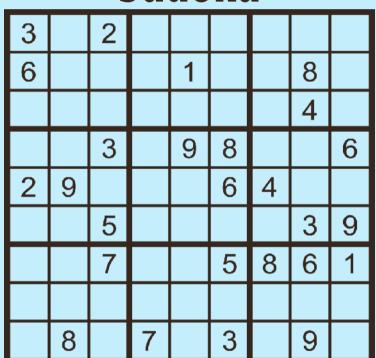

She stars in the Amazon Prime series "Outer Range," a sci-fi western in which she plays the matriarch of the Abbot family, opposite Josh Brolin ("Avengers: Endgame," 2019). Its second season was released just a few weeks ago, with no word yet on a third. The story is still very much up in the air, and it seems to have been a hit for Amazon, so there's reason to believe we'll get more.

But in the meantime, Taylor will be taking a little diversion down a pretty well-known street. She's booked a role in the upcoming teen-centric horror film "Fear Street: Prom Queen," based on the book of the same name by R.L. Stine.

The "Fear Street" books were megasellers for Stine and helped pioneer the lucrative teen-horror literary genre as we know it today. "Prom Queen" is filming now, with no release date announced so far.
